Emergency 10 Per Cent Levy Being Considered

Washington—(U)—Congressional tax experts are studying several proposals for increasing income taxes to finance an expanded armament program.

These experts—staff members of the joint committee on internal revenue—will make recommendations for tax legislation at the next session of congress.

Informed persons said an emergency 10 per cent increase in income taxes was one method under consideration. The increase would apply to both individual and corporate incomes. On the basis of this year's revenue estimates, it would yield an additional $200,000,000.

Tax authorities said the additional levy would be imposed for only a year or two, and would expire automatically at the end of the designated period.

British Action

Great Britain, faced with sharply mounting rearmament costs, already has adopted a similar emergency levy.

Various proposals to reshuffle existing income tax rates also are being studied. These include one by Senator LaFollette (R-Wis.) to reduce existing income tax exemptions from $1,000 to $800 for single individuals and from $2,500 to $2,000 for married persons.

Consideration is being given to taxation needs in event of war. Senator Connally (D-Texas) has suggested imposition of drastic income tax increases in such a contingency.

Informal Confabs

Members of congressional tax committees are expected to discuss the various suggestions informally before congress meets. Revenue authorities said, however, that no definite program could be formulated until it is known precisely how much the administration will ask for defense.

President Roosevelt has said an extra $150,000,000 would be needed for naval construction, but additional outlays for the army have not been estimated.

Meanwhile, Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the senate naval affairs committee said he believed congress should have a complete picture of joint army and navy air defense needs before it acts on the separate war and navy budgets. He suggested the two services join in a report to congress.

11 Prisoners, Jailer Are Hurt When Boiler Explodes in Georgia

Columbus, Ga.—(U)—A boiler explosion blasted out part of the east wing of the Muskego county jail today, injuring 11 prisoners and jailer W. D. Layfield.

Scratched and bruised, Layfield said eight of the 76 persons booked were not accounted for and might have escaped. A check of the debris disclosed no dead.

Jailer Layfield reported the blast occurred about 5:30 a. m. after he had sent a Negro trustee to the east wing to check on the heating system. He said the trustee, Ernest Stanley, was seriously burned.

A second floor cell block containing six prisoners, was dislocated and tumbled to the ground. Firemen and police rescued the prisoners by breaking the cell grating with chisels and sledge hammers.

City hospital attendants reported three white and eight Negro prisoners were admitted for treatment.

New Discovery by Psycho-Analyst

The "Goodness of God People has just been 'measured' in 117 cities by an experimental psychologist, Dr. Edward L. Thorndike of Columbia University. He 'evaluated' their 'goodness' in relation to income, rent, expenses for luxuries, necessities, etc. He calls his reduction "G.G." and has concluded that it isn't purchasable. Isn't psychology wonderful? Why, he might even have discovered that if you haven't got any "G.G." the G-men are likely to get you. Great results! Almost as great as this little rental ad brought, without psychological help:

WISCONSIN AVE., W. 314—Modern upper 2 room apartment. Hot water, shower, oil heat, basement privileges. Heat, water furnished. Garage. Newly decorated. Adults. Tel. 4636.

Ran ad seven times and had about 20 calls.

AGENT FOUND DEAD

Professor Robert Amundson, 44, of the University of Wisconsin agricultural faculty and former Outagamie county agent, was found dead today in his car at the University Hill farm. Coroner Edward A. Fischer said death was caused by carbon monoxide gas. A section of garden hose led from the car's exhaust into the car. He had been in ill health about two years. Professor Amundson was born on a farm near Rio and upon graduation from the university was named county agent of Outagamie county. He was there until 1922 when he was transferred to Outagamie county. In 1928 he returned to Madison as county agent at large and assistant state leader of county agents. The widow and two children survive.

Two Men Walk Off With $380 As Mrs. Roosevelt Pleads for Taking Profit Out of Warfare

Green Bay—While Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was advocating the removal of profit from war in a lecture here last night, two fast-talking men removed $380 profit from the first lady's appearance by walking off with the box office receipts. The funds were intended for Mrs. Roosevelt's charities.

The men, posing as ushers at the Columbus Community club where Mrs. Roosevelt spoke, told Mrs. E. Lambeau and Mrs. J. B. O'Hara, ticket sellers, that they had been instructed to guard the receipts and that the women should go inside and hear Mrs. Roosevelt.

"A blond man approached me," Mrs. Lambeau related, "saying Father F. X. Exler, managing the Columbus club, had told him to guard the cash. So I went to hear Mrs. Roosevelt. The other fellow, looking like a foreigner, stayed outside."

Box Office Locked

The one who "looked like a foreigner" urged her to hear the program, Mrs. O'Hara said. But shortly after she went inside, she became suspicious and returned to find the box office door locked. She sought a policeman.

Later it developed that one man Myron Locke, had seen the men stuffing money into their pockets.

In her discussion of world problems, Mrs. Roosevelt urged the growth of tolerance and sanity among nations. She said she favored an agreement limiting planes to commercial use only, during war, and the removal of wartime profit by government control or supervision of the munitions industry.

Great Moral Force

Mrs. Roosevelt said she was made hopeful by the present intelligent attitude of the nation toward war. The moral force of public opinion, she asserted, is forming the policies of the nation. She considered the recent European crisis encouraging in that war was averted, though narrowly.

"There are some who say," she declared, "the price we paid for peace was fairly high, but after all, we have peace and more time to solve the problem."

"Wipe out the psychology of fear" and put their energies to "building something so strong they won't need to be afraid."

More than 2,000 persons heard the first lady, whose appearance climaxed Green Bay's peace week observance.

Fire Destroys Farm Home Near Shiocton; Estimate Loss $1,000

Fire of unknown origin yesterday destroyed the farm home of Cleve Guyette on County Trunk M about four miles northwest of Shiocton. Loss, estimated at $1,000, was partly covered by insurance.

The fire started on the second floor of the home about 12:30 Thursday noon and had almost destroyed it before the Shiocton Fire department arrived at the scene. Guyette and members of his family saved most of the furniture on the first floor but the second floor furniture was burned.

British Set to Widen Drive Against Arabs

Jerusalem—(U)—British military authorities prepared today to strike in other parts of Palestine in continuation of the campaign against rebellious Arabs.

The next scene of operations of the steel-helmeted soldiers who restored comparative order to the old quarters of Jerusalem was not disclosed, but the rebel-infested Bethlehem area was considered a likely objective.

Sporadic sniping continued in Jerusalem last night, and troops still surrounded the mosque of Omar, where many Arabs were believed to be entrenched.

Welfare workers handed out food to hungry residents of the old city, still suffering from a provision shortage.

SAILS FOR HOME

Le Havre, France—(U)—General John J. Pershing sailed for New York after his usual summer tour of inspection in France as chairman of the American Battle Monuments commission.

WPA Will Not Provide More Jobs in State

Flanner Aims Retrenchment Policy to Conserve Funds

UPTREND IS FACTOR

Continued Business Gains Help Government in Program

Madison—(U)—The Wisconsin Works Progress administration, on orders from Washington, today called a halt on the hiring of new applicants for WPA jobs. With 85,000 persons now on the pay rolls, State Administrator Philip D. Flanner announced there would be no further assignments and that a retrenchment policy would be followed to make available funds last until March 1.

"If the present upward trend in private employment continues, the shutting off of WPA jobs will not be a serious matter," Flanner said.

The curtailment orders came from Aubrey A. Williams, deputy federal administrator, and were issued in accordance with instructions from President Roosevelt, the state administrator said.

"The appropriation made by the last congress must carry through the period for which it was made, that is until March 1," he said.

Exceptions Made

Flanner announced exceptions will be made in the case of persons who left WPA jobs for private work and lost this employment through no fault of their own. Such persons may be re-assigned.

SUING STUDIO

Hollywood—(U)—Having seen the picture in which he made his movie debut, Jeff Davis, king of hoboes, is all the more certain he is entitled to the $50,000 for which he is suing a studio.

"Why, I appear in six scenes, and in one of them I'm saving wood for about ten minutes," Jeff said excitedly. "There's no mistake about it being that old bald head of mine."

The picture is Paramount's "Arkansas Traveler." Davis' suit comes up in court Oct. 31. The hobo king claims he received only $108 for his work as technical adviser and actor, and that the studio offered him only $17 more, which he refused.

Divorcee and Man Are Found Shot to Death in Racine

Detectives Say Man Took Own Life After Killing Woman

Racine—(U)—Mrs. Anita Benson, 31, a divorcee, was shot to death in the yard of her home last night. An hour later, police found the body of Otto Schult, 35, for whom they had been searching.

Schult also had been shot to death. His body lay in an alley two blocks from Mrs. Benson's home. A pistol with six discharged cartridges was at his side, police said.

Detectives Lyle George and Theodore Hodges, terming it a case of murder and suicide, said Mrs. Benson once had complained Schult had threatened her. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ole Olsen, said Schult had been extremely jealous and she had recently refused to go out with him. He had called for her earlier last night, they said.

The young woman's father said Schult walked into the house without knocking, and demanded to see her.

Spanish Government Is Mapping New Offensive

Mendaye, France (U)—Reports from government sources indicated today that plans were virtually complete for an offensive designed to strengthen the government's position before the third winter of the Spanish civil war sets in.

General Jose Miaja, commander-in-chief of the government's central front, and General Matallana, his chief of staff, returned to Madrid after a series of conferences with commanders at Barcelona and Valencia.

A decrease in the number of troop movements have been observed, servers the impression that concentrations going on for days had been completed.

There was no indication of where the government offensive would start although many observers looked to the Ebro river front in eastern Spain.

Man Is Found Dead on Grave of His Fiancee

Chicago—(U)—DeForest Jayne, 28, a riding master, murmured "I'll be with you again" as he watched the body of his fiancee being lowered into a grave in Cavalry cemetery Wednesday.

The girl, Mae Sweeney, 25, died suddenly last Saturday. She and Jayne, a champion horseman who won many trophies and prize ribbons in rodeo contests, were to have been married this fall.

Yesterday the riding master, wearing polished boots, white breeches, and sombrero, was found dead on the flower strewn grave. Nearby was his shotgun.

Pope Links Tyrants of the Past With Present Day 'Persecution' By Nazis in Germany and Austria

Vatican City—(U)—L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican City newspaper, said today that Pope Pius had denounced Nazi "persecution" in Germany and Austria with allusions to tyrants of the past.

It said the pope referred to Julian the apostate, Nero and the Apostle Paul in an address before archeologists in an audience at Castel Gandolfo yesterday.

L'Osservatore in a summary of the pope's remarks noted that he spoke of archeology as dedicated to exhuming monuments and studying "dead texts."

Then, it said, he added that "not far away quite a different archeology is being practiced."

"Works and personages which would better be left in oblivion are being called and recalled on the scene of life and action," the newspaper summarized the pope's message.

"As an old man, the father wished to ask forgiveness of his sons (the archeologists) if, while they were occupied with such great and comforting matters, he asked them to consider such sad subjects," it added.

It is erroneous archeology and truth which exhumes sinister figures to bring them back into existence and put in operation sinister works.

"He recalled the work of Julian the apostate with sad, extremely sad, persecutions which, if they

Denies Guilty Plea Made to 'Benefit' Him

Rumrich Says Confession Not Intended To Help Him

ON STAND 5TH DAY

Admits Statement Varies From Answers Last February

New York—(U)—Guenther Gustav Rumrich, army deserter who became a bungling Nazi German spy, denied under cross-examination in federal court today that he expected to "benefit personally" when he confessed his guilt and testified for the government.

Slightly nervous as he took the stand for the fifth day at the espionage trial of Erich Glaser, Johann Hofmann and Otto Voss, the one time dishwasher said Assistant United States Attorney Lester Dunigan had advised him "to make a clean breast of everything—that it would be the best interests of all concerned."

He admitted to Benjamin Matthews, counsel for Glaser, who took over cross-examination a few minutes after court convened at noon, that he had read and signed nine copies of a statement which contained answers to questions at variance with answers he gave when he was arrested last February.

Matthews asked that a copy of the statement be given him, but Dunigan said the papers were in the possession of the state department, and Judge John C. Knox ruled that Matthews would have to ask the state department for it, since it lay beyond the jurisdiction of the court.

Matthews led Rumrich to the matter of his questioning by Leon G. Turrou, former agent of the federal bureau of investigation of the department of justice, and was still examining him about Turrou's first interview when an adjournment was taken for lunch.

Assails Foes of Wage-Hour Law

Andrews Hits at Industries Preparing to Close Monday

Washington—(U)—Elmer F. Andrews, wage-hour administrator, hit today at industries which he said intended to shut down Monday to avoid compliance with the new fair labor standards act.

"These suspensions of operations seem to have been timed in an effort to bring the law into disrepute, evidently, with the hope of intimidating the wage and hour division in its administration of the law's provisions," Andrews said in a statement.

It must be plainly understood, however, that the fair labor standards act is the law of the land, with severe penalties for its violation and that the wage and hour division has no choice but to carry out the will of congress.

"In translating that will into action, the wage and hour division will enforce the act uniformly and compellingly, with forbearance but without partiality."

Andrews said millions of Americans welcomed the opportunity to help "inculcate our economic system against the virus of sweatshops."

"Unfortunately, however," he added, "there is a small and scattered minority who apparently are unwilling or incapable of contributing to the common good. These delinquents, whose number and importance are magnified by their isolation, resort to subterfuge in an effort to camouflage their selfishness and blame the fair labor standards act for their own anti-social conduct."

Drivers Not Badly Hurt As Train Wrecks Truck

Kenosha—(U)—Alex Bloeschka, 26, escaped serious injury today when a northbound North Western road passenger train struck his two and a half ton truck, loaded with dirt, and buried it 300 feet. Bloeschka was thrown from his cab and suffered chest injuries, but will recover. The truck was demolished. The accident occurred at the Chikwaukee crossing.

Had to Use Guns

Police ran out of tear gas in about 20 minutes, Hughes related, and it was "necessary to resort to firearms" to restore order around the plant.

Fourteen police and about the same number of civilians required hospital treatment, he said, for gunshot wounds and the effects of tear gas.

Herman Luhrs, chairman of the joint Americanism committee of the American Legion at Flint, testified that Senator Robert M. La Follette (R-Wis.) addressed a meeting in Flint in February, 1938, at which communist literature was "so thick it wasn't cleared up for 48 hours."

Luhrs said the meeting was sponsored by the American Civil Liberties union.

Czechs Offer 4th Plan To Hungarian Regime

Budapest—(U)—The Czechoslovak government today submitted a new proposal to Hungary for settlement of their issue over Hungarian minorities in Czechoslovakia.

Official circles said the offer was considerably better than the last made by Czechoslovakia but still was inadequate and would be refused. This was the fourth Czechoslovak plan.

The first was the offer of autonomy to Hungarian minorities in Czechoslovakia.

Man Dies, Another Is Critically Hurt In 2 Auto Crashes

Henry Ebert, 39, Route 4, Weyauwega, Killed Instantly

One man was killed and another critically injured in two accidents in the vicinity of Appleton last night. Both men were struck while walking on the highway.

Henry Ebert, 39, route 4, Weyauwega, was killed instantly at 11:40 p. m. when he was hit by a car driven by Wallace Weiss, Fremont, on Highway 10 in front of the Little River Tavern, 2 1/2 miles south of Weyauwega.

Mark Hopkins, 63, Dale, in St. Elizabeth hospital with injuries that may prove fatal. He was struck by a hit-and-run driver on Highway 10 a mile and a half west of Dale at 6:40 last night. His body was dragged 75 feet along the pavement. The driver has not been found and county authorities are working on pretty slim clues.

Ebert was crossing from the tavern to a garage and Weiss driving south when the fatal crash occurred. The body of the victim was mangled, with many bones broken.

"Unavoidable" The accident was pronounced "unavoidable" at an inquest held in the tavern following the tragedy. Weyauwega county officials investigating the crash were Sheriff Duncan Campbell, Paul Jones, undersheriff, Dr. J. C. Johnson, coroner, and Roy Myhill, county traffic officer.

Mrs. Weiss and the Weiss baby were slightly injured in the collision. Ebert was born at the farm on route 4, Weyauwega, and lived there his entire life.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Ebert, at home; two brothers, John, West Bloomfield; Walter, at home; four sisters, Miss Adela Ebert, at home; Mrs. Alma Meyers, West Bloomfield; Mrs. Fred

Jap Troops Enter Canton; Hundreds Of Thousands Flee

Lawrence Campus Ready for Greatest Homecoming; Pep Meeting Scheduled Tonight

BY GORDON MCINTYRE

Lawrence college homecoming, designed to be the greatest in Viking history, got off to a boisterous start this morning at convocation when students gathered for their first pep session of the weekend, and unleashed a wave of enthusiasm that will mount to little short of a riot tomorrow afternoon—if the Lawrence college football team brings home a victory over Carroll college.

But win, lose or draw, the Vikings are going to whoop it up for Lawrence this evening, all day tomorrow, and far into Saturday night, in a manner that will be remembered a long, long time. However, the students aren't keeping their enthusiasm to themselves and they've asked townspeople to join in as never before, to really get interested in the college and its activities—and then carry on for the remainder of this year, for next and forever and forever.

Appleton participation will be exemplified by a speaker at tonight's pep meeting, by the blue lights on College avenue this evening, by the Appleton Post-Crescent cups which will go to the best decorated fraternity houses, and to the winning floats in tomorrow's parade, by official representation of the city government and Appleton Chamber of Commerce in Saturday's parade and the football game, and by participation in the Saturday parade and game activities of Appleton High school band and the Sons of the American Legion drum and bugle corps.

Decorate Houses Throughout today fraternity and sorority students have been feverishly decorating their houses, and preparing floats for tomorrow's big parade, and in between times have been rushing to greet alumni and friends and to welcome them as never before.

This evening at 5 o'clock the fraternity houses will be ready for judging and thereafter everyone in Appleton is invited to view the homecoming and a victory over Carroll tomorrow will be the theme and reports are the houses will be a credit to ingenuity and design.

You can pick your own route of travel but the houses are located as follows: Beta Theta Pi, 416 E. Washington street; Phi Delta Theta, 324 E. North street; Phi Kappa Tau, 222 N. Union street; Delta Tau Delta, 203 N. Union street; Sigma Phi Epsilon, Lawe street and College avenue, and Delta Sigma Tau, 121 E. Kimball street. All campus buildings also have been decorated.

At 7 o'clock the big evening pep meeting and bonfire program will start when freshmen men and women clad in pajamas and flannel night gowns gather on the E. Lawrence street bridge, and then file down the river bank behind science hall, chanting as they go.

There, with a platform for the speakers and members of the football team, and with a huge bonfire, will be the main attraction.

Consider Changes In Security Law

Two Groups Discuss Possible Amendments in Federal Program

Washington—(U)—Important changes in the government's vast social security program received consideration today by two groups of officials and laymen.

An advisory council, composed of representatives of employers, employees and the public, studied a mass of proposals for extending the old age pension program. It now covers 41,000,000 wage earners.

At the same time more than 150 state officials who administer the unemployment compensation provisions of the act, affecting 27,500,000 workers, debated means of simplifying their complex task.

The advisory council, created at request of a senate committee, heard reports from experts who have surveyed the possible extension of old age benefits to agriculture workers, domestic servants, and employees of religious and charitable institutions.

Some of these experts believe the program could be extended to about 16,000,000 workers now excluded.

Advocates of changes in the limits of monthly benefit payments also expected a hearing. The act now contemplates payments from $10 to $65 starting in 1942. Some persons have asked the minimum be increased to $20 and the maximum reduced to $50 or $60.

At Least 226 Dead And 230 Missing as Typhoon Hits Japan

Tokyo—(U)—A typhoon roared in from the sea today making at least 226 live and injuring more than 390 persons. About 230 persons were missing.

The unreasonable storm which lashed waters overlaid along the coastal reaches of Japan in the Tokyo-Yokohama district and elsewhere rendered an estimated 35,000 persons homeless.

More than 24,460 houses in Tokyo were flooded and some collapsed. Thousands of trees were uprooted and Tokyo's communications and transportation were partly paralyzed.

Tens of thousands of workers were unable to reach places of employment in the capital and most schools were closed. The typhoon also caused much damage at Yokohama. All sailings from that port city were suspended.

Federal Grand Jury Indicts 73 New Mexico Residents on Charges of Politics in WPA

Dozens of Prominent Persons in State are Included

Albuquerque, N. M. — (AP)—New actions were hinted today to be impending in the wake of wholesale federal grand jury indictments returned late yesterday against 73 persons charged with making political capital of the New Mexico WPA.

Dozens prominent in state politics and government were indicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government for political purposes, among them Assistant United States District Attorney Stanley W. P. Miller, son-in-law of Senator Dennis Chavez; two Democratic county chairmen; Mrs. Anita Tafoya, Senator Chavez's sister; Mrs. J. A. Werner, wife of the Albuquerque postmaster; and former State WPA Administrator Fred Healy.

Some in responsible quarters intimated the end was not yet in sight. It was known that agents of the WPA division of investigation under Special Agent C. E. Goran-

Movie Actress Plunges to Death

Dorothy Hale Falls From Window of Sixteenth Floor of Hotel

New York. — (AP)—Dorothy Hale, motion picture actress, plunged to her death early today from a window of her sixteenth floor room in the Hampshire house, exclusive hotel overlooking Central park.

Mrs. Hale, who a few years ago was described by a Hollywood producer as a "great movie find," was the widow of Gardner Hale, of Chicago, who was killed in 1931 when his automobile went over a 500-foot cliff in California.

Detective James Leech, who made a preliminary investigation, said the actress may have fallen from the window when she attempted to open it shortly after she returned to her room at 6:20 a. m.

Reports that Mrs. Hale had become engaged to Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, were denied last summer.

Friends of Hopkins, who was sequestered at the home of President Roosevelt, said he was "deeply shocked" by Mrs. Hale's death. They did not comment on the engagement reports, but said Hopkins and the actress had been "close personal friends." The WPA administrator himself made no comment.

The victim's body was clad in a black dinner dress with gold ornaments. A corsage of tea roses clung to her bosom.

Among the outstanding motion pictures in which Mrs. Hale appeared was "Catherine the Great."

Dorothy Hale was a close friend of the tall-golden-haired Rosamond Pinchoff, socially prominent actress who attained fame at 17 in the Biblical spectacle "The Miracle" and was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning in the garage of her Long Island estate near Oyster bay last Jan. 24.

Miss Pinchoff was the daughter of Amos R. E. Pinchoff, Republican lawyer, and a niece of former governor Gifford Pinchoff of Pennsylvania.

Jefferson County Fails to Collect From Dodge County

Madison. — (AP)—Circuit Judge Alvin C. Reis today dismissed a $1,000 claim filed by Jefferson county against Dodge county as payment for the support of a Watertown school.

Counties are subject to the statute of limitations the same as individuals and corporations, Judge Reis said in outlawing the claim because it is more than six years old.

Watertown is located both in Jefferson and Dodge counties and all but one of its schools are in Jefferson county. From 1927 through 1934 Jefferson paid a $2,000 annual assessment on the one school in Dodge county and when the error was discovered asked repayment of $14,000.

Dodge county paid only $10,000 and Jefferson sued for the balance, claiming to be an arm of the state in "public school" assessments and pointing out that the statute of limitations does not run against the state.

Judge Reis held, however, that Jefferson county "is not the state" and is suing as "a municipal corporation only."

Valley Schoolmasters Club Meets Wednesday

The Fox River Valley Schoolmasters club will meet Wednesday evening after a 6:30 dinner at the Hotel Retlaw in Fond du Lac. The subject for general discussion will be "Making Adjustments in Secondary School Programs for Meeting Needs and Interests of Pupils."

Speakers will be John Holman, Neenah high school principal; J. H. Murphy, New Holston superintendent of schools; and J. A. VanNatta, Sturgeon Bay superintendent of schools.

Four Delegates Named To Teachers' Conclave

Four delegates to the Wisconsin Education association convention were elected at a meeting of the Appleton Education association at Morgan school Thursday afternoon. Delegates named are Roland Nock, Morgan school principal; Mrs. Lila Mortimer, Morgan school instructor; Kenneth Edg, high school instructor; and Frank Taylor, president of the association and an instructor at Wilson Junior High school. The convention will be held in Milwaukee Nov. 3, 4, and 5.

Setts Bond at $1,000

Federal Judge Colin Nebbett, who demanded the probe Sept. 7 with instructions to spare no one, ordered the defendants brought before him next Tuesday and directed they post $1,000 bond each. He ordered the jurors held subject to the call of the court after commencing them as "good American citizens."

The grand jury report bristled with condemnation.

"The extent to which the avowed ends and aims of the works progress administration program have been impaired, and the defeated through selfish aims and ambitions of individuals entrusted with its administration, or who sought political advantage, has amazed your grand jury," the report said.

The indictments were divided into two classes—conspiracy indictments against 62 persons with a maximum penalty of one year imprisonment and $2,000 fine.

Tried to "Build Machine"

The indictments charged defendants conspired for "joint and unified political activity and to build a political organization."

The jury reported use of threats and intimidation of WPA employees, enforced political contributions, discharges from work because of failure to contribute, enforced membership in political clubs "disguised" as social organizations, and diversion to personal uses of WPA funds, materials, and labor services.

Shortly after the grand jury report was made acting WPA Administrator R. L. Nicholson announced in Santa Fe the resignations of four indicted WPA employees—Zone Supervisor E. A. Rose of Albuquerque, Zone Timekeeper W. R. Poor, Zone Engineer A. C. Holzworth, and Joe Barreras, assistant to the director of the employment division.

Among the indicted were Police Chief John Woolen of Las Vegas, former State Police Captain Roy Vermillion, Torrance County Democratic Chairman Bernardo Cruz; Salomon Tafoya, nephew of Senator Chavez; Joseph Dearmond, WPA assignment clerk; Salomon Chavez, cousin of Senator Chavez, and Joe Martinez, secretary of the senator.

Sikora on Stand At Murder Trial

Tells of Love Affair Between Wife and Slain Man

Chicago. — (AP)—Rudolph Sikora, the "perfect husband," told a jury hearing his murder trial today that his attractive wife fell in love with his rival during a torrid tryst in his office vault.

Resuming his witness stand story of the events that led up to the slaying of Edward Solomon, Sikora, 32, the defendant said Mrs. Sikora made a detailed confession of the incident.

"She told me it all started last March 14," Sikora related in a calm voice. "Solomon went into the vault in the office where they worked together. He called Margaret in. She said Solomon pulled her to him, held her close and kissed her and kissed her and kissed her."

"She said she couldn't help herself. He fondled her for some time. They finally left the vault emotionally exhausted."

A part crowd strained to hear every word as Defense Counsel W. V. Smith elicited the tragic story, detail by detail.

"What did you say when she told you that?" the attorney inquired.

"I told her I couldn't understand it," Sikora, a mild appearing man of 37, replied. "She also told me of her meetings with Solomon when they were together for hours."

Mrs. Sikora insisted during the conversation, Sikora added, that she never had been intimate with Solomon although she said "she didn't expect me to believe that."

Says State Democrats Got Short End of Deal

Beloit. — (AP)—Wisconsin Democrats have received "shameful treatment" from "political manipulators" in their own party, Senator Robert M. LaFollette said last night. He then invited them to join the Progressives.

LaFollette said the Democratic nominee for governor, Robert K. Henry, "after receiving the vote of his party in the primary, turned his back on the rank and file and even attempted to trade them to the Republican party as if they were so much merchandise."

The political manipulators replaced him with a gubernatorial candidate (State Senator Harry Boenigsen) so reactionary that only Boenigsen could support him with a clear conscience.

"Democratic voters who want Progressive government have every right to protest against this shameful treatment and Phil LaFollette will give them the kind of sound leadership which they can heartily endorse."

Auction of Champions Ends Livestock Show

Madison. — (AP)—A grand champion Aberdeen Angus calf weighing 843 pounds brought 25 cents a pound, or $212.25 for its owner, Kenneth Barker, 16, of Mineral point, at the twenty-third annual Junior live stock exhibition auction yesterday.

The grand champion baby beef at last year's exposition sold for 29 cents a pound. The show closed with the auction.

LAWRENCE VIKING WELCOMES HIS PROGENY TOMORROW

Arrange Vaudeville Acts for WPA Halloween Parade, Dance

Ten outstanding vaudeville acts are being prepared by Mrs. Hazel F. Bannister, WPA recreational director, and will be one of the features of the Mummer's parade which will be sponsored by WPA Halloween night on Soldiers square.

The square will be as light as day for the big event for Louis Luebeck, city electrician, will install numerous flood and spot lights, Mrs. Bannister said.

A brilliant array of colorful costumes is expected to mark the parade which, if successful, is expected to be made an annual event. Prizes will be awarded for the most beautiful, the funniest, the most grotesque and the most elaborate costumes.

Youngsters who wish to enter the parade may send their names, addresses and ages to Mrs. Bannister at 103 E. College avenue. Arrangements are being made to place entry stations in various stores about the city.

Adults who come to see the parade will be entertained by a pavement dance on Soldiers square. Noisy's Concert orchestra, a unit sponsored by the WPA at Oshkosh, will provide dance music.

Appleton merchants will donate the prizes which will be awarded to both boys and girls in the various costume and age classes. Mayor John Goodland, Jr., and several other city officials will act as judges for the parade.

John Builds Scooter But Skips Essential Details; Pays Fines

John Raether, route 1, Menasha, made a motor scooter the other day. It was a nifty rig. But John forgot to buy a license or equip his home-made scooter with lights.

Last night John came to Appleton on the scooter and ran afoul of city police, who insist that machines that carry people along the highway, whether they're made in a back yard or in a far-away factory, must have licenses and lights.

John appeared in municipal court this morning before Judge Thomas H. Ryan. He paid two fines of $5 and costs each. One was for violation of a city ordinance regarding lights on vehicles. The other was for ignoring the state law applying to licenses. John still has his scooter, but he's not sure he saved money by building it.

Kiwanis Club Chorus Will Enter Songfest

About 25 members of the Appleton Kiwanis club will compete in the songfest for clubs from the central division of the Wisconsin-Upper Michigan district which will be held in the Hotel Retlaw at Fond du Lac Tuesday night.

The following 13 prizes will be offered: Best singing club; second best; best song leader; best looking club; best piano player; best rendition of a Kiwanis song; best rendition of a non-Kiwanis song; largest percentage of members present; most members from the longest distance; club with the "broadest smile."

Ekern Outlines Plan For Federal Aid to State Dairy Farmer

Rice Lake, Wis. — (AP)—Lieutenant Governor Herman L. Ekern, Progressive candidate for the United States senate, outlined last night a four-point program for federal aid to the state dairy farmer which he said he would seek if elected.

He listed these points:

"1. A congressional investigation to uncover monopolistic control of the dairy industry, followed by a campaign to break this control and thus assure a free market in which the farmer can get a fair price for his milk and the consumer can get milk, butter and cheese at prices he can afford to pay.

"2. Tariffs to protect the dairy farmer against importation of inferior products produced under unsanitary conditions by foreign farmers with lower standards of living.

"3. Government purchases of milk to be distributed to undernourished children in schools and to others in community centers and factories.

"4. A federal government educational and merchandising campaign, supplemented by similar state campaigns."

Underwriters to Hear Speicher at Meeting

Paul Speicher, Indianapolis, managing editor of the Research and Review Service, will be the principal speaker at a dinner meeting of the Fox River Valley Association of Life Underwriters at 6:45 tonight at Riverview Country club.

Also on the speaking program will be Dwight Reese of Wisconsin Rapids. The meeting will be the first in Appleton of the recently organized association which draws its membership from throughout the Fox river valley. About 150 members and wives are expected to attend tonight's meeting.

Harvest Festival Set for Tuesday At Clintonville

Business Men of City Will Be Hosts to Community

Clintonville. — A "harvest festival" will take place in this city Tuesday, Oct. 25. The event is being sponsored by Clintonville business men, who will be hosts to farmers and laborers of this community.

The day's festivities will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning with music by Sawyer's Co-op orchestra, after which there will be tugs of war between teams from the various townships.

Prizes are being offered by the business men to the farmers bringing in the largest potato, largest ear of corn, largest pumpkin, squash and head of cabbage. The entries will be judged at the armory.

A free luncheon will be served at noon at the armory by the business men and their employees. The meal will be prepared by John Doppson, Sr., and S. A. LaViolette and will consist of wieners, sauerkraut, bread, cheese, coffee and doughnuts. Stores and other business places will be closed from 12 o'clock noon until 2 o'clock in the afternoon, enabling the proprietors and employees to be at the armory.

A corn-husking contest will be a feature of the afternoon's entertainment. The huskers will compete at 3 o'clock at the corner of Eighth and S. Main streets.

Of the several Clintonville airplane enthusiasts who are taking flying lessons, Kenneth Lyon is the first to complete his course under the direction of Lloyd Bauer, licensed instructor. The plane used for instruction belongs to Byron Lyon of this city, a cousin of Kenneth Lyon.

Mrs. E. J. Perkins was hostess to her bridge club Wednesday afternoon. Two tables of contract were in play with honors going to Mrs. George Laabs, a guest of the club, and Mrs. Donald Russell.

LeRoy Splittgerber has returned to his home near this city after being confined to the Clintonville Community hospital for the last three weeks following an operation for a ruptured appendix.

A daughter was born Oct. 18 at the local hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Jervis Ebert of Gresham.

A flower sale conducted for the benefit of the blind Saturday, Oct. 15, netted $30.62, according to a report by Mrs. Norman Hanson, who was in charge of the sale. Children earning prizes in the competition were Beatrice Cronce, first; Lila Harbarth, second; Isabel Cronce, third; and Naomi Neundorff, fourth.

Those from this city and vicinity drawn for jury duty at the November term of Waupesa county circuit court are William Nath, Mrs. G. A. Seidel and Mrs. Rudolph Rulisch of this city. Herman Jacoby and Gordon VanOrnum of the town of Matson.

Mrs. C. B. Stanley, Mrs. Walter Sievers, Mrs. Ralph Laney, Mrs. Wallace Gates, Mrs. Eugene Volkman and Mrs. Arthur Schwardt were at Rhinelander Thursday, where they attended a regional conference of the American Red Cross being held preparatory to the annual roll call. The campaign in Clintonville will be conducted by the Junior Woman's club, with Mrs. Walter Sievers as general chairman. Mrs. Stanley is the roll-call chairman for the Red Cross.

DISMISSES CASE

Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court Wednesday dismissed the case in which Lester Powers, 1218 W. Spencer street, was charged with doing plumbing work without a plumber's permit. Powers had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Lawrence Alumnus Is Sent Out This Week

The October issue of the Lawrence Alumnus, featuring a message from President Thomas N. Barrows, and stories on the opening of the college, new faculty members, the Vikings football team, and campus improvements, was mailed to Lawrence college alumni this week. Liberally sprinkled with pictures, the alumni periodical contains the program for homecoming this weekend and personal information on graduates of the college.

Wiley Claims Bulk of Federal Relief Funds Spent to Aid 'Purge'

Marshall, Wis. — (AP)—Alexander Wiley, Republican senatorial nominee, last night termed the report that federal relief funds must be "stretched" to last until March "a stretch" that must be paid by the unemployed for the New Deal purge.

Wiley said Aubrey Williams, deputy WPA administrator, had been told at a White House conference that the $1,455,000,000 appropriated for relief for the first eight months of the current fiscal year must be made to last until March 1.

The deputy WPA administrator told the president that he was in doubt that the money would last that long," Wiley continued. "That is only natural when it is considered that so much of it was tossed into certain states during primary election campaigns for the purpose of bringing about reelection of New Deal yes-men in congress.

"The New Dealers put on a song and dance with most of the money during the summer months, and now that a cold winter is ahead, they are asking the 3,000,000 persons on WPA rolls to pay the fiddler."

Motorists May Test Ability at Driver's Clinic

Will be Held at Court- house on Oct. 27, 28 and 29

Are you colorblind? How long does it take you to apply your brake after seeing the approach of danger? Do you have trouble facing glaring headlights?

These and many other questions will be answered for motorists in the free scientific drivers' clinic to be brought by the state highway commission to Appleton on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 27, 28 and 29. The clinic will be held in the circuit courtroom at the courthouse.

Tests are open free to all persons old enough to drive a motor vehicle. Results will not affect in any way a driver's license. The clinic will be supervised by Captain Charles Steidl of the county traffic squad and Harvey Mohr of the state highway commission.

Complete examination of eyes will include tests for color blindness, astigmatism, depth perception, visual acuity, fusion of images and field of vision. Color blindness is tested by Ishihara color charts. Other vision deficiencies or defects are tested by Keystone telebinoculars, a Snellen chart and other tests.

Distance judgment is tested by one of the simplest devices in the clinic. Many drivers, however, have a hard time making good scores in this test, which requires lining up five small cars as near as perfect alignment as possible while viewing them only through a mirror several feet away.

A DeSilva machine is used to test the driver's brake reaction time, eye-hand steering coordination and vigilance. Helpful advice will be given on how motorists can overcome any handicaps revealed by clinic reports.

Streamlined Art Expresses Speed Of 20th Century

Lecturer at High School Illustrates Talk With Colored Slides

"I want you to know that you're being educated in one of the finest schools I have ever seen," Karl Bolander, nationally famous artist and lecturer, told students of Appleton High school Thursday afternoon during a lyceum program. Mr. Bolander's address was entitled "Color and Design in a Stream-Lined World."

With the aid of colored slides and an ever-present sense of humor Mr. Bolander compared the old and the new in useful arts, using everything for illustrative material from courthouses to vacuum cleaners. Modern art, he pointed out, is stream-lined, expressive of the speed of the twentieth century. He depicted the copying of Greek and Renaissance patterns and "knick-knack" effects of the nineteenth century.

With cut-back type of architecture is good," he declared, "for it is a utilitarian device born of the skyscraper and is, therefore, typically American." He used as his example of modern construction the Waldorf-Astoria hotel with many windows, stream-lined effect, and double towers.

He advised his audience to plan their homes "up from the ground," avoiding "musty, junk-cluttered basements. Roofs, he stated, should be used for porches. "Although every building except one of the Chicago World's fair has been razed," he said, "the effects of its architectural planning will be felt for many years by American home-builders and merchants."

Mr. Bolander is director of the Ohio Water Color society, author and director of the American Museum School of the Air, state chairman in Ohio and national lecturer for the American Artists Professional league, and art director of the National Guildcrafters. Because of his crusade to bring art into daily living, Mr. Bolander has gained a reputation of being an "art doctor."

Political Leaders Quick to Recognize Organized Old Age Vote as Highly Potent Force

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—As the electorate of Wisconsin waits for the polling booth decisions three weeks from now which will end one of the most unusual campaigns in Wisconsin's checkered history, it has become plain that a strong new pressure group has appeared to affect the course of state politics. Probably reflecting a condition which has excited much comment all over the nation, the outcome of Wisconsin's elections today appears to depend on one factor—a factor which is so new that politicians don't know exactly how to deal with it—the organized old age pension vote.

Sober citizens busy with their businesses or occupations are apt to dismiss the numerous pension schemes now figuring in the state campaign as futile and meaningless. Politicians, the gentlemen whose success and livelihood depends on knowing the direction of public opinion, know better. They're watching the pension movement carefully, and steering their courses cautiously.

Significant Feature
It is not an exaggeration to say that the pressure on parties and candidates by elderly citizens in various groups for old-age pensions, and the efforts by other candidates to draw support from the unorganized elderly folks, is the most significant feature of the 1938 state election.

Historically Wisconsin politics has been based on the farm vote. There were short-lived interruptions, as during the era of the dominance of the lumber industry, when railroads and that mammoth economic interest combined to control state politics. And at the beginning of the state's political history the miners in southern and western Wisconsin were a potent, and sometimes victorious political force. But throughout most of its history the state has been run by parties and officials who depended for their support on farmers and rural village residents. The legislature even today is dominated by rural interests.

In recent years a strong new element has appeared—organized labor. On it the Progressive party leaned heavily, particularly since its severance from the Republican organization four years ago. But still the power of Wisconsin agriculture remained dominant.

Radical Departure
Today there has been a radical departure from that basic condition. Candidates are submerging pleas to the farmer and organized labor in a hectic race to corral the ballots of those citizens now getting pensions, which is a considerable number, and more important, those citizens who want pensions, and hope to get them.

Progressives, making the most of their pension record in their recent years of power at the state capitol, hasten to pledge themselves to more generous pension legislation, but without mentioning specific figures. They don't even wait for the next legislature to try to convince the old folks that they're friendly. At the instance of Governor LaFollette, presumably, the state pension board recently ordered counties to loosen up their purse-strings for the benefit of those aged now on their pension rolls. The governor promptly notified each pensioner by personal letter of his action. (The postage cost approximately $600.)

The action created a stir among county officials who are fearful of the budget implication of the generous impulses of the state administration. In short, they predict that counties won't be able to pay any more under the present arrangement. But, says the LaFollette administration, the state is willing to pay its share, and has been paying more than its share because many counties have been too penurious.

Flirt with Townsdenites
Republicans, not having had a chance to show their willingness to enact liberal old-age pensions, are flirting with the Townsend movement, in their platform demanding a hearing for the Townsend bill now awaiting action in Washington. Democrats aren't far behind, pledging themselves to a $50 monthly pension if they are elected to run the state government this fall.

Why the anxiety to please the pension vote, the average citizen may ask?
The answer is simply that the pension group is the most potent, most cohesive, and most single-minded political pressure group in the state. Citizens may not have been aware of it generally, but the most astute of the state's political leaders have known that Mr. Wisconsin Voter is getting older, in the aggregate, than ever before. There are now more people in Wisconsin over 65 than ever before, more people over 60, and over 50. Therefore, it is good politics "to play ball" with them.

When the state planning board recently issued its exhaustive population studies for the state, its political implications were generally missed. From those studies it can be concluded that pension campaigning is not going to be an ephemeral characteristic of the 1938 election. It is here to stay, if figures mean anything.

For example, census figures show that in 1930 Wisconsin had 192,069 persons 65 years of age or over, or 6.5 per cent of the population. But in 1940, 8.6 per cent of the population will be over 65 years of age, according to the experts, and there will be 271,003 of them. By 1950 the ratio will be 10.3 per cent, and there will be 345,932 aged listening to speeches by the politicians of that day promising bigger pensions.

In 1960 the percentage of the "pension vote" will be 11.6.

However, there is already a considerable agitation for a lowering of the age limit for old-age pensions, showing that many persons under 65 are thinking about old-age security, and pensions.

To understand what that agitation will mean if it is carried far enough, it is only necessary to study the planning board's figures which show that if every person in Wisconsin today over 45 would vote for the same candidates, they could control the state government by electing every one of them. By 1940 that control would be unobtainable, for there will then be 820,990 of those aged, or middle-aged citizens, far more than any candidate in Wisconsin's tri-party system ever receives in an election.

Services Announced at Black Creek Churches

Black Creek — "Heaven Is My Home," will be the sermon topic at the Methodist church Sunday at 9:15; Sunday school at 10:30.

The Ladies Aid society was entertained at the church Tuesday afternoon by Circle 4 of which Mrs. N. A. Shauger is captain. Other members are Mrs. C. E. Roach, Mrs. E. S. Maas, Mrs. Arnold Burmeister, Mrs. J. B. Huhn, Mrs. L. W. McCreech and Mrs. C. H. McCreech.

The afternoon consisted of a devotional meeting and a report of the Foreign Missionary society at 7:30. The last week was given by Mrs. C. J. Burdick. Games and stunts featured the entertainment program.

Two new members joined the society, Mrs. Milton Feldt and Mrs. C. H. McCreech. A lunch followed in the dining room.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 3 at the church by Circle 3 of which Mrs. O. H. Kringle is the captain.

"The Christian's Comfort in This World," will be the sermon topic at the German service at 10 o'clock Sunday at Immanuel Lutheran church; Sunday school at 11.

A bazaar and chicken supper will be held Oct. 27.

Sunday school will be held at 9:30 and the worship service at 10:30 Sunday at St. John Evangelical church. The Evangelical League will meet Friday evening.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. F. Grollmus and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kluge will attend the homecoming at Elmhurst college, Elmhurst, Ill., Friday and Saturday. Kluge's son, August, is a student at the school.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sassman returned Tuesday from a five days' trip to Evanston, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Grandy, who accompanied them, visited their son at Milwaukee during the Sassmans' stay with their daughter at Evanston.

GRIN AND BEAR IT

By Lichty

"We've turned out a beautiful new job, Chief, but it ain't practical yet—it won't wear out!"

Federal Government Drawn in When State Fails to Do the Job

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—The surest way to perpetuate and increase federal spending is for local communities to fail to meet adequately the needs of their own underprivileged members.

That is the argument which is being made by the community mobilization for human needs. It goes also for the Red Cross. Failure of states and local communities to meet their own social and economic problems explains much of the so-called federal encroachment which we have seen in the last few years. In fields involving interstate commerce only the federal government could act effectively. Quite apart from that, we have seen the federal government go into housing, milk control in New York state, and through WPA into school and playground building, and numerous educational activities which are properly local responsibilities.

Most of these intra state "invasions" by the federal government have resulted from the inability or unwillingness of local communities to do these things. They either could not afford it or else they were unwilling to afford it. Consequently these needed local social services went unperformed. Into that vacuum the federal government was drawn, driven by the necessity of seeing that human beings were not left in total neglect.

In that situation lies the key to much of our political controversy and the alarms over growing centralization of the federal government. Part of that centralization is inevitable because of the tendency of modern economic life to ignore state boundaries. But part of it can be checked or curtailed by revival of state responsibility in attending to the wants of the people. Federal activities will never shrink until the states do their own jobs as Dewey, the Republican candidate for governor in New York, pointed out in a recent speech.

Furthermore those who complain about the government invading the field of private charity and philanthropy will see no let-up in this trend unless private charity and philanthropy prove equal to the task. In this field the community chests and the Red Cross now in the midst of their annual efforts to raise funds, are rendering valuable service.

These privately supported organizations serve, collectively, to do three things: First, they provide much emergency assistance, particularly of a medical nature, that would not otherwise be available, even with all of the government relief activity.

Second, they provide, through their numerous organizations, persons competent through experience and influence to exert healthy pressure on state and federal relief agencies in combatting the infiltration of politics in relief. Time and again, representatives of these private institutions have been able to force greater efficiency and to hamstring interfering politicians, in public relief organizations.

Third, these private institutions offer the means of bringing to the unhappy victims of unemployment, poverty and illness, a little of the milk of human kindness which in a desperate household may be needed second only to bread.

Much Work Must be Done With Children

As has been stated, if an able-bodied man suffers from illness he becomes less employable. If members of his family become ill he worries about them. He may become entirely discouraged. His ability to get hospital care or nursery service or to attend a free clinic is very likely to depend upon the extent to which funds are contributed to support these services.

And what of the children raised in these households? This country is full of youngsters now in their teens who can remember nothing but depression and unemployment, and their fathers hunting work day after day in vain. Intelligent and sympathetic work will have to be done to prevent that crop of youngsters from growing up into rebels against a system that permitted such things to happen to them.

There the work among children done by community chest institutions and the Red Cross is of the utmost importance to the nation's future. There are many things that government relief cannot do which these private institutions can do, if they have the necessary funds.

America, England Trying to Revise Trade Agreements

Many Issues are Still to be Settled; Motor

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — Negotiations between Great Britain and the United States with respect to a new trade agreement have gone along for so many months now that, as time wears on, the differences of opinion between the two governments tend to produce varying degrees of hope as to the ultimate outcome.

It is manifestly of such far-reaching importance when the United Kingdom and the United States revise their own import duties that it was foreseen why a considerable time would elapse before an agreement on all items could possibly be reached. Take the matter of motor cars, for example, which is only one of a number of subjects under discussion. In England today, there is an import duty of about 33 per cent on the incoming cars. All countries are on the same basis. America would like to see the duty materially lowered. But England says, of course, this would mean the admission of German cars in larger quantity.

The way out, to be sure, if England desires to do it, is to create import duties based on horsepower classifications, because the American cars are in the higher horsepower group. This method of classification is permissible under the Trade Agreement act passed by our congress.

This is but one of many items on which there is a disagreement. Naturally, the division of opinion inside the British government reflects differing views among British industrialists, some of whom think the treaty would be helpful and some of whom think it would be disadvantageous.

Ask Concessions
In the department of state here, on the other hand, there is an insistence on certain concessions which it is felt are necessary if the trade agreement is to receive the approval of American public opinion.

The importance of consummating a trade agreement cannot be exaggerated at this time. For the moment, the United Kingdom and the United States agree, there will have to be subsequent agreements governing the relations of the London government with the various Dominion governments. It will be recalled that, when the Hawley-Smoot Tariff act was passed in 1930, there was immediately convened what was known as the Ottawa conference, at which preferences inside the British Empire were established by the English government.

America started the high tariff game, and, as the duties were put higher and higher, the other countries of the world imposed reprisals. Many American companies found it necessary to abandon their export trade from the United States and to establish factories and branches in foreign lands to manufacture or assemble their products. In some instances, these companies found nationalistic spirit so intense on the tariff question that American ownership had to be reduced to the minimum and American management had to be supplanted entirely by citizens of the other countries.

So, while American firms in some instances derive revenue from foreign plants, it is very small compared to what it used to be in the days when export trade direct from the United States was at its height. Likewise, American employment has been severely cut down as a consequence of the building of American plants abroad and the taking over of the export policies of such plants by foreign governments.

Hull Seeks Change
The program of Secretary Hull has been a constant effort to reverse the tide and bring back the employment to the United States. This can be done, he thinks, by gradually increasing the volume of American exports. Reciprocity itself is in the nature of a trade, but it is not what is often called barter or two-way agreement. The United States does not, for instance, agree to give certain low duties to Great Britain and not to the rest of the world in exchange for low duties for American products. Quite the contrary, if the British give the United States a low rate, the same rate applies to all other countries from which British citizens may wish to buy.

By this method, Secretary Hull hopes to bring about a gradual reduction everywhere of tariff barriers, so that, when impediments to the exchange of goods are removed, the total volume of goods bought and sold across international boundaries and oceans will be materially increased.

There are advocates of the so-called "barter" or two-way plan who insist that direct bargaining is the better method. But the United States government, under Roosevelt administration, has stuck to the universal application of tariff duties and to what is known as the favored nation principles, something which most of the governments of the world now recognize as the cornerstone of success in future trade relations, especially if economic nationalism—which fosters barter, as used by Germany for instance—is to be supplanted by a sane internationalism.

Cheesemakers, Buttermakers to Hold Northeastern State Confab

The annual convention of the Northeastern Wisconsin Cheesemakers and Buttermakers will be held at Clintonville Oct. 26 and 27. Cheese will be exhibited in four classes and prizes awarded. The classes are aged American, fresh American, Colby and Brick. Butter also will be judged. Another feature of the program will be demonstrations and preparations of cheese and butter dishes Wednesday afternoon and evening. A dairy lunch will be served both in the afternoon and evening.

Program books, including entry blanks and shipping tags have been sent to cheesemakers and buttermakers in the district. Entry blanks and tags may be obtained from A. H. Graf, Zachow. Entries must be in by Monday, Oct. 24.

The convention program will open at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon in the armory with President L. E. Koppitzke, Marion, in charge. Following community singing Max Stieg, president of the Clintonville Chamber of Commerce, will give the address of welcome with the response by C. J. Ebert, Gresham. Greetings from the Wisconsin Cheesemakers association will be given by Earl Whitting, Gillett, president. Louis Ringel, Shawano, secretary of the Wisconsin County Cheesemakers association will give the greeting for that group.

Speakers

Talks will be given by H. C. Larson, Madison; Paul Mandt, associate editor of the National Butter and Cheese Journal, Milwaukee; and Gerald Boileau, Wausau, Seventh district congressman. Committee appointments will be made.

Prof. A. Wallenfeldt, Madison, will give a talk on 4-H club work at the evening meeting following music by the Clintonville High school band. Judge Henry Graas, Green Bay, also will talk. A business meeting will follow with election of officers.

F. W. Zimmerman, Sheboygan Falls, advertising manager of the Cheese Reporter, will speak at the Thursday morning session. Other speakers will be H. G. Davis, president of the Wisconsin Cheese exchange, and George Mooney, secretary of the National Cheese Institute, Plymouth.

Speakers in the afternoon will be John Hicks, secretary of the Cheesemakers Mutual Insurance company; Ralph Ammon, director of the department of agriculture and markets; Senator John Cashman, Denmark; and Charles E. Broughton, editor of the Sheboygan Press.

The convention will close with a banquet at 6:30 Thursday evening.

Fruit Expert to Address Calumet County Farmers

Kuehner Will Speak at Chilton, St. John Wednesday

Conrad L. Kuehner, fruit specialist from the University of Wisconsin, will be in Calumet county next Wednesday to talk on the raising of new varieties of apples, strawberries, raspberries, and other small fruit, according to A. L. McMahon, county agent.

Kuehner plans to arrange a series of about four meetings in Calumet county to be carried on during the winter months covering the various phases of small fruit production.

He will talk at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon in the Chilton city hall and at 7:30 that evening in the new Woodville town hall at St. John. The fruit specialist will have specimens of the new fruit with him and will use lantern slides in his lectures. The meeting at St. John is being held for farmers from the towns of Harrison, Woodville, Brillion, Rantoul, Chilton, and Stockbridge.

Declaring that there has been a marked revival of interest in fruit growing during the last few years, Kuehner believes many Wisconsin farmers are overlooking opportunities for good profits by not engaging in this branch of agriculture.

Henry Holz is chairman and others on the committee are Mrs. Henry Riesenweber, Mrs. Anton Otto, Charles Holz, Alfred Wirth, Mrs. William Schultz and Willis Schroeder.

Offer New Course On Cooperatives

Study Includes Background, Philosophy, and Fundamental Principles

To acquaint people of Wisconsin with what the cooperative movement offers as a solution to economic problems, the department of economics and sociology of the state university extension division is offering a new correspondence study course in cooperatives.

In Wisconsin there are nearly 2,000 cooperatives, many organized in recent years. Because of the rapidly mounting statewide interest in the cooperative movement, the extension division has prepared the course to give the historical background, basic philosophy, fundamental principles, possibilities, limitations and practical functions of cooperatives and their relation to other forms of business.

The course is divided into five parts: the evolution of cooperative buying and selling; the economic philosophy of cooperative marketing in the United States; legal considerations of the cooperative method of marketing; functional relationship of cooperative organizations; cooperation in perspective. Cooperatives are dealt with objectively in this course. Little consideration is given to Utopian thought on the cooperative movement.

The 24 lessons cover such problems in cooperative buying and selling as management, financing, organizing, sales policies, pooling

Urge Cooperative Selling of Farm Woodlot Products

Method Brings Higher Return Than Single-Handed Method

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison — Farmers of Wisconsin, who realized a cash income of $4,000,000 in a single recent year from the sale of farm woodland products from their farms, can make this income several times as large through group action and cooperative marketing, the University of Wisconsin said today in a research bulletin.

Facilities for cooperative sales efforts must replace "the single-handed" deals they now make with buyers who act as intermediaries of large organizations engaged in processing timber and forest products, the bulletin said.

The 10-cent a tree return which some farmers now are getting is not reasonable income on 50 years of growth, and provides little incentive for putting more of their poorer land and steep slopes into timber, it was added.

The authors of the bulletin, agricultural economics specialists on the staff of the state school, suggested these needs:

First, assistance for farmers in organizing and promoting marketing associations dealing in forest products; second, a concerted effort to aid farmers in reaching those markets which will furnish wholesome competition for the buyers who too frequently in the past have had little difficulty in buying timber at 10 to 20 cents per tree.

The bulletin also advised that on the part of the farmers themselves "there is need for self-restraint and vision regarding the sale of woodlot products. It does not pay to sell timber if only a very low price can be obtained, and neither is it wise to cut the woodlot clean when the price happens to be fairly high. In a general way it is sound policy to sell somewhat more timber when the price is high than when it is low, but in the long run it is even more important to regulate the cut with an eye to sustained production."

4-H Achievement Day Will be Held Nov. 5

R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent, announced today that the annual Achievement day for county 4-H club members will be held Saturday, Nov. 5. The achievement committee will meet at 8 o'clock this evening to make arrangements for the program at which the achievement awards will be made.

SEES NEW PATTERN FOR FARMING

A new pattern of agriculture, as displayed on the Viroqua farm shown above, is being developed by 1,529 farmers who are cooperating with the University of Wisconsin and the Soil Conservation service in erosion control work in the state. M. F. Schweers, state coordinator for the service, reports that contour strip cropping is now in operation on nearly 30,000 acres of sloping land in the state. On the field shown above, strips of alfalfa, corn and oats seeded to alfalfa run around the slopes on the level, checking run-off and erosion. Terraces, various gully control structures, revegetation of eroding areas with trees or grass, and shifts in crop acreages to provide maximum possible protection for steeper slopes are among the devices used by cooperating farmers to keep soil at home, Schweers said.

Beet Growers in County Will Get Listing Sheets

AAA Officials are Checking Acreages and Yields

Listing sheets to record the Outagamie county sugar beet acreages and yields for the 1938 sugar beet program will soon be distributed in the county by the state agricultural conservation office.

County Agent R. C. Swanson has been notified that the listing sheets will be used in preparation of those applications for payment under the Sugar act by local beet growers whose crops are below normal for the county, or whose acreages have been abandoned. The payment will be made upon a basis to be determined and announced later by the secretary of agriculture.

In all other cases in the county, sugar beet payments under the 1938 program will be made upon a basis of the amount of sugar produced by the individual growers according to official announcement. It is expected that the rate of 60 cents per hundred weight of raw sugar paid in 1937, with the necessary deduction for county expenses, will again be paid for 1938.

Payment Rates

The average rate of county deductions for expenses under the 1937 program was 8-10 of 1 per cent. Payments to those growers in 1937 who produced less than the normal yield for the county were based upon 80 per cent of the normal yield. Payments to those 1937 growers who abandoned their fields were based on 1-3 of the normal yield.

Benefit payments, it is said, are made to beet growers in order to bring the national production of beet sugar up to its fair quota of the sugar consumed in the United States. Approximately 1900 growers with a planted acreage of 8,956 took part in the 1937 Wisconsin program. It is estimated that nearly 50 per cent more growers with a 50 per cent increase in acreage are cooperating in the program.

For Wisconsin, benefit payments are made according to the average sugar content of the beets delivered at the factory. In western sugar producing states, payments are made to each grower upon the basis of the sugar content of the individual lot of beets which he delivers at the factory.

LAUREL USES THORNS

Charles Laurel has refused to continue as chairman of the County Democracy at Rhinelander as a protest against Senator Duffy's candidacy.

Publicly Mr. Laurel declared: "We feel that he has no chance to be elected and that his staying in the race only beclouds issues between other men by far more competent and of more outstanding qualifications to serve the state and particularly its vital dairy industries."

No one in a brief sentence is going to pass Laurel in stating accurately the situation concerning Senator Duffy. The Laurel conclusion is traveling the state over. Senator Duffy hasn't any chance of reelection. The people are far from satisfied that he is the caliber of man for the exalted position he has occupied. He has seemed more than bewildered with the issues at Washington, failed to really grasp them and certainly made no impression upon either the issues or the public.

To top his record off he should run for the senate down in Texas. It is that state which is glorying in the way Mr. Duffy voted when Wisconsin's dairy industry was on the block.

FIRST ATTEMPTED AMERICAN PURGE

The fact that the United States experiences none of the purges which are such a common device in many countries for "molding" public opinion may be attributed in no small degree to a man who once held the office of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, one of the great fathers of our country, named John Marshall.

Marshall it was who sat on the bench in America's first great treason trial and established the principle that such cases shall be decided under the cold, slow and deliberate scrutiny of legal justice and not according to the momentary and inflamed whims of either one man or many men.

This was the trial of Aaron Burr, one of the greatest farces in American legal history. Yet under the conduct of a man less fearless and just than Marshall it might have been one of the nation's greatest tragedies.

The impression lingers today in the minds of many who gained their American history by axiom, that Burr was a traitor to his country. Yet that theory was exploded even in his own day and by now it has been blasted into the realm of mere folklore and gossip. One of the most interesting treatises on this subject appears in Beveridge's Life of Marshall.

Burr had as fine a record as any in the nation in those days. He served brilliantly as one of the youngest officers in the Revolution. He had been leader of his party in the United States senate, minister to France in critical times, vice president in Jefferson's first term.

But Burr incurred the wrath and envy of Jefferson when that man was ruling America with the iron hand of passionate public opinion, and any who incurred Jefferson's wrath needed strong courage and influential friends to thwart immediate doom.

Hence when Burr was laying plans for a private invasion of Mexico during the war with Spain which everyone expected momentarily, rumors arose as to the motives of his rapid movements through the west, his enlisting of men with arms, his inspiring talks with former officers and leaders of men, rumors that Burr planned to unite the west against the east for revolution. One visionary with a grudge declared Burr had told him he planned to seize Washington and assassinate Jefferson.

Jefferson was too great a politician not to seize on such a chance to seal the doom of his sworn enemy. He ordered Burr seized by the army and addressed a special message to congress, explaining Burr's conspiracy and declaring that his "guilt is placed without question." He had witnessed nothing but he just knew Burr was guilty.

Burr was seized and taken on a long march under armed guard to Richmond, Va. He was denied all civil rights and treated as a traitor already convicted. Had not the president assured the nation of his guilt? Who, indeed, would deny the President?

One can easily imagine the position of Judge Marshall as he opened the trial of Burr as a traitor to the United States when the executive head of the nation had already convicted him before public opinion.

From the time the case went to court, Jefferson's entire energies were thrown into the battle to convict Burr, for on such a conviction he considered now rested his reputation.

But it soon developed that if he could not convict Burr in the courts, at least he would attempt to convict him in the minds of the nation, and even convict the judge who would not conspire to send the innocent to prison.

"Two-thirds of our speeches have been addressed to the people," George Hay, the attorney general, declared. It was true of both prosecution and defense.

The legal case against Burr was a farce before it began; there was no evidence whatever connecting him with any conspiracy against the government. And the constitution deals with treason as it does with no other crime; it specifically states the requirements for conviction, the sworn evidence of at least two eye witnesses to an overt act.

With the result of the legal case apparent in advance, it became a moral case, Burr at the bar of public opinion.

But Judge Marshall was not concerned merely with that trial. He went to the smallest ends to be just and impartial. The verdict of the jury freed Burr.

In his opinions uttered on various legal differences of opinion over the meaning of the word treason as it was to be applied to the United States, Marshall laid down the principle which rules until this day that the charge of treason may never be used for mere personal, political reasons in this country.

That is why the prostitution of justice that one may see particularly in Germany and Russia when the shuddering charge of treason is stretched to cover every imaginable political difference of opinion, cannot be repeated here, not, at least, until you get rid of the courts. And the sound rules that were announced in the face of a President's bitter personal attack still rule today and make people safe merely because a jurist was courageous 135 years ago.

As the strength and flavor of the juice of the grape grow more mellow and vigorous with the years, so do the principles handed down to us by men of the stuff of Judge Marshall increase in value and potency.

IOWA'S GOVERNOR IN ANOTHER STRIKE

Strikers are making reelection of Governor Kraschel of Iowa an extremely puzzling matter in presenting that gentleman with some difficult problems to decide.

The Maytag strike and the governor's declaration of martial law with the prohibition against even the Elks having an initiation or three people whispering gossip over a back fence left such distaste with the public that it was not repeated at Sioux City although the National Guard was ordered there to maintain order.

The governor is wabbling, in fact he is reeling all over the lot. He says that bringing in the National Guard "does not definitely establish our policy." He should have added that he has no policy or, perhaps, he could say that he has one policy before election and another after.

The cause of the strike, however, should be of great interest to workers in general. The union officials declared that the company refused to meet its grievance committee. The company denied this statement. Anyone who wants to be fair would have a great deal of difficulty finding the truth.

But what of it? Suppose the union officials were denied a hearing? Are we so primitive in our relations between worker and employer that 500 men must be turned home from work over a dispute of this character?

Yet if anyone tries to amend the Wagner Act so that the misunderstandings that honestly arise over procedure, appointments, conferences and the like, cannot be stretched into raptures until the workers know what the quarrel is about, watch Mr. Lewis lead the administration by the nose to gang up upon any such intruder.

A Verse for Today

BEHIND THE CONVENT WALLS

Behind the convent walls
Souls flower, but do not seek
The praises of the world.
Of fame they do not speak.
Their eager questing minds
Fly heavenward to be
One with the mystic Heart
That beats eternally.

Behind the convent walls
A world lies steeped in peace.
A sheltered spot where all
Tired souls may find repose
From cares that do not stay
Where God's light footsteps fall.
The harsh world drops away
Behind the convent walls.

Behind the convent walls
The prayers of saints arise,
And surely they are heard
Behind the clouded skies.
The world is torn with doubt:
False gods confuse our gaze,
But with unshaken faith
A kneeling sister prays.

NO FACTS, PLEASE

The reluctance of the Democratic members of the TVA investigating committee to explore the highly technical fields of yardstick making may be quite justifiable. It would be most unfortunate if the investigation, which was prompted by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan's sensational charges of incompetence, waste and inefficiency, should degenerate into a seminar on yardsticks. Yet the yardstick idea is basic in the TVA experiment, and so cannot be considered an impertinent irrelevance. If the idea has been horribly bungled by those who were charged with carrying it out, it would seem important that

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

Aboard S.S. Cosmo, Homeward Bound—Incident at Sea: It was nearly noon, the day was Saturday, and the S.S. Cosmo, homeward bound to New York from Puerto Rico, shut down her engines. Off her bow, about five miles, and coming forward against a sombre sky was her sister-ship, the Borinquen, out of New York for San Juan.

A life boat swung out on its davits from the top deck, two Puerto Rican sailors working frantically with mauling spikes to keep the boat from smashing to pieces against the Cosmo's side as she was slowly lowered into the sea. One of the long poles split and broke, and the sailor snatched up an oar in its place, until finally the boat's bottom lay upon the water.

From the side of the ship a rope ladder was dropped. Down it, into the life boat, went more sailors and a ship's officer wears a life preserver under his white coat. Behind him came four youths, peaked from sickness, and wrapped in life belts. One of them, hardly more than 16, behaved flippantly. The officer, angered, told him to "shut up or I'll lay an oar over your head." The boy shut up.

With difficulty, the crew pushed the life boat off and began pulling away toward the Borinquen, which was now close by and was steaming slowly. The sea was moderate, but the small boat pitched a great deal. The Cosmo's passengers, lining the rail, must all have had the same thought: "What if we had to put out to sea, all of us, in a boat like that, and with land no nearer than 700 miles!"

The lifeboat finally pulled alongside the Borinquen. From the Cosmo we could see a rope ladder dropped to it. One by one the four youths who had been taken off the New York-bound Cosmo were hauled aboard the Puerto Rico-bound Borinquen.

The life boat fought its way back to where the Cosmo, its engines still idle, waited. The rope ladder was dropped, and the officer and all but two of the sailors climbed back aboard. The life boat then was hauled back on deck and was swung into its cradle.

The interlude had lasted nearly an hour. Stowaways are an awful nuisance.

It is not always possible to handle stowaways so efficiently. If the sea is rough, no steamer will risk putting a small boat over the side. The stowaways will be carried to the boat's destination and then returned on the next boat.

There were ten stowaways aboard the Cosmo when it left San Juan—a stowaway to every nine passengers. Six were discovered before the boat got out of San Juan harbor, and the Cosmo promptly stopped and waited for a motorboat to take them off.

For the most part, they are a sassy lot. They have learned that even when caught, nothing very terrible happens—not even a day or so in the hoosegaw. The Cosmo stowaways were on deck mingling with its paying passengers the night before, and if I'm not mistaken they were even betting two-bit pieces on the afternoon horse race held aft on B deck.

Bad spelling isn't confined to the temperate zone. The little cards they give you on ship-board as a reward for your horse in the "horse race" have printed on them the name of the particular steed upon which you are wagering. Being a cynical soul, I wagered on a horse spelled "Hurricane." The card spelled it "Hurricane."

But that's nothing. The Government of the United States puts out a press release through its $40,000,000 Puerto Rico Reconstruction Administration, and spells the name of Captain Kidd with only one "d" in a dozen places. I'm always so happy whenever anybody else shows himself up as a poor speller. It makes me feel less ashamed of myself. I've practically had to give up all written references to hors d'oeuvres, on account of I never can learn to spell it.

10 YEARS AGO
Friday, Oct. 19, 1928

E. P. Alesch of Appleton was elected to the board of directors of the Wisconsin Association of Real Estate Brokers at the Thursday session of the association convention at the Schroeder hotel at Milwaukee.

Thirty women attended the first general meeting of the Appleton Woman's club at the club rooms Thursday. After the luncheon, Miss Carrie E. Morgan, assistant superintendent of public schools, spoke on her trip abroad and Mrs. L. J. Marshall gave a report on the woman's club convention at Wisconsin Rapids. The luncheon committee included Mrs. Mabel Shannon, chairman, Mrs. Frank Wright, Mrs. L. C. Sleeper, and Mrs. L. I. Marshall. Flowers were donated by Miss Myrtle Hart.

Kenneth Corbett, secretary of the local chamber of commerce, was to leave Saturday for Nashville, Tenn., to attend a meeting of commercial club secretaries.

Friday, Oct. 24, 1913

The November issue of the Popular Mechanics magazine contained an article on a cycle-motor invented by Frank Pfeiffer, a young man of Appleton. He won a prize for the design of the vehicle intended for children.

The Appleton Post Office was doing a larger parcel post business than Eau Claire. Reports from the latter office showed 6,155 packages were handled from Oct. 1 to 15 while 7,372 were handled here.

Charles Wilcox, formerly a reporter on The Crescent and then on the staff of the Milwaukee Journal, was in the city for a short visit and to attend the Lawrence-Boldt game Saturday in which the state championship was at stake.

The committee determining that fact. But when it was suggested that TVA witnesses explain to the committee how the TVA fixed its retail rates, Senator Donahue of Ohio, a Democrat, objected. He served notice that he would "fight any move to put information into the hands of the utilities which would help them wreck the TVA."

Thus we have the curious spectacle of a TVA investigator deliberately seeking to suppress information about the TVA on the grounds that such information might be used by the TVA's enemies, to destroy it. Are the facts, then, so damning that the utilities could employ them to wreck this New Deal experiment?

If they were creditable to the TVA, it is logical to suppose that Senator Donahue, as a New Dealer, would be eager to spread them on the record. But the Ohioan exhibits anything but a consuming eagerness for the yardstick facts. He does not want TVA witnesses to tell how rates are fixed; he does not want the committee to judge for itself whether the yardstick has any accuracy or value as a rate measuring device.

Mr. Donahue's conception of an investigating committee is quaint, to say the least. So far as he is concerned, we gather, such a committee exists to cover up facts which might in any way discredit the agency investigated. But if the senator were investigating the utilities, would he also "fight any move to put information into the hands" of those who seek to wreck them? There is a possibility, of course, that Mr. Donahue would, yet it is one of those possibilities which we should not care, because of its minuteness, to study with the naked eye.—Minneapolis Tribune.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—(A)—An American corporation has a contract with the German Zeppelin company to lease a Zeppelin for trans-Atlantic traffic—if and when it can shake 20 million cubic feet of helium gas from the tight clutches of Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

The contract under which this arrangement was reached is one of the unexpected things drawn up in the drag-net law enacted by the last congress. It requires the registration of all agencies in the United States which have foreign connections.

The company with the contract is American Zeppelin Transport, Inc., of New York. There is nothing secret or sinister about its contract with the German Zeppelin company. Its whole purpose, as outlined in the contract made public by the state department under terms of the alien-agency roundup, is to launch a transatlantic Zeppelin service with an American company sharing in the business on a fifty-fifty basis with the German company.

The Hope for Helium Incidentally, the contract indicates the company still has hope that Secretary Ickes—or a later secretary—will reverse the action of a year ago which denied American helium to Germany for use in the Zeppelin service.

At that time Ickes held that helium placed in the hands of Germany would be available for war service, contrary to the law which specifies that it could be sold abroad only for non-military purposes. The law was enacted immediately after the Hindenburg disaster when 36 persons burned to death in the explosion of the big bag of hydrogen gas.

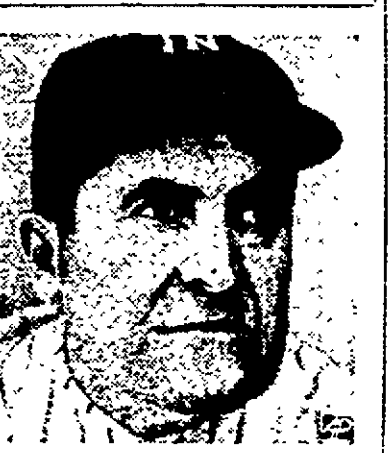

The contract lapses as soon as the American company feels there is no hope of getting the 20 million cubic feet of helium necessary as a starter. Although Ickes repeatedly has reiterated his refusal to allow Germany any helium, the American company still holds the contract valid. In fact, technically it can keep it alive until 1942. Since President Roosevelt's second term ends in 1940, a new secretary of the interior with different views may be in office by 1942.

Could Build Zep In U. S. Under terms of its contract with the German company, the American Zeppelin Transport may lease a Zeppelin; buy one in Germany or even build one here.

The German company is obligated to supply Zeppelin experts if a ship is to be built here, as well as to train an operating crew for the American vessel regardless of where the U. S. company gets it. The American company already has contracted with the German company to lease a German ship at a rental of 1,633,000 Reichsmarks (about $550,000) a year. That contract also is valid only "if and when" the American company can get 20 million feet of helium, of which the United States has a virtual monopoly.

There is one unique clause in the contract. It provides that neither company may sign a contract for landing privileges in other countries unless both companies are allowed that privilege. In other words, the American company could not arrange for landing privileges in England or France unless it also obtained that privilege for the German company.

RAY PICTURES REDUCED

Small X-ray photographs are now possible through a new method perfected by a German scientist connected with the X-ray Institute in Bonn, Germany. This was demonstrated before a small group in Bonn. Previously it was possible to make X-ray pictures only in the same size as the organ X-rayed. Now it is claimed photographs can be made with film dimensions of 9x9 centimeters and even 2x2.5 centimeters. The new method is said to have the X-rays pass through the body onto a special screen which can then be photographed in any size desired. The previous way was for the X-rays to be projected direct on a photographic plate. The new process would greatly decrease the cost of such photographs.

AND SO ONE THING LEADS TO ANOTHER

Your Birthday

"LIBRA"

If October 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m.; from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m.; and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m.; from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m., and from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m.

Be prepared to let nothing startling scare you this day. By investigating you probably will discover that nearly every fear has no foundations. Stealthy movements may arouse unpleasant suspicions, so avoid tiptoeing or moving in a noiseless manner. This is a good day to direct your business and social conversations along impersonal lines, for the average person is apt to be adverse to discussing personal affairs. There may be a strong desire for privacy, especially among intellectual people. Poor lighting perhaps will be responsible for any depressed feeling you might have. Slips of memory, in all likelihood, will be due to a propensity to day-dream, or to complete absorption in the making of plans. Married and engaged couples, and those with a deep sentimental attachment, must refrain from flatly contradicting anything said, unless they have ample proof that they are justified in doing so.

If a woman and October 22 is your birthday, be careful not to get into the habit of being abrupt. Develop your sympathetic and affectionate nature. You seem due to accumulate a wealth of knowledge or money, and attain an enviable social position. You might find people slightly older than yourself more congenial than those who are of your own age. Poetry, music, art, literature, educational or social welfare work, as well as the stage, may provide you with a line of activity that will bring you renown and happiness. You may be able to attribute most of your good fortune to a wise selection of a husband.

The child born on October 22 probably will be a home-loving youngster. Children born on this date must be encouraged to make friends and to take an active interest in sports and games.

If a man and October 22 is your natal day, whatever talent you have is apt to be recognized and used advantageously. As a physician, actor, scientist, office manager, salesman, journalist, author, artist or contact man you should easily climb the ladder of success.

"DREAM" HOMES FOR SALE

Two mansions begun by John A. Holmes, a wealthy stockbroker of Glasgow, Scotland, to satisfy two ambitions which were never realized, are offered for sale following his death. Holmes spent $1,000,000 on the projects. One, containing 60 rooms, near Bishopston, was to hold his valuable collection of art and antiques. The other, in the West Highland village of Arisaig, was beside a tropical garden on which he spent $100,000. Auctioneers found a Gainsborough painting in a stable of the Bishopston mansion. The collection there contained art works by Van Dyck and Reynolds, a $75,000 Persian rug, and other valuable pieces. Temporary financial reverses halted completion of the art mansion years ago, death stopped the tropical garden "dream."

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

IS THIS PERSECUTION

In a backwoods hamlet in Pennsylvania lives a man who doesn't believe in vaccination. The man refused to have his young son vaccinated. When the son tried to enter the public school in his district the school authorities refused to admit the child to school.

You know the way the racket is worked. Under a sort of reciprocal statute or law the authorities then had the man where they could put the screws on him. They arrested him for failing to keep his child in school! The man took it on the chin, refused to pay a fine, went to jail for five days.

That rigamarole has been worked many times in the past year or so and the man has spent more than a year in jail rather than give in to the trick politicians who are responsible for the sorry joke, and still they have accomplished absolutely nothing for the benefit of the community.

Not even the most brazen medical politician, health commissioner or sanitary officer can cite a just or adequate reason for such persecution of a citizen. No intelligent or honest physician can maintain that it matters one little damn whether that man's boy is vaccinated or not, that is, to any one else than the boy and his parent or guardian. If all the children who are admitted to school are vaccinated, if all the teachers, school janitors and others, who visit the school are vaccinated, what is there to worry about, even if some one with smallpox should come to school and expose everybody? Nothing at all, if we are sincere in our belief and teaching about smallpox and vaccination. We believe and teach that vaccination protects one against smallpox. If we are properly vaccinated ourselves, surely we are not concerned about coming in contact with any one who has not been vaccinated, or even with any one who is actually coming down with or ill of smallpox.

That the health authorities of the particular community where this wretched persecution is carried on, do acquiesce in the shameful performance is hard to believe. Are they, the medical and health authorities in Pennsylvania, so subservient to the politicians and the crooks that they haven't the decency or honor to speak out and lend the weight of their authority to the reform of the vicious laws that permit that sort of travesty?

I have received several appeals from persons associated with the defense of the man under persecution—they asked me to volunteer to testify. But these appeals have been mixed up with other propaganda of which I do not and cannot approve, so I have not responded to the appeals.

If the medical profession and the sanitary profession desire to retain the confidence and good will of the American public we can ill afford to perpetrate any such tricks as these Pennsylvania authorities are perpetrating in the name of public welfare.

City Park Board Adopts Budget of $18,000 for 1939

Represents Drop of $3,000 Through Other Use of Earnings

A 1939 budget of $18,000, the amount appropriated to run the parks this year, was adopted by the board of city park commissioners. Even though the amount received from the city next year remains the same, the board will be short about $3,000, the net amount earned by the golf course this year and used for park purposes, Erik Madison, secretary of the board explained.

The course earnings will be applied against the cost of land being purchased this fall to develop an additional nine holes at the municipal links so the board actually has cut its budget $3,000.

The principal item in the new budget is for labor for which about $10,000 will be apportioned to park employees for all city parks and the golf course. Other items include materials, $2,500; bonds and interest, $3,500; water, light and repairs, $1,500.

Madison said improvements in the parks will not be curtailed because of the reduced budget because of the $140,000 WPA project being carried on for which the federal government is furnishing the money for labor. Materials are paid for by the city.

If all the titles are cleared up on the land for the addition to the municipal course, work will begin in a few weeks, Madison said. Cost of the land, labor and materials for development has been estimated at between $15,000 and $17,000.

The board also authorized the president, E. B. Ruchow, to go ahead with the plans to erect a garage, storeroom and shop building at Pierce park. The work will be done under WPA. The new structure will house park equipment and trucks and will provide a place to repair equipment.

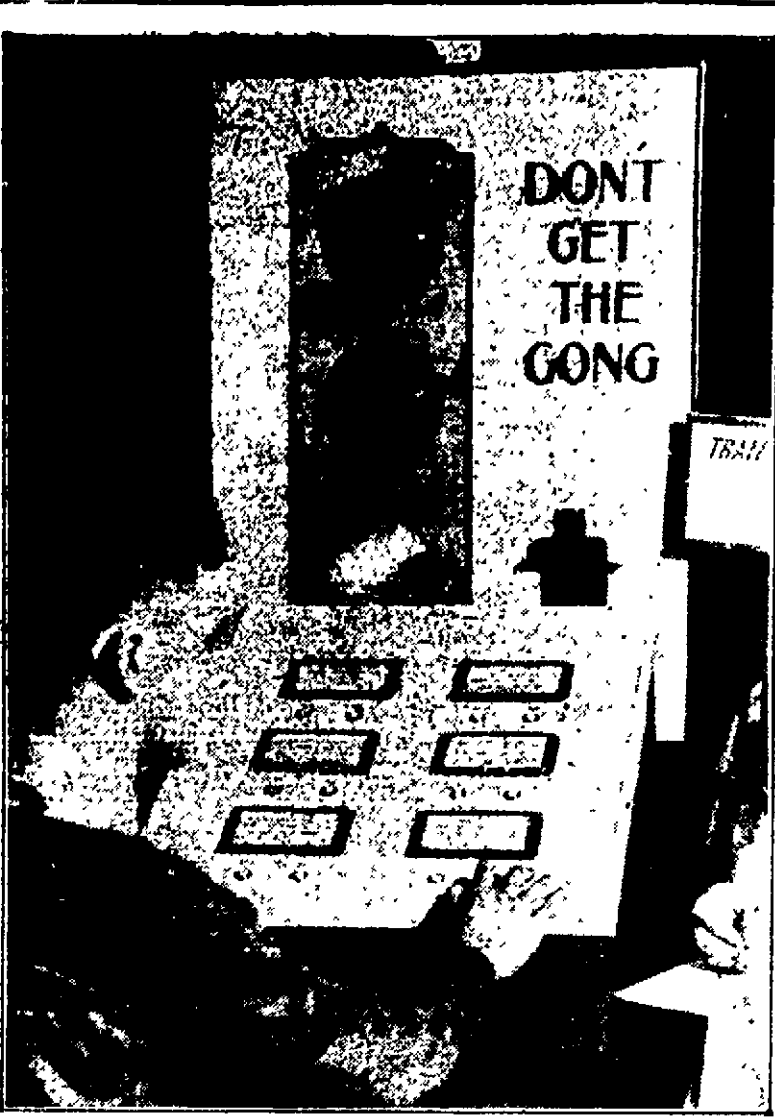

McKinley School Will Give Amateur Program

Forest Junction—A program of amateur talent in reading, speaking, singing or playing is being planned by McKinley school to be given in the town hall here on Friday evening, Oct. 28. Volunteer entries on the program are being reported to Mrs. Marjorie Lindemuth, teacher, with adults eligible for participation as well as children. Proceeds from a nominal admission charge to the hall and from a sale of homemade candy are to be used in the purchase of a radio receiving set for the school.

Complete Collection For School Seed Chart

Collection of seeds for a seed chart has been completed at the Spring Brook school, town of Cicero, according to Miss Bernice Ziegl, teacher. The first and second grades are working on a community project. Pupils perfect in attendance during the first six weeks of school are Delores, Howard and Audrey Madison, Marian Zulger, Robert and Elaine Gagnow, Roger Matuzak and Frank Klotbach.

A Halloween party will be held Friday evening, Oct. 28 at the school.

HIT THE GONG? THEN YOU'RE WRONG

Entertaining and instructive, this "traffiquiz" is used by the state highway commission in its scientific drivers' clinic to test the motorist on safe driving practices and Wisconsin traffic laws. Each driver answers six questions, which may be varied by the operator. A correct answer lights the green lamp on the traffic signal. One error turns on the red light, two the amber lamp and three will ring the gong. The machine will be one of the 10 demonstration devices in the drivers' clinic to be conducted at the courthouse under supervision of Captain Charles Steidl of the county traffic squad and Harvey Mohr, of the state highway commission. The "traffiquiz" may be taken by any motorist on Oct. 27, 28 and 29.

Wise Men Take Good Look at Girl's Mother Before Marrying

BY DOROTHY DIX
Said an old man to a young one: "Pick out your wife by her mother. Before you ask any girl to accompany you to the altar take a good, long, careful squint at her mother, for as the mother is at 45 so in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred will the daughter be. Virtually every mother is a close-up of daughter at middle age. See if you like the picture."

DOROTHY DIX
housekeeping. She has been bred to no traditions of neatness and order and she doesn't know good food when she sees it and she will poison her husband on her biscuit, and throw more out of the back door with a teaspoon than he can put in at the front door with a shovel.

"Likewise take note of how Mother treats her husband. If she sneaks him, beware. If she shows him no consideration or tenderness, pause, look and listen. If she regards him as merely a slave to be used for her behoof and benefit, flee for your life, for this is the way daughters have been taught to treat a husband. But if Mother is still a sweetheart to her husband; if she exalts him in his own household and sees that he gets the best of everything, then rush with that girl to the parson because she will make a household pet of you."

"Don't pop the question to a girl until you have been off on some sort of a trip or excursion with her. That will give you some idea of her personship. Any girl can be so sweet and amiable that butter wouldn't melt in her mouth as long as everything is smooth sailing and going her way. But marriage is full of storms and rough going, and there are plenty of times when a wife has to give up her pet plans and do somebody else's way, and what you want to know is whether she will meet the situation with tears, or laugh it off."

"It would save about 50 per cent of the divorces if bridal trips could be taken before marriage instead of afterward, for travel brings out the true spots in a disposition as a hot poultice brings out the measles. So watch out for the girl who blames the weather on you if it happens to rain; who gets sulky and glum if a train is late, or there is a puncture in an automobile tire; who can't eat unless she can get just the kind of food she wants; who monopolizes the best of everything and gets hysterical over every little misadventure."

"Be warned in time. She is a rotten sport and the man who marries her will spend the remainder of his life apologizing for things he never did, and working himself to death to try to please one who is never satisfied with anything. She will make the kind of a wife who complains that she can't have all the luxuries that rich women have; who pities herself for being tied down with children, and leaves her husband flat if he loses his money or his job."

"When you marry, get off on the right foot, for the way you start is the way you will go on to the divorce court or the grave. If you commence by making a doormat of yourself, your wife will walk over you and wipe her feet on you. If you let her run you in debt for gilt furniture and near-Persian rugs, you start housekeeping, she will keep you nose to the grindstone. If you let her cold-shoulder your family and friends out of the house and make you furnish an alibi when you are five minutes late for dinner, the time will come when you will be afraid to invite your own mother to come to see you, and you will have to ask permission to go to the corner drug store to get a package of cigarettes."

"Train your wife in the way you want her to go and she will not depart from it. Teach her to regard you as a human being with a few rights and privileges, even if you are her husband. When a man is a nonentity in his own home it is his own fault."

"Keep your wife busy if you want her to be happy and contented. Give her plenty of good constructive work to do that will make her feel that she is of some real importance in the world. Men think they are being kind to their wives when they support them in idleness. Never was there a greater mistake. It is the women who have nothing to do but to kill time who are the neurotic invalids who enrich doctors, the silly women who get into messes with cicadas, and the pre-vious, fretful, complaining wives who make their husbands' lives a burden to them."

"And finally, son, always use the salve-spreader instead of the hammer in dealing with your wife. Bear in mind that you can lead a woman anywhere, but you can't drive her an inch. To tell a woman of her faults is simply to confirm her in them, but to praise her for some virtue she does not possess will make her break her neck trying to attain it."

"If you tell your wife that her new hat makes her look like a figure of fun, you have to pay for your indiscretion by buying her another one. But if you tell her how becoming her last year's bird's nest is, she will cheerfully wear it another season. Never bat your wife's extravagance. Boast of what a financier she is and she will pinch every penny. Never throw up your mother's cooking to your wife. Proclaim from the houseposts what marvellous angel food she makes, and that her coffee is nectar for the gods, and she will burn herself to a cinder over the gas range to live up to her reputation."

"Managing a woman is the easiest thing in the world, son, if you will

Halloween Menu

If the family frequently complains about the sameness of meals be sure to use every festive occasion to add color and variety to your dinners and luncheons.

Halloween soon puts in its annual appearance and affords you a golden opportunity to make meals more interesting.

Whether you plan a party or not, here are several recipes that you can use appropriately when making meals for the family.

Sweet potato oranges are well suited to Halloween time or to any autumn meal. Pork loin roast is particularly nice with this colorful accompaniment. Try the jack-o'-lantern salad it is very effective for the occasion. Pumpkin ice cream is an appropriate dessert yet one which you may use throughout the autumn and winter.

8 sweet potatoes 1 teaspoon salt
8 oranges 8 marshmallows

Cut a slice from the top of each orange and scoop out the pulp. Scalloped the edges of the orange baskets. Mix the hot mashed sweet potatoes with some of the orange pulp, add butter and salt. Fill oranges with the mixture and place in the oven to heat. Several minutes before serving top each basket with a marshmallow and allow marshmallows to melt and brown. Place the sweet potato oranges around the roast on a large platter.

Jack-o'-Lantern Salad
2 cups diced apples
1 cup diced celery
1 cup broken Currants
1 cup broken Strips of pimento
nut meats Mayonnaise

Combine apples, celery and nut meats. Moisten with mayonnaise dressing and place a mound of the salad in a nest of crisp lettuce. On the mound of salad place a half canned peach with the round side up, insert currants for the eyes and nose and a thin strip of pimento for a mouth.

Pumpkin Ice Cream
1 quart thin cream
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup brown sugar
1 1/2 cups pumpkin (1 No. 1 vanilla)

Make a custard of the cream, sugar, spices and salt. When slightly thickened, add the pumpkin. Heat thoroughly. Cool, add vanilla. Freeze either in an ice cream freezer or in a mechanical refrigerator. Serves six to eight.

Scalloped Table
Dear Mrs. Post: I am giving a lunch party in a club in honor of three friends. One of them is moving away, another is visiting a friend of mine, and the third has just returned from a trip around the world. I have to seat the guests—about two dozen—at two tables. It is the divided table that bothers me, because I don't know quite how to seat the guest of honor. Will you tell me, also, who sits at the head of the second table?

Answer: I would seat the one who is moving away on your right, and put the one who is visiting on your left, because she is a stranger in the community. (If she were a stranger who had come to live in your town, she should be on your right instead of the one who is going away.) The third guest of honor should be seated at the head of the second table, since her friends will certainly be eager to see her and hear her news!

When Shall Hostess Leave Table?
Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me how long a hostess should wait after the last guest has finished eating before she rises to leave the table.

Answer: She should rise as soon as she notices that every one is ready to leave the table.

Leftover cooked celery blends well with other vegetables for fritters. It is also good added to clam fritter batter.

One-half of a cup of grated cheese added to a waffle recipe produces a waffle which is delicious served with any kind of creamed meat, fish or fowl. It is suitable for either luncheon or supper.

To save time and confusion when serving a buffet luncheon or supper, have the guests serve themselves from the main table. Then direct them to card tables arranged about the room. Coffee, rolls, and dessert may easily be passed.

Questions to Be Answered By Pure Logic

(This newspaper will present Appleton bridge playing boards to all readers who attain master ranking in the national bridge examination.)

As I stated yesterday, this self-rating examination is a test of general knowledge and therefore Culbertson players will not be favored over the followers of other systems. Every question will be answered on a basis of pure logic.

Later on I will discuss the close questions in this column, hence I ask examinees not to argue with me through the mails until such time as it appears that I have passed up the query they had in mind.

Remember, if you want me to rate your answers and, when the exam is over, send you a certificate of merit if you have earned a good score, you must mail each week's answers (in one batch) to me, care of this newspaper. Post your envelope before 5 p.m. every Sunday.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Question 7: You are West, declarer at a three no trump contract. Your hand and dummy are as follows:

DECLARER	DUMMY
♠ A 10 2	♠ Q 7
♥ K Q 4	♥ J 7 3
♦ Q J 9 2	♦ A 10 8 6 3
♣ A Q 9	♣ K 8 4

North's opening lead is the six of spades. What card do you play from dummy, and why? (One sentence will be sufficient for the explanation.)

TODAY'S HAND
North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH	EAST
♠ 8 5	♠ 9 7 4 3 2
♥ 7 6	♥ 8 5 4 3 2
♦ A K Q J 9 6 4	♦ 5
♣ A 6	♣ 7 3

WEST	EAST
♠ K Q J 10	♠ 9 7 4 3 2
♥ K 10 9 8	♥ 8 5 4 3 2
♦ J 9 7 2	♦ 5
♣ A 5	♣ 7 3

SOUTH	WEST
♠ A 6	♠ 9 7 4 3 2
♥ A J	♥ 8 5 4 3 2
♦ K Q 10 8 6	♦ 5
♣ 10 8 2	♣ 7 3

The bidding:
North East South West
3 clubs Pass 2 no trump Double
Pass Pass Redouble Pass

After learning about North's solid club suit (the new Culbertson convention is that an opening three bid in a minor suit shows an absolutely solid suit) South would have been better advised to contract for seven clubs rather than seven no trump. But in this case the latter contract, redoubled, worked out very nicely.

The title of this hand might well be "The Magnanimous declarer," because a curious thing happened on the opening lead. West, in detaching the spade king, happened to let the heart king also fall on the table! West was horrified at this accident. By the rules, both cards became exposed! He could, of course, select the spade king as his lead, but the heart king would remain subject to call. West immediately started to mope about the declarer's "uncanny luck," volunteering that the contract "never would have had a chance without the accident, because he, West, had the diamond suit stopped." North had spread his hand as dummy the moment the two cards hit the table, and now declarer, after a rapid survey, smiled benignly on West, and with a lordly wave of the hand, said: "O go on. Pick up the heart king!"

West, stunned and hastily accepted the offer, but his relief was short lived. The spade ace won and declarer immediately laid down the heart ace. Seven clubs then were rattled off. For the last four cards declarer retained his A K Q 10 of diamonds. When West had to discard to the last club he suddenly saw the light. He could not let go the heart king without establishing dummy's heart queen, nor could he let go a diamond without giving declarer four diamond tricks.

"You certainly were big hearted!" he growled at the declarer.

TOMORROW'S HAND

Neither side vulnerable.

Old Gardener Says:

Undoubtedly the best lily for the home garden is the Royal, which is now planted to a greater extent than any other kind, although it is comparatively new. This Chinese immigrant blooms in July, having large white trumpet-shaped flowers, flecked or flushed with pink. It is very fragrant, especially in the evening, and in time one plant will produce from thirty to fifty flowers. It should be planted now where it will be protected from cold winds in spring. In fact, it needs protection from the wind at all seasons, because it is inclined to be top heavy and is readily broken off.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Many amateur prospectors have been tricked by fool's gold. And many young married couples have been tricked by the same glittering prospects dangled in front of their eyes by generous but short-sighted in-laws. Roy almost bit on this same tempting bait.

CASE L-147: Roy J., aged 22, is a former student of mine. "I have an old problem with several twists to it," he smiled as he sat down in my office.

"In the first place, I am engaged to a nurse who is 25 years older. We are in love with each other and want to get married."

"My brother and his wife want us to go together with them and rent a large apartment. I owe my brother a lot of money and it is hard up, so I could thus help meet the expenses for him as well as for myself."

"At present I am making $85 per month. My sweetheart makes about $125 per month as a nurse. "Now, Dr. Crane, what should I do? Do you think this age difference or 3 years is too great? And what would you advise regarding our renting a large apartment jointly with my brother and his wife?"

DIAGNOSIS:
Age doesn't mean much of itself. It is simply a rough indication of maturity and experience. But some men at 22 have more maturity than others at 30.

It has been customary for the husband to be older, if any age difference exists. Economic conditions underlay this custom, for a boy of 18 could hardly have earned enough to tempt the girl's parents in the days when men bought their wives.

Even today, a young fellow is at a distinct economic disadvantage. A man of 30 may own an automobile and have money in his pocket. A fellow of 18 can hardly own a car. Unless he double dates with somebody else who has an automobile, or unless his parents lend him the family car, he must offer a bus ride against his older rival's classy ride.

Hints For Brides
In picking a husband, don't pay attention to the man's age as much as to his emotional stability, his courtesy and true unselfishness, his honesty and perseverance in a job, his ambition and moral attitudes.

Better pick a $10 per week clerk who is ambitious and studying at night for better jobs up ahead, than marry a wealthy playboy who will be really as helpless as an infant about supporting a wife, if his family fortune should suddenly melt away.

A bride may safely be three or four years older than her husband if he is careful not to tease her too much, especially when she reaches 31 while he is only 28, or when she is 41 while he is 38.

Honeycomb Alone
Wouldn't it be idiotic for the mother-in-law to go along on the honeymoon? Well, it isn't more stupid than for the young couple to start housekeeping with the in-laws.

I vetoed Roy's idea about the large apartment. If he owes his brother money, then set aside $50 per month or some other convenient sum and pay off his debt.

But start housekeeping ALONE. Even if you are so poor you have to eat out of tin cans and use coffee tins for cooking, live ALONE! Don't be tempted by the generous offers of your in-laws. Resolutely say "No, thank you."

If you must live with the in-laws, do it later on. But reserve the first six months to yourselves. Send me a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope in care of this newspaper if you wish my TESTS FOR HUSBANDS.

asked for those deficiencies. Nobody is to blame but himself, and those marks are his, not ours. They won't be changed until he changes them."

"Such people! A poor child has to lose a college education because of just a little thing as that. Can't you just take your pen and change them?"

There are people who think that a high school student's marks are granted or withheld at the whim of a teacher. They never are. The mark a student gets is what he worked for; every time. Before a mark is recorded a student has a chance to review his paper with his teacher and if she has made a mistake, have it corrected. Few such mistakes are made, and when they happen, are corrected promptly.

Marks are not given as favors. They are records of performances. Such performances are a reflection of the power of the student in that particular field on the day the test was taken. If he got a low mark that day his power was low, and that is all there is to it. No teacher can give a student power, and of course she cannot change the record of that power once it has been made. The student has it in his power however, to do better work and get a better mark on the next occasion.

Changing a student's marks does not change the quality of his mind nor the character of its work. When parents ask to have marks changed they are asking for something that nobody can bestow — power for their child. The child must grow his own power by earnest devotion to work. There is too much of this slighting effort and trying to win success by influence, prayers and tears. The trick won't work.

Now and then somebody slips past without having earned his way. He holds a false position, for a time, and then down he goes. Water wings never supply the power a strong swimmer needs. The marks must be earned and the power grown, with pain and sturdy effort.

Round of Homecoming Social Activities at Lawrence Will Include Open Houses, Dinners

THE Lawrence-Carroll football game, feature of the homecoming weekend, is almost buried beneath the round of social activities which have been planned for Saturday and Sunday. Open house affairs after the game, alumni dinners, the homecoming dance and fraternity meetings will give the college its busiest social weekend since school opened this fall.

About 35 invitations have been sent to older Delta Tau Delta alumni inviting them and their wives to the cocktail party which Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Kiochn, 126 E. Alton court, and Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Benton, 824 E. Minor street, will give after the game, from 5:30 to 7 o'clock, at the Kiochn home. Both Dr. Kiochn and Dr. Benton are members of the fraternity.

Later the group will attend the general alumni dinner at 7 o'clock Saturday evening at the Conway hotel. The Fox River Valley Lawrence Men's club is sponsoring the dinner, Edwin West is in charge of reservations and E. J. Powers is arranging the program, which will include the singing of fraternity songs, probably song contests between the fraternities and introduction of a few of the older alumni.

Between 150 and 200 persons are expected.

Alexander gymnasium is being decorated with dancing silhouettes and a modernistic bar for the homecoming dance Saturday night. During the intermission the homecoming cake will be cut for the heroes of the day, and gold cups for the best house and float decorations will be presented. John Bodilly, Green Bay, homecoming chairman, will make the announcements.

Semi-Formal Dinner

A semi-formal dinner before the dance will take place at the Delta Sigma Tau fraternity house Saturday evening. Marshall Hubert and Dr. and Mrs. W. A. McConaha have been asked to chaperon.

On Sunday the same fraternity will have open house, the householding corporation alumni meeting and a smoker.

Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity will be host at open house after the game.

Beginning tonight meals will be served at the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity house to any of the fraternity's alumni who happen to be in town. Between 35 and 40 are expected in the course of the weekend. Activities and alumni of the fraternity will have dinner together at the Valley Inn, Neenah, on Saturday, and Sunday noon the group will have its annual alumni dinner at the house.

Open House

Zeta Tau Alpha and Alpha Delta Pi sororities will entertain at open house for returning alumnae after the football game Saturday afternoon in their rooms at the Pan-Hellenic house.

Also planned for immediately after the game is the reunion for active and alumnae of Xi chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota sorority, to be held from 4:30 to 5:30 in the Dean's studio at the Lawrence Conservatory of Music.

Phi Delta Theta fraternity will have open house after the game, and a number of the returning alumni are expected to remain for the dinner to be given Sunday night at the Conway hotel in honor of Dr. William Chalmers Covert, former province president of the fraternity.

Kappa Delta sorority will observe Founders' day with the traditional service and a banquet Sunday evening at the Hearstone Tea room.

Oconto Host to Institute for Woman's Clubs

MRS JAMES B. WAGG, district chairman of club institute for the Eighth District Federation of Woman's clubs, is conducting a club institute today at Oconto, the third of a series of five to be held in the district within the next few weeks. Clubs present at the institute are from Peshtigo, Coleman, Oconto, Oconto Falls, Gillett and Pound.

Mrs. Edgar V. Werner, Eighth district president, and Mrs. George R. Wetengel, chairman of adult education for the district, are attending the institute also. Yesterday a club institute was held at Niagara with clubs present from Niagara, Florence, Dunbar, Amberg and Wausaukee, and the rest of the series took place Wednesday at Cranford with women present from Cranford, Hiles, Laona, Soperton, Wabeno and Forest county.

The two remaining institutes will be held at Algoma Nov. 2 and Kaukauna Nov. 4.

Mrs. Clarence Miller, 1822 S. Oneida street, was hostess to the Bazaar club Thursday night at her home. Cards were played and Mrs. Theodore Calmes won the high and traveling prizes. The club will meet Nov. 2 with Mrs. John Minsky, E. McKinley street.

Miss Doris Koehnke, Miss Lucille Lillige and Miss Hattie Vandenberg won the prizes at bridge when members of their club met for dinner and bridge Thursday night at the Copper Kettle. Miss Lila Radtke will be hostess to the club next week.

The "T" bridge club met last night at the home of Mrs. Roger Emrich, 1121 N. Oneida street, winners being Miss Helen Melver, Miss Viola Schmidt and Mrs. Arlin Jennerjahn. The club will meet in two weeks with Mrs. Walter Meyer, 1728 N. Appleton street.

The Thursday club was entertained yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Beaulieu, 120 W. Foster street. Prizes at cards were won by Mrs. Charles Selig and Mrs. Peter Dietzen. Mrs. Lewis Welson, 430 E. Lincoln street, will be hostess at the club's next meeting.

Mrs. Martin Goss, 152 W. Foster street, entertained her bridge club Thursday evening, prizes going to Miss Betty Dietzen and Mrs. Milton Schott. Mrs. Stanley Gross will be hostess to the club Nov. 1.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 50), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells. Just get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a reliable "WOMAN'S" tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. Pinkham's is WELL WORTH trying.

Select Committee to Outline Club Program

A committee to work with the officers of the Appleton High School Commercial club and to map plans for the club's program in the auditorium was appointed at a meeting Wednesday at the high school. Students on the committee are Audrey Childs, Myrtle Laedike, Rita Toon, Dorothy VanHandel and Jean Voss. Virginia Gow was named to write an amendment to the club's constitution making the election of a historian.

Pageantry Feature Of Peace Program With Mrs. Roosevelt

Colorful pageantry characterized the Peace week program at which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, first lady of the land, spoke last night at Columbus Community club in Green Bay. From the first notes played by a massed band composed of members of high school bands from East and West Green Bay and East and West De Pere, to the speaker's appearance, to the final bars of "The Star Spangled Banner" and "On Wisconsin," the program was run off smoothly and precisely, incorporating all the ceremony and official pomp befitting the visit of the wife of the president of the United States.

The audience was well dotted with Appleton people since local groups cooperated with the Brown County Educational association in sponsoring the celebration. About 100 persons from here attended, among them delegates from Daughters of the American Revolution, American Legion auxiliary, George D. Eggleston Relief corps, auxiliary to the G. A. R., and Harvey Pierre auxiliary to Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Following Mrs. Roosevelt's talk on "Peace" at the Columbus club, she received members of Beta Sigma Phi sorority from Appleton, Green Bay and Shawano as well as chairmen of arrangements for the appearance of Mrs. Roosevelt at an informal reception at the Northland hotel, among those present being Mrs. William Nemacheck and Mrs. H. F. Scherzinger, Appleton, who were co-chairmen of the women's committee in Appleton. Zona Gale Breese, Wisconsin writer from Portage, was present also.

Footie and Mrs. A. F. Zuehlke, second with 94.

The tournament will be continued next Thursday night, play beginning promptly at 7:45.

Miss Iturbi Is Sensation In Her Debut

A whirlwind of excitement has attended the meteoric rise to fame of the Spanish pianist, Amparo Iturbi, who will appear on the Community Artist Series Wednesday evening.

The public, several years ago, accepted her talented brother Jose and has now accorded her a place of honor in the musical world. The press, filled with glowing accounts of her Detroit debut, spoke of "an artist of gifts above the usual," "full-spirited vitality," "artistic likeness to her famous brother," and "belongs in the top flight of pianists of her sex."

After her debut, she appeared as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra at Robin Hood Dell and again the press was enthusiastic. In commenting on her performance of the Schuman Concerto, a Philadelphia paper said: "Miss Iturbi spared not the spirit nor the gusto to prove her prowess. She whisked through the lovely passages of this work with the true artistry of a capable and polished pianist. Her tones were round and full. Her tempo was pleasing and her fingering was swift and sure... She definitely established herself as a welcome relief from the horde of would-be professionals who have punctured this self-same piece with bombastic and futile fingering. The little lady from Spain has something, we predict."

Miss Iturbi will present the first concert of the Community Artist series Wednesday evening at Lawrence Memorial chapel. The program is scheduled for 8:30.

Chaplain Is Speaker at K. C. Session

THE duties of both clergy and laity were stressed by the Rev. C. B. Vanden Borne, chaplain of Father Fitzmaurice council, Knights of Columbus, in an address entitled "What Makes a Society a Catholic Society?" at the meeting of the council last night at Catholic home.

Father Vanden Borne outlined three points dealing with his subject, pointing out that clergy and laity must work together, that the laity has a duty which cannot be performed by the clergy, and that the church expects its members to instruct themselves and to promote the glory of God.

Eight members of the local auxiliary to Wisconsin Paid Firemen's association were guests at a Halloween party given by the New London auxiliary Thursday afternoon at New London. Mrs. George Humblet was hostess. The Appleton women present were Mrs. Emil Schwahn, Mrs. John McLaughlin, Mrs. Alvin Belke, Mrs. Chris Deltgen, Mrs. Edwin Kline, Mrs. Louis Hintz, Mrs. Nick Reider and Mrs. William Hillman. Mrs. Hintz won the schafkopf prize and Mrs. Hillman the dice award.

Harvey Pierre auxiliary to Veterans of Foreign Wars will sponsor an open card party at 8 o'clock next Thursday night at Eagle hall. Schafkopf, bridge, dice and rummy will be played and Mrs. Frances Kemp will be chairman.

Mrs. Walter Bogan, Mrs. Arthur Slater and Mrs. Patrick Ferguson represented the auxiliary at the Peace week address by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in Green Bay last evening.

A Halloween costume party is planned for the meeting of the junior group of the Appleton branch, Equitable Reserve association, at 2:30 Saturday afternoon at Moose hall. New officers for the coming year will be appointed at the short business meeting which will precede the party. Games, refreshments and Halloween surprises will take up the rest of the afternoon.

Evangelical Rally Slated for Sunday At Forest Junction

A sub-district group of Appleton district Evangelical churches, including the Brillion, Forest Junction and Reedsville fields, will have a group rally at Zion Evangelical church, Forest Junction, Sunday afternoon and evening.

The afternoon service at 2 o'clock will be devoted to the interests of the Woman's Missionary society. The evening service at 7:30 will be devoted to discussions of Sunday school and Christian Endeavor activity. Ministerial and lay speakers and singers from the fields in the group appear on the program for addresses and special music.

The Rev. A. H. Nickell, Brillion, is chairman of the committee making the arrangements. The 31 fields on the Appleton district, similarly divided into sub-district groups, are having rallies at central locations in the respective groups this fall.

Mrs. Herman Schade, 1024 W. Packard street, entertained the Social Welfare circle of St. John Evangelical and Reformed church Thursday afternoon at her home. The women made aprons for the December bazaar. The next meeting will be Nov. 17 at the home of Mrs. Robert Boldt, 1618 W. Lawrence street.

320 Persons Served At Harvest Dinner Arranged by Corps

About 320 persons were served at the public harvest dinner given Thursday noon at Elks hall by the Women's Relief corps of George D. Eggleston post, Grand Army of the Republic. Pumpkins filled with corn flowers and bittersweet, gourds and red oak leaves decorated the tables. Heading the various committees for the affair were Mrs. Bertha Reck, kitchen chairman; Mrs. Kate Wheeler, dining room chairman; Mrs. Augusta Sanders and Mrs. Lillian Trenlage, publicity; Mrs. Lydia Bauer and Mrs. Amelia Bomier, tickets; and Mrs. Marie Cavert and Mrs. Bomier, decorations. Mrs. Amanda Pfeil, Mrs. C. B. Peterman, Mrs. Greta Zschachner and Mrs. Allabelle Grignon acted as hostesses.

Mrs. Marie Cavert and Mrs. Patrick Ferguson represented the corps at Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's lecture in Green Bay last night. Inspection will take place at the next meeting of the corps, on Nov. 3.

Mrs. J. H. Schumann, W. Lorain street, entertained the Jolly Six club Thursday afternoon at her home prizes going to Mrs. Al Petrie and Mrs. Leo Reider. On Nov. 4 the club will meet for a 1:30 luncheon at Stein's tea room, Oshkosh.

The Misses Marie Ziegenhagen, Emma Schwandt and Anna Helm will comprise the entertainment committee for the meeting of Appleton Girls club tonight at Appleton Woman's club.

Vocational School To Start on Monday Evening at Kimberly

Kimberly — Vocational school will start at 7 o'clock next Monday evening with classes in engineer drawing for Millwrights, beginners' typing and wood craft. Tuesday evenings will be devoted to knitting; Thursday evenings to beginners' English; and Tuesday evenings to engineer drawing for machinists.

Wood craft will be given the first 16 weeks, and will be followed by a 16 weeks course in sewing. Miss Mary Elton Klatt will be in charge of the sewing; Mrs. C. Jurgenson, beginners' English; Henry Patch, wood craft; Mrs. Esther Weitenman, knitting, and Freeman Nichols, engineer drawing. Registration was held at the school Monday and Tuesday evenings.

A one-act play was given in the assembly of the school during the activity period Thursday. The cast included: Clarence De Wildt, Tommy Tuttle; Marion Anderson, Marjorie Tuttle; Joyce Krueger, Mrs. Tuttle; Norma Rusch, Doris; Madeleine Williams, Evelyn Granger; Quentin Williams, Billy, and Elsie Brum, Bertha, the colored maid.

The women of the Holy Name parish will sponsor the first of a series of card parties at the clubhouse Sunday evening. Schafkopf, bridge, rummy and dice will be played. About thirty women are in charge.

Discusses British, French Policies

Prof. McMurray Stresses Developments Since World War Ended

Wausau — The second of the Lions service club forums to be held this month took place at the Wausau High school library Thursday evening. Discussion of the "satisfactory" policies in Europe was led by Prof. H. J. McMurray of the university extension division. He drew in brief outline the picture of French nation-statehood since 1648 and her continental supremacy since that time with the exception of the years from 1815-1918.

Since the World War, he says, France has been praying for security from "the blonde beast" and has used the League of Nations to choke Germany. On the other hand, he pictured Great Britain trying to persuade France to "go easy" with the conquered Germans, this being a subtle English means of checking France to build up a balance of power.

Prof. McMurray declared that Great Britain destroyed her own best customer in the World War and could not attain normalcy thereafter because of it. Germany herself was bereft of pride, territory and prestige; she found herself with a very inferior army and an inferiorly complex after Versailles. The whole world combined forced Germany into a revolution, said Prof. McMurray, and the underdog is growing now and showing his teeth. The "Munich so-called peace" will have terrible repercussions, the lecturer believes. He added that the mere "breath of force got what it wanted" this first time, and educational statesmanship is apparently failing. Every nation is "stepping up arms," our own included.

In event of war the least price we can pay for neutrality is regimentation; there can be no laissez-faire isolation, he said. "We, however, have always fought at the drop of the hat and though we could avoid another war, we probably won't."

Prof. McMurray will talk next week on Italy and Russia.

Church Mortgage Is Burned By Congregation at Marion

Marion — Members of the Methodist church and their friends witnessed the burning of the church mortgage Wednesday evening.

There was a sermon by the Rev. T. E. Schlagenhauf, superintendent of the Appleton district. Those taking part in the ceremony were the Rev. W. H. Wiese, pastor of the church; Emory Rogers, superintendent of the Sunday school; Tom Rogers, president of the Epworth League; Mrs. P. C. Rogers, past president of the Guild, and Bernie Mayan, official of the building finance committee.

The American Legion post has started a membership drive which will be ended Nov. 11.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Rogers returned home Wednesday evening from Baraboo, where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Rogers' father, Mr. Henry Gropp.

Ed Bertram and Henry Kussman were business visitors at Stevens Point Thursday.

The only jurymen chosen from the town of Dupont for the October term of court is Arnold Gruentzen. There was none from the village of Marion.

Women from Marion who represented the Evangelical church at the Federation of Protestant church women at Clintonville were Mesdames H. Ehrlicke, John Gollnow, Emil Braun, Paul Pockat, E. A. Lau and Raymond Braun.

The Young People's society of Salem Evangelical church will present a program at the Evangelical church at Clintonville Sunday evening.

Albert Klomp, Sr., Rites Are Held at Clintonville — Funeral services for Albert Klomp, Sr., 60, were conducted Thursday afternoon at the residence and at St. Martin Lutheran church by the Rev. W. O. Speckhard. Interment took place in the Town Line cemetery. Sons and a son-in-law of the deceased were the pall bearers.

Born in the town of Caledonia, south of New London, Feb. 23, 1869, the deceased came to this community at the age of three weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Klomp, pioneer settlers here. His marriage to Miss Ida Froelich took place 41 years ago, after which they located on a farm in the town of Matteson, about two miles east of Clintonville. They retired from farming six years ago and since that had resided at 68 Brix street.

Each of 2 Women
Accused Other of

Sheriff Testifies Against Tennessee Hitch-
Hikers

Fairfield, Ill.—(AP)—Sheriff Ernest Burkett, testifying in the trial of two Tennessee women hitch-hikers, charged with the murder of a 58-year-old farmer, said today each had accused the other of firing the fatal shot.

He told how Mrs. Jean Brooks, 28, of Elizabethton, and Mrs. Beulah Honeycutt, 23, of Johnson City, were brought together after, he said, the younger woman had given an oral version of the slaying of Felix Shannon in his Mount Erie home Aug. 21.

The sheriff said he told Mrs. Honeycutt, a buxom blonde, the story her companion had related, accusing her of killing the farmer after he had picked them up in southern Indiana and had brought them to his Illinois home.

"Beulah turned to Jean and said, 'that's all true, except you fired the shot instead of me,'" the sheriff testified. "Jean replied, 'you're telling a lie. I don't know how you have the heart to say that.'"

Mrs. Brooks, in her oral statement, the sheriff said, told how Shannon met the women at Princeton, Ind., Aug. 20, while he was taking his 8-year-old son, Carlyle, to the boy's mother at Somerville, Ind. The Shannons are divorced.

Shannon left the women at Oakland City, Ind., and stopped for them on his return trip, Burkett related. He said they spent the night in a rooming house in Princeton and the next day drove to Mount Erie. Shannon took a gun from his automobile and killed a chicken for dinner that night.

After Shannon and the women had gone to bed, the sheriff said Mrs. Brooks told him, Mrs. Honeycutt arose about midnight, went to the car and got the gun. A few minutes after she had returned to bed, she whispered, "is he asleep?"

Mrs. Brooks told him, the sheriff continued, that her companion then rose up and fired a shot into Shannon's head.

Silenced By Judge

At this point in the sheriff's testimony, Mrs. Brooks, who had been following the recital with emotion, arose in the courtroom and cried, "I didn't say that. They've damned me ever since I've been here." She was silenced abruptly by Circuit Judge W. Joe Hill.

Continuing the story he said the tall, slender woman had given, Sheriff Burkett told how she jumped out of bed and shouted to her companion, "Good God, what did you do that for?"

Shannon's body still was twitching and the sheriff said Mrs. Honeycutt fired a second time.

Mrs. Brooks told him, the sheriff continued, that her companion forced her to take the gun and ordered her to fire another shot. She said she aimed past Shannon's head and fired into the pillow.

The women fled from the house, after Mrs. Honeycutt had taken the farmer's wallet, Burkett said. They drove off in his automobile, but left it after they had run off the road into a ditch a short distance away.

Walking through fields

Finding only $2 in Shannon's wallet, Burkett said the women walked through fields and the Washburn bottoms to Albion, Ill., where they took a bus to Princeton. From there, they hitch-hiked to Henderson, Ind., Evansville and to Hopkinsville, Ky., where they were arrested Aug. 23.

Farmer-jurors trying the two women were ordered to consider Mrs. Brooks' statement as evidence only against her and not against Mrs. Honeycutt, because it was not made in her companion's presence.

However, Judge Hill ruled Sheriff Burkett's account of the face-to-face meeting of the women in the Fairfield jail Aug. 27 could be considered against both of them.

Births

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jost, Stockbridge, today in St. Elizabeth hospital.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Buxton, 401 DePere street, Menasha, today in St. Elizabeth hospital.

VIKES STEAL HITLER THEME FOR HOMECOMING DECORATIONS

With all of the world admitting that if you want to go places you must adopt the tactics of one Herr Hitler, who is doing things in Europe, Lawrence college men living at Brookway hall, adopted a Hitler theme for their homecoming decorations. So above you see Herr Hitler grabbing off most of the world and as representative of Lawrence, grabbing off a few football players, the cock-eyed one in his left hand being Carroll. Lawrence meets the Carroll football team Saturday afternoon in the feature attraction of the homecoming celebration. (Post-Crescent Photo) fire over which Carroll in effigy will be thoroughly burned, the program proper will begin at 7:45. There'll be talks by President Thomas N. Barrows, F. N. Belang, representing Appleton towns-people and the chamber of com-merce, Coach Bernie Haselton of the football team, Co-Captains Joe Maertzwiler and Albert Novakofski, Russell Flom, Menasha, represent- ing the alumni, and Jack Bodilly, general homecoming chair- man. Bob Leverenz, pep chairman, will be the master of ceremonies.

Parade About 8:30 P. M.

With completion of the pro-gram, or about 8:30, the throng will move back to College avenue and begin the annual torch light parade down an aisle of blue fire on the avenue. The line of march will be to Superior street and thence south where the torches will be tossed on a pile and the students deploy to the Rio and Appleton theaters where they will be admitted on showing all-college tickets.

That ends the Friday program but chances are there'll be all kinds of whooping and yelling around the campus far into the morning.

GET TICKETS EARLY

Because indications are a record crowd will attend the Lawrence-Carroll homecoming game tomorrow, college officials have asked tickets be secured down town if possible. The tickets are on sale at the Johnston book store and the Pond Sport Shop. There will be a reserved section on the north and south sides of the field centering on the 50-yard line. There are no individual reserved seats.

City officials have announced that John street, closed for paving this fall, will be open tomorrow.

That one of the men at Appleton Coated Paper company mill who is boasting that he caught a mouse in two installments doesn't know until he reads this that his fellow workers "put up a job" on him. The victim of the joke set a trap in the mill yesterday to catch a mouse, but before he could get around to discovering his catch, some of the "boys" got there first and removed the dead mouse, amputated its tail and left that portion of its anatomy caught in the trap. When the trap-setter saw only the tail in the trap, he assumed that the mouse, finding its tail caught, had chewed it off in order to escape. He told his story to his fellow workers and stated that he would like to catch the rest of the mouse in the trap last night, and when the trapper found his prey this morning he was convinced that Mr. Mouse had returned to the scene of his first indiscretion, this time to lose his life, not just his tail.

That enthusiasm over the Lawrence college homecoming game with Carroll Saturday has advanced to the stage where aldermen have devised a yell and have elected Alderman Robert DeLand cheerleader for the city officials' section. The mayor, city officers and aldermen will attend the game in a body.

and the Sons of the Legion drum and bugle corps. Carroll will sit on the south side of the field, Lawrence on the north.

Between halves the two college bands will parade and Lawrence and Appleton city officials will cross the field in an aisle formed by the band members, to extend greetings to Dr. W. A. Ganfield and Carroll college officials. There also will be a bleacher stunt with cards at the east end of the field, with Lawrence students taking part.

After the football game, the various alumni evening social events and the alumni dinner are scheduled. Thereafter there will be the annual homecoming dance at new Alexander gymnasium.

Carroll May Parade

Just about the time the Viking parade is over, Carroll college will arrive on a special train. The Carroll band will be with the students and school officials and there probably will be another parade.

The afternoon program will begin about 1:30 when the crowd starts for the football game. The band will be at the game. Lawrence, Carroll and Appleton and persecution which followed it."

cycles, jinkikishas and trucks piled high with refugees' belongings.

The International Settlement, Shameen island, resembled a small fortress with sandbags everywhere. Japanese tanks were said to have penetrated Canton past the Canton hospital to a point opposite Sham-cen.

American consular authorities at Shameen advised the Hong Kong consulate that "a general exodus is in progress, indicating the Chinese decided not to defend the city."

Earlier official reports said parts of Canton were burning as the result of the dynamiting of factories by the fleeing officials.

The Japanese unit which entered the city encountered little resistance in the ten days' fighting over land from Bias bay. The Japanese said they lost only 40 killed and 100 wounded at Waichow, where the heaviest fighting occurred, while Chinese casualties were estimated at 1,400 at Waichow.

MINES IN RIVER

Shanghai—Chinese sent a flood of floating mines down the Yangtze river today in an attempt to hold off Japanese gunboats pushing rapidly toward Hankow, provincial capital and objective of the central China campaign.

The United States gunboat Monocacy, stationed near Kiukiang, narrowly escaped collision with one of the mines, which lodged at the shore a short distance from her anchorage. The Monocacy shifted quickly out of the danger zone.

Japanese said that, despite the oncoming mines, increasing numbers of gunboats continued the thrust toward Hankow. Their guns, in support of land forces, swept the shorelines some 35 miles downstream from the city.

Units of the gunboat fleet were said to have passed Oeheng, 35 miles from Hankow.

The southern overland column was said to have captured Tayeh, 40 miles southeast of Hankow, and pushed on to the iron mining district to the north.

The northern column was reported by Japanese to have captured Kishui, strategic Chinese outpost 55 miles from the Hankow goal.

Jolin Advocates Boost
In Old Age Pensions

Gerald Jolin, Democratic candidate for assembly from the First district, told members of the carter union Wednesday night that "citizens of advanced age are entitled to decent living in their declining days and it is the duty of the community to make the necessary provisions for their care and maintenance."

Jolin, speaking in the Appleton Trades and Labor hall, praised the present old age pension provisions in the state but advocated further pension legislation providing payments which will enable people of advanced age to "live in the decent American way."

Attorney E. O. Gilday, who lives next door to the Olsens, said he heard the sound of five shots. They seemed to have been fired deliberately, Gilday said, explaining there were brief intervals between the first four and a longer time before the fifth was fired.

Mrs. Benson was wounded five times. Three bullets struck her in the neck and throat. One entered the abdomen and a fifth pierced her left side.

Ease Cure of Narcotics Addicts

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

New York—(AP)—A hypodermic in the spine to make the cure of drug addicts easy and painless was reported today to the congress of anesthetists.

The hypodermic is an anesthetic causing "nerve block," a form of anesthesia often used in surgery to render a portion of the body insensible to pain.

This sort of nerve block, M. B. Greene, M. D., of Brooklyn, declared, frees narcotic addicts during their first few days of abstinence from the nervous shock, excitement and mental upsets that accompany withdrawal of morphine.

The nerve block was used on the splanchnic nerves. These control the automatic movements of the stomach and abdominal organs.

In his experiments, Dr. Greene stopped the narcotic completely af-signed to WPA projects provided they are still in need, he said.

Another exception is that new hiring may be done in unusual cases where there is a need for skilled workmen to complete a job already started.

Flanner said re-employment in private industry had not been as rapid as was anticipated and WPA accordingly employed a much larger number of persons in the last few months than expected.

Even though there should be an accelerated movement of WPA workers to private jobs the "no hiring" order will remain in effect, since WPA has no specific quota.

Flanner estimated that about 700 WPA workers are returning to private employment weekly. The practice until now has been to replace these with new applicants.

Expected to Prevail
Saturday

Freezing temperatures were experienced in Appleton and vicinity last night and more of the same is anticipated tonight with generally fair and colder weather predicted for Saturday.

The mercury in the thermometer on the roof of the Post-Crescent building struggled up to 58 degrees at noon today while highest and lowest temperatures during the 24 hours preceding 9 o'clock this morning were 57 degrees at 3:30 yesterday afternoon and 37 degrees at 5 o'clock this morning, according to records at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Maximum and minimum temperatures in the nation yesterday were at Phoenix with 86 and Yellowstone with 26, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Workmen Will Begin
Widening Erb Street

Widening of Erb street north of Wisconsin avenue will be started by street department workmen Saturday, according to Alfred Wickesberg, city engineer. The work was authorized by the city council about a month ago. Grading and graveling on Cherry court will be completed today and the crew will be transferred to Erb street, he said.

Schedule Dances for Students at Clubhouse

Appleton High school students have been invited to attend the Friday Night dance which will be sponsored by the Sons of the American Legion at the Legion clubhouse tonight.

Another dancing party for students will be held at the clubhouse Saturday night. Features of the dance will be a Jitterbug contest and a floor show.

Council of Religious Education Meets Today

The Appleton Council of Religious Education will meet this afternoon at the Appleton Y. M. C. A. to discuss the curriculum of the weekday school of religion. Today's meeting will be the first of the year. Dr. John B. Hanna, pastor of the First Congregational church and president of the council, will preside.

Teachers Will Attend
Vocational Conference

A group of 12 teachers from the Appleton Vocational school will be in Madison tomorrow attending the state adult homemaking conference. Dora M. Rude, state homemaking supervisor, and Dr. George P. Hambrecht, state director of vocational education, will be among the speakers.

FRIDAY NIGHT'S GAMES
Appleton at Green Bay East.
Oshkosh at Marinette (Non-conf.).
Green Bay West at Fond du Lac.

SATURDAY'S GAME
Sheboygan Central at Manitowoc.

APPLETON High school grid-ers will invade Green Bay East this evening for their second experience with talent from Packertown. And with reports current that East is as good if not better than West, the outlook isn't too bright.

The Terrors will enter the game in perfect physical condition as result of two weeks' rest, and if that means anything they should give the Red Devils a battle. Appleton also will be bigger, almost man for man, than East but the Bays are blessed with all kinds of speed and run off the tackles and throw passes equally well.

East, like West, has won three conference games and hasn't been scored upon. However, its biggest defense is its ability to hold the ball which makes the other team's offense more or less useless.

Green Bay West goes to Fond du Lac in the other conference game this evening. West rolled over Appleton and the Terrors trimmed Fond du Lac which would indicate another win for West.

Oshkosh draws Marinette in a non-conference opponent this evening. The other conference game is scheduled tomorrow when Manitowoc battles Sheboygan Central with the Shipbuilders heavy favorites.

Redskins (1)	854	836	936-2626

Little Chute—The Eagles emerged as leaders in the Combined Lox Mill bowling league this week after taking two games from the Redskins at Wonders alleys. However, their lead may not last long for the Cardinals, in second place, are only a game behind. Three teams, the Giants, Lions and Bears are tied for third, fourth and fifth honors.

It was the great bowling of Jack Strick that helped the Eagles into first place. He rolled a 601 series with a 223 as top game. B. Mulry was right behind Strick with a 221. For the Redskins, Charles Block rolled a 230 game while Flora Stueler took series honors with a 561 which isn't bad bowling for number of the fair sex. The Redskins claimed total pin honors however with 2,626 against 2,609. The Redskins only win was with a 936, high for the week.

Packers won the odd game from the Rams with M. Killian rolling a 583 series, and a 213 high game. Hall had a 205. E. Frieders a 203 and Joe Meseras a 200. For the losers, B. Plank had a 544 series, and 216 series.

Bears Win Two

The Bears clawed the Giants for two games their first win coming by five pins, 925 to 920. The Bruins were out-rolled in the team series count, 2,612 to 2,609. For the Bears, Johnny Vanden Burt had a 567 series and a 203 game. Charles Ehlike had a 573 series with a 200 game and E. Feldhahn a 213 game for the Giants.

The Lions copped two games from the Cardinals. The winners were led by Bill Schuler with a 227 game while Bill Erickson took high series honors with a 595. He had 21 and 212 games. R. Jansen had a 227 game. For the Cardinals, Schumaker had a 215 game and a 204 and a 581 series.

Charles Block's 230 was top individual game and Jack Strick's 601 high series. Redskins rolled the best team game, 838, and the Lions the best series, 2,691.

Driscoll to Use Heavy Men Against Texas 11

Milwaukee—Driscoll—Players who tip the scales near the 200-pound mark will be regarded with favor today by Paddy Driscoll, Marquette university's football coach, as he tapered off drills of his Golden Avalanche eleven for Saturday's game here with Texas Christian.

ROMANO CATCHES PASS AS YEARLINGS BEAT ST. NORBERT

Here's a little of the action in the Lawrence frosh-St. Norbert frosh game yesterday at DePere which the Viking hopefuls won by a 6 to 0 score. Bob Romano of the Lawrence squad has just caught a forward pass but as you can see he didn't get very far because of the St. Norbert yearlings descending on him. The play occurred in the second quarter. (Post-Crescent Photo)

By Gordon H. McIntyre

THIS IS ONE WEEKEND we wish we could pass up football guesses for the simple reason that we can't truthfully offer good news to Appleton or Lawrence fans. But we started this racket and we're expected to continue it. So once more, out on the limb and then hope it isn't saved off too often.

Lawrence-Carroll—We started the season with the remark Lawrence would be good so long as injuries didn't catch up with the team. But the Vikes have played three big teams and a goodly number of the boys are hurt. We don't like to dampen homecoming enthusiasm but if Lawrence wins this one some of those guys should be deified.

Appleton-Green Bay East—If the Terrors make a half way showing against East it'll be the ability to fight like fury, snag a long pass or get off a long run through individual ability. New London-Menasha—Menasha has come back after stumbling at Shawano. Right now it appears headed for second honors. Therefore, Menasha.

West DePere-Neenah—Looks like a close one, a very close one. So we'll pick Neenah and hope the Rockets don't let us down.

St. Mary-Kimberly—The Saints beat Little Chute twice and Kimberly bowed to the Saints. It looks like the Saints by a squeak. And it's a good thing the game is Saturday; we won't get a ribbing from those Kimberly kids.

Green Bay West-Fond du Lac—If Fondy thought East was tough, wait until it gets through with West.

Sheboygan Central-Manitowoc—Manitowoc is riding a wave of enthusiasm; over a couple wins and probably will get another boost in this game.

St. John High-St. Norbert High—The Chuters sort of battered up their coach the other evening and should carry on against the Norbertines. St. John.

Oshkosh-Marinette—Don't know a thing about the Marines. Oshkosh has been getting better. Maybe it's Oshkosh's day.

Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech: Conquerors of Holy Cross, masters now of Bill Kern's Pitt football system and longtime jinx for the "Fighting Irish" Carnegie Tech believes it can win this one. Nevertheless, this ball, strictly unguaranteed, goes to Notre Dame.

East-Michigan: In the conviction that Michigan is one of the country's best teams, this goes to Wolverines.

Harvard-Dartmouth: The Harvard-As may have won moral victories over Cornell and Army but the payoff still is on the outfit which scores the most points. Dartmouth.

Fordham-Oregon: The Webfoots are strong, but Fordham, with one big game finally under its collective belt, rates the call.

Stanford-Southern California: None figures closer than this. The coin says... Southern California.

Georgia Tech-Auburn: Very little to choose but Auburn seems to be hitting its stride and gets the nod.

Pitt-Southern Methodist: Couldn't pick anybody but Pitt.

Cornell-Penn State: Cornell, handily.

Penn-Columbia: Two of last weeks upset victims collide and the selection, out of the hat, is Columbia.

Navy-Princeton: Purely a shot in the dark. Princeton.

Iowa-Colgate: Colgate's done so well against major opposition that the Red Raiders seem to rate an edge over Iowa.

Michigan State-Syracuse: Hard to see how Syracuse can hold its peak here; therefore, Michigan State.

Illinois-Northwestern: Northwestern to squeeze past Illinois' rugged defense.

Purdue-Wisconsin: Ennie meenie... Purdue.

Indiana-Kansas State: A virtual toss-up but the coin says Indiana.

Ohio State-Chicago: Should be easy for Ohio's Buckeyes.

Oklahoma-Nebraska: Nobody yet has found a way to halt the Sooners. This probably will be close but the choice is Oklahoma.

Maryland-Kansas: Apparently nothing to worry Iowa State.

Marquette-Texas Christian: Marquette spilled one Southwest conference team but it would be a minor miracle if Christian failed to win here.

Louisiana State-Vanderbilt: This represents cruel and unusual punishment for the selectors. A possibly mistaken vote of confidence in L.S.U.

Rice-Texas: Can this be the spot where Rice finally is going to win one?

Washington-California: California, breezing.

Santa Clara-Arkansas: The Broncos will need to man the airways against Arkansas' pass-conscious Razorbacks. Santa Clara.

Oregon State-Washington State: Oregon State.

U.C.L.A.-Idaho: Very close, U.C.L.A.

Dorais Will Try New Score Theory

Method Abolishes Extra Point; Ties Decided On Yardage

Detroit—Charles E. (Gus) Dorais, veteran head coach at the University of Detroit, advocates settling the entire argument over football's point after touchdown by abolishing it and counting a touchdown seven points.

Dorais would settle the scores by ruling the team which makes the most yards from scrimmage the victor.

The Detroit coach has made tentative arrangements to try out the theory Nov. 27 when his team meets Santa Clara at Sacramento. Buck Shaw, Santa Clara Coach, is willing to cooperate, it was understood here.

The plan provides for an official scorer who would keep a record of yardage gained.

If such a change were eventually made in intercollegiate football rules it would no longer be possible for one team to lose a game by a single point after outplaying an opponent.

Those who object to the point after touchdown contend it results in too many games being decided by incidents variously described as luck, technicality or accident.

University of Michigan fans argue the Wolverines would have beaten Minnesota last week if the Dorais plan had been used. The final score was Minnesota 7, Michigan 6. Many other games have gone the same way.

CARY OIL BURNERS continued to set the pace in the Women's City league with a 3-game triumph on high team scores of 832 and 2,434 during matches at Arcade alleys last night.

G. Koerner blasted a 222 game and C. Nooyen collected a 558 series for individual honors.

Arcade bowlers fell before the onslaught of the Cary Oil Burners which was headed by A. Mundinger with a 551 series and M. Tornow with a 209 game. L. Leaders was high for the losers with a 202 game and 502 series.

Adler Brau grand slammed Schaefer Dairy as H. Glasnap totaled 520 and M. Butler uncorked a 206 game. I. Radtke topped the losing quint with a 455 series.

Three games went to Belling Drugs as G. Koerner rattled the maples for her 222 game and 554 series in a match with Kolosso Garage. A. Kolosso rolled 491 for the losing squad.

Win Odd Game

Metropolitan Cafe won the odd game from Heinie's Tavern as D. Stark pounded a 477 series. C. Eichinger showed a 463 series for the Tavern quintet.

C. Nooyen spilled a 213 game and 558 series as State Restaurant won two games from Polka Dots. A. Muench paced the losers with a 217 game and 524 series.

Two games were credited to Automotive Supply in a tilt with Oaks Candies. L. Klebonow thumped a 535 series and G. Ashman blasted a 543 total for the winners while D. Wentworth grooved 462 for the Candy team.

Carroll Favored Over Lawrence Tomorrow

Viking Freshmen Down St. Norbert By 6 to 0 Score

Frank Nencki, Milwaukee, Gallops 68 Yards For Marker

BY GORDON MCINTYRE

DEPERE—A 68-yard run by Frank Nencki, Milwaukee Bay View freshman, gave Lawrence college yearlings a 6 to 0 victory over St. Norbert college frosh here yesterday afternoon. The gallop came in the second period when Nencki went off his left tackle and legged it down the sidelines to score. The win enabled the Vikings to avenge a defeat suffered last year at Appleton.

Coach Ade Dillon used about 20 yearlings during the battle and they revealed that Lawrence has some pretty fair talent—if it comes back next year. The squad was slow on defense at times but that was expected in view of the fact it works only a short time each week.

Defensively it gave St. Norbert yearlings very few yards. As a matter of fact the future Green Knights were stopped dead until the final minutes of the game when a couple passes clicked and carried the ball into Vike territory. On several other occasions the Saints threatened briefly by recovering Lawrence fumbles. Both squads fumbled often but Lawrence was the worst offender.

Nencki was the standout performer for the Viking yearlings with Romano second. The former got away for several long gains with his touchdown run the feature.

Bay East Boys Star
For the Green Knights, Legener and McCartin of Green Bay East were outstanding. The latter was injured, however, and had to leave the game. Legener tossed the St. Norbert passes and was the most consistent ground gainer.

The game was watched by a fair group which included President Thomas N. Barrows, Dr. Louis Baker and Coaches Bernie Heseltin and Art Denney of Lawrence, and the Rev. A. M. Keefe, dean, and the Rev. Thomas Fox, director of athletics, of St. Norbert.

They had plenty of time to talk over things in general and sports in particular and while there were no "hot" news stories forthcoming, more than a few persons expressed the hope the game and the gathering would lead to something members of the yearling squad, not all of whom played yesterday, are as follows:

Ends
John Lingel, Winnetka, Ill.; Herbert Kirchhoff, Chicago; Robert Perry, Milwaukee East; Alfred Oliver, Appleton; Ralph Colvin, Appleton; George Stewart, Milwaukee Bay View; Fred Atkinson, Milwaukee Rufus King; Robert Vogt, Appleton.

Tackles
William Weiss, Chicago; Allen Stafford, Neenah; David Spalding, Menasha St. Mary; Robert Dykes, Chicago; John Kohl, Appleton; John Messenger, Green Bay.

Guards
Alan Floran, Chicago; Clyde Coenen, Neenah; Perry Powell, Milwaukee East; John Roddy, Chicago; Ross Schuman, Chicago.

Centers
Robert McIntosh, Milwaukee East; William Dope, Barabough; Harry Sheerin, Menasha St. Mary; Harold Borcz, Neenah.

Halfbacks
Frank Nencki, Milwaukee Bay View; Frank Hammer, Appleton; Robert Dolner, Milwaukee East; John Killoren, Appleton.

Quarterbacks
Robert Romano, Milwaukee East; Paul Hayden, Green Bay; Charles Pruett, Appleton.

Fullbacks
Francis Bradford, Eagle River; Harold Boysen, Harvey, Ill.

Two games were credited to Liethen Grains in a match with Outagamie Mills as Al turned on the heat with games of 289 and 214 for his big count. Forster bolstered the attack with a 240 game, Bob Liethen rattled 203, Daniels bagged an even 200 and H. Liethen came through with games of 200 and 207. Grishaber smashed a 581 series and 200 game and J. Bosch pinned games of 205 and 207 for the losers.

Jelke's Good Luck made it three straight over Wisconsin Distributing Co. as J. Stiefpflug pounded the pins for a 221 game and 613 series. D. Piette paced the losing quint with a 559 series.

Win Odd Game
Spilker's Bakery took the odd game from Hoffman's Bakery as H. Dachelet blasted a 651 series on games of 225, 209 and 217 with a 15-pin handicap. Kronschnabel whacked a 232 game, D. Griesbach 217, L. Budge Will Turn Pro After Being Named Top Amateur

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK.—(U.P.)—This should clear up the Don Budge situation. . . All the guy is waiting for (it's not the $25,000 difference between him and Jack Harris) are the national rankings. . . The minute he is named America's No. 1 amateur again, he'll turn pro in a hurry, unless all the dope we have is screwy, and will make his pro debut in Madison Square Garden Jan. 9 against Ellsworth Vines. . . This may or may not turn out, but you can wait and see. . .

Jim Crowley, Fordham coach, now is a member of the Saints and Sinners club, one of our most exclusive. . . Eddie Brannick, secretary of the Giants and the most popular front office man in the majors (in this book, anyway) sails Saturday for a tour of Italy. . . Henry Armstrong says he doesn't fear Cefelyne, the right hand punch—well he's better. . . That Garcia can hit like no body's business when he gets wound up and if you let anybody laugh that off, you're crazy. . . Yule had better be primed to the gills for Michigan. . . Fritz Crister is doing a grand job out there and right now is our nomination for the country's top coach.

KIMBERLY HIGH SCHOOL BACKS
Kimberly High school gridders will oppose Menasha St. Mary tomorrow on the Butte des Morts grid at Menasha. Above are two Papermaker backs who'll have a lot of work to do if their squad is to win. They are, left to right, Jim Gaffney and Red Williams. St. Mary is favored but the Papermakers are pointing for an upset which will enable them to erase memories of a defeat at the hands of Little Chute which has been beaten twice by the Menashans. Off the Cuff About Vikings Who'll Oppose Carroll Eleven

JUST a few remarks about several members of the Lawrence college football squad who'll be in action tomorrow against Carroll college:

Jack Crawford: Comes from Berlin where he was an outstanding high school performer. Playing his last home college game for his senior. Shows at end and weighs 175 pounds. Great offensive man. Also a basketball man and member of track team.

Mike Galko: Another senior and a guard. Comes from Milwaukee and is the chap someone wrote about when he said "Little but oh my!" Weighs about 155. Played good ball last season and has been doing well this year after a slow start.

William Hatten: A senior guard who comes from Elmhurst, Ill. Alternates at guard positions and can play center.

Joe Maertzwiler: Half the co-captaincy and therefore a senior. Came from Milwaukee where Heggelton was his high school coach. A great blocker, calls the signals, backs up the line beautifully and in his spare moments keeps the boys hustling. He'll be missed next year.

Albert Novakowski: The other half the captaincy and an all-state and all-midwest halfback last year. Having another great season this fall. He comes from Menasha and will be through in February. The best back since Eddie Kotal. Weighs about 165 and is one of the fastest men on the team. He'll also be missed next season.

Don Weidman: Another Milwaukeean and another senior. Great team man, plays halfback and runs. Despite the fact he is lightest man on squad, he battles with the best.

Ken Buesing: One of the Appleton lads and a back. He's a junior and can do everything quite well. Out of last week's game because of injury and may be handicapped tomorrow if used. A great fighter and great defensive player. Also a guard in basketball and 440 and sprinter in track.

Richard Garvey: Ring up another strike for Appleton. Dick is a center and backs up one side of the line. He's tough. Garvey likes his football and despite an injury that would keep others out, you'll probably see him tomorrow. He'll be around again next season for he's a junior.

Jack Nyström: He's the left end, weighs 175 and comes from Norway. Last year he was tried in several positions but seems to fit well at end. A battler and won't take much from anyone; for reference ask Walen, Monmouth, fullback. Another junior.

Stanley Zwerkel: Comes from Stoughton and is a junior. Last year he worked at guard, this year at center. As a guard he'd see more service but the Vikes must have a reserve center. Aggressive as they come and likes his football.

James Weighs 284: A sophomore from Appleton and a tackle. Weighs mere 284. Has been playing sensational ball and he gets about fast despite his size. Was all-conference in high school and probably will be in college. Eats and how! You should see the checks. Also great track man with shot and discus.

Art Kaemmer: Comes from Kiel, plays fullback and does a lot of plunging and much blocking. He's another sophomore find. It'll be nice to have him around for two more years.

Leroy Lubenow: He's the left tackle on offense, weighs about 190, and he'll play a great game. Enrolled a couple weeks late this year and when Bodilly broke his arm, Lubenow stepped into his shoes and has been sensational. He's from Sheboygan.

Robert Siebold: Another senior and another guard, and he comes from Chicago. Siebold's work this year has been one of the high spots. He was only a fair performer last year and in his sophomore year was not out because of outside work. He's been a big help this fall.

Bob Everett: Everett has been a reserve back but there are indications he'll take Novakowski's place next season. Everett is shifty, fast and can pass and kick. A tall, rangy lad who comes from Oak Park, Ill., and weighs about 165.

ALL IS FAIR
Rockford, Ill.—(U.P.)—Attempting to strike one's wife during a pinocchio game does not constitute grounds for divorce in the opinion of Judge Arthur E. Fisher.

Judge Fisher refused to grant a woman a divorce on her charge that her husband tried to hit her during a pinocchio argument.

Pro Football on Way to New High Attendance Mark

Already 20 Per Cent Ahead of Record Figures for 1937

BY EARL HILLIGAN
CHICAGO.—(U.P.)—Professional football, smashing on toward an all-time attendance record for a second consecutive year, definitely has come of age.

The National league, in its 19th season, already is 20 per cent ahead of the record attendance figures which garnished the 1937 campaign, and President Joe F. Carr believes a 30 per cent gain would be registered by season's end.

At the close of last season's play, there were some who felt the league's attendance mark may have been a "flash in the pan" preliminary to a falling off in crowds this year. The spectacular performance of Sammy Baugh, Washington's ace passer, undoubtedly boomed business at the gate, yet some observers inclined toward the opinion that unless he maintained his pace crowds this season would be smaller.

Three Record Crowds
The reverse has been true, even though Baugh is in sixth place among the play-for-pay aerialists stars this season. Yet each week the fans turned out in such numbers that 189,151 spectators have watched the last eight league contests.

Three record crowds in eight days indicate the pro game, whose growth really started with Red Grange's debut in 1925, has clinched a spot in sports' big-time picture. On Oct. 9, approximately 23,000 fans watched the Green Bay Packers play the Detroit Lions at Green Bay, Wis.—a city of less than 40,000—and some 37,500 sat in on the New York-Washington battle. Last Sunday 42,850 persons saw Washington nose out the Lions in Briggs' stadium, home of the Detroit Tigers.

"Fans See One Game and are sold on professional football," George Halas of the Chicago Bears, only owner still in the league since its birth in 1920. "New stars each season, plus continued brilliant jobs by old favorites, keep the old fans coming back and new ones taking an initial interest. Poor games are the exception and there certainly aren't any pushovers in the circuit."

Small town interest, an accurate barometer of a sport's appeal, is particularly high in the football all game, especially through Wisconsin and Michigan. Wisconsin newspapers carry daily stories of the practice activities of the Green Bay Packers, as do Michigan papers on the Detroit Lions.

J. Rossmessl felled the pins for a 241 high individual game as Demerits chalked up a high team game during Post Office league matches at Elks alleys last night. M. Aul banged a high individual series of 629 and C. O. D. keepers bagged team series honors with a 2,809 total.

Demerits won two games from Parcel Post with H. Hart pounding a 588 series and Rossmessl a 241 game. T. Choudoir grooved a 534 series and 204 game for the losing quintet.

C. O. D. grandslammed General Delivery as W. Saiberlich cracked games of 203 and 237 for a 622 series. E. Campshire shot games of 203 and 218 for a 570 series to top General Delivery keepers.

Special Delivery took the odd game from Air Mail with R. Goree and R. Shortt each getting a 514 series. M. Aul had games of 249 and 235 for his big series which was high for the losers.

Injuries Hit Iowa Grid Team; Colgate Favored to Win Tilt
IOWA CITY, Iowa.—(U.P.)—Add to the coaches trying for speed—Ira Tri Tubb of Iowa.

Tubb's demand for speed this week by his Hawkeyes was based chiefly on the knowledge that Saturday's opponent, Colgate, brought with it a reputation for speed and power.

But not alone upon speed has Tubb based his plan of attack on Colgate.

TERRORS WILL OPPOSE EAST BAYS THERE TONIGHT
Appleton High school eleven invades Green Bay East camp this evening to battle the Red Devils on the City Stadium gridiron. East is favored but above are two Terrors who will have a lot to do to do with stopping the Don Heinrichs, 220 pounds, who plays tackle on defense and fullback on offense. Heinrich is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chet Heinrich, 1425 N. Appleton street, and Kramer the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Kramer, 1336 W. Second street. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Jack Murray Will Start For Wisconsin Against Boilermakers Tomorrow

Bellin and Gradisnik at Left Half in Place Of Schmitz
MADISON.—Their spirits buoyed by the news that Jack Murray, candidate for all-American center honors, will be able to start against Purdue in the latter's homecoming celebration Saturday afternoon, 35 fiery Badgers entrained early this morning determined to break the Ross Adbowl jinx and give Wisconsin its first win over the Boilermakers since the modern series started in 1925.

The Badgers will stop over Friday in Indianapolis where practice will be staged in the Butler stadium. The squad will quarter at the Indianapolis Athletic club.

14 Sophs Make Trip
Murray was at center with the first team in Thursday's light drill. His ankle injury has come around rapidly and he ran with scarcely a limp.

Bill Schmitz, Coach Harry Stuhldreher's best passer and regular left halfback, was left at home. Schmitz bruised his left shoulder in the Pitt game; he is not making the trip because Stuhldreher feels that he can best be treated at the university infirmary.

The traveling squad is comprised of 14 sophomores, 10 juniors and 11 seniors. Seven seniors will be in the starting lineup which differs at four positions from that which opened the Pitt game.

Veteran Roy Bellin, regular right halfback, has been called upon to fill the breach at left half occasioned by Schmitz's absence. Bellin has worked on the port side plays this week and in Thursday's signal drill, was complete master of all the assignments.

Bellin's spot at right half will be taken over by Claude York, a rangy sophomore who plays with the poise and confidence of a veteran. York is a fast reacting defensive back and a real offensive threat because of his peculiar ability to "scent" holes in the enemy line, although he is not as good a broken field runner as Schmitz.

The Badger front wall will also differ in two respects. Al Dorsch, regular tackle a year ago, who returned to football three weeks ago from voluntary retirement, has earned the starting assignment at left tackle in place of Bob Eckl.

Pegler Says U. S. Frets Too Much About Woes of Others

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—It once was a fundamental right of the American husband in most states to beat his wife with a rod no thicker than his thumb. Fortunately, if you insist, that right has been grievously impaired by indirect curtailment. He must not inflict bodily harm, nor has he a right to disturb the neighbors with her screams. Moreover, courts, grand juries and juries have leaned sharply to the belief that the wife in such cases may defend herself by small arms or with the bread knife, and this has surrounded an old privilege with such risks as to prevent the free exercise of the same. This, as Mr. Herbert Hoover and others have observed with alarm, the price of our liberties is constant vigilance lest they be destroyed by stealth.

I would not campaign for the restitution of this particular right in its original beauty, but do venture to suggest that the United States always has been too ready to dash into the home of a neighbor crying "unhappy that woman" and that the domestic fights of the neighbors command our attention to the neglect of troubles of our own. Americans, in a mood of pure chivalry and pity, drove the Spaniards out of Cuba and put an end to their atrocities in Cuba only to see a day when the Cubans, celebrating their liberation from the rule of one of their own patriots, Gerardo Machado, seized prize cattle on his farm and tore unoffending beasts limb from limb in various revenge on the fugitive dictator.

Americans have meddled in Britain's Irish problem, in the internal affairs of the Russia of the Czar and in racial and religious feuds in the Near East. This country's people attempted to impose democracy on Europeans who have neither the wish nor the knack for democratic government and found it as awkward as Hitlerism would be to us. After all, that—after a crusade in the heat of which Americans never paused to doubt that democracy was what those peoples wanted—there came a day when solemn Italian boys, marching in fascist formation, armed with a great spirit, "We spit on democracy!"

More Important to Solve Home Problems

Never in the memory of any man now living has the air been filled with cries more piteous than those of the neighbors than those which now rise from the strange countries of Europe. We may believe the heads of these households to be insane, and the horror of the persecution in Hitler's Germany is such that the effects are felt outside. In beating his wife with a rod which seems much bigger than his thumb he is disturbing the peace of the whole world, but, dreadful as his conduct is, the job of volunteer policeman to put

The WORLD of STAMPS

BY THE AP FEATURE SERVICE

The history of Finland's postal system is pictorially reviewed on a set of four well designed and printed stamps recently issued to commemorate the tercentenary of its founding.

The lowest value, 50-pennia well-known green, illustrates an early post-office—the one built at Ahvenkoski in 1787. The iceboat, a method of mail transport used in 1700, is shown on the 14-markka deep blue. The two higher values go modern. The 2-m red orange shows a tri-motored transport plane, about to be loaded with mail bags, and the 33-m dark green depicts the ultra-modern Helsingfors postoffice.

Four More Presidential This month will see four more stamps added to the U. S. presidential series. The 14-cent indigo, picturing Franklin Pierce, was issued on October 6. The portrait was copied from a medal in the U. S. Mint designed by Ellis and Wilson.

On October 13, the 15-c gray James Buchanan stamp is due to appear. The head of Buchanan has been taken from a statue by Henry Dexter in the National Gallery of Art at Washington. The 16-c Lincoln black is due October 20, and the 17-c Andrew Jackson crimson on October 27.

Papua is planning to hail its 50th anniversary as a British possession with a series of airmails which will show a view of the harbor of Port Moresby. The scene is taken from a photograph by a Melbourne man named J. H. Prescott, but has been altered. It shows the steamer Kaikua at the dock, numerous boats in the harbor and a mail plane overhead.

The values are expected to be 2, 3, 5 and 8 pence and 1 shilling, and the stamps will be printed at Melbourne by John Ash.

Smyrna's International Fair Fairs and expositions have become a common excuse for stamp issues. A recent country to issue commemoratives in this category is Turkey which produced a colorful large-size series of 10 to publicize its eighth International Fair at Smyrna (Ismir). One of the most attractive stamps of the set is the 6-kurus chocolate showing a smiling grape picker. The other values and their illustrations are:

Ten-paras dark brown, view of Lo-Cordon, a Smyrna avenue; 30-p violet, fair buildings; 21-k deep green, figs on the branch; 10-k orange, Tower of Hukumat; 8-k orange, 5-k olive, olives on the branch; 7-k carmine, grape culture; 8-k violet brown, view of Smyrna through arch; 12-k lilac, equestrian statue of President Atatürk; 12-k indigo, half-length figure of President Atatürk in evening dress.

This month Turkey plans to issue another commemorative set to mark the 15th anniversary of the republic. The design was expected to show the president operating a tractor to suggest the country's modernization according to western concepts.

Democratic Committee Sponsors Farm Meeting Stephensville—A dairy farmers meeting will be held at the Greenville Gardens, Greenville at 8 o'clock Friday evening. It is being sponsored by Outagamie County Democratic committee, Gustave J. Keller, Appleton, is president, and Gerald Jolin, Stephensville, is secretary.

BUTH OIL COMPANY

Movie Land Its People and Products

Rosemary Lane and John Garfield—two of the six young people who won such high acclaim in "Four Daughters"—are looking very happy about the whole thing. Both have prominent roles in "Blackwell's Island."

By Jimmie Fidler

Lone Pine, Calif.—Settin' Around (RKO - Radio Pictures): I'm parked here on a desert plain; it's a little slope up to the high peaks in the United States, and I'm watching a battle. Three armies are converging, marching along to the skirling of bagpipes. The plateau is bathed in brilliant sunshine and the mountains are shrouded in fog, which, breaking now and then, reveals on the slopes of Mount Whitney the first heavy snow fall of the year. And the sharp desert wind is heavy with the scent of sage.

The battle is one of several which you will see in "Gunga Din," and this troupe of nearly 2,000 actors and technicians have been up here for the better part of three months, freezing one day and sweating the next, in order to film one of the most ambitious pictures ever attempted by Hollywood.

It's a swell day to fight a war. After the battle is over, both the English invaders and the natives will take off their false beards, wipe the "blood" and muck off their faces, and race one another back to the camp—and show. If the battle hasn't been exciting enough, they'll do it over again tomorrow—and the next day, and the next. No one will be hurt and there are good dinners, warm beds and satisfactory pay checks awaiting everyone. What a boon to mankind if the world's war lords could figure out a similar way of settling their feuds.

Lone Pine, 250 miles from Hollywood Boulevard, but still a suburb of Filmmville, is probably the most unique village in America. Eighty-two location companies already have been here this year and five more are due before Christmas. Every cow-waddy for miles around belongs to the Screen Actors' Guild and the town's belles are too accustomed to movie stars to be interested. This morning, on the main, and only street, I saw Cary Grant and Youngdoug Fairbanks step aside with a gallant bow to allow four local beauties to pass. Their only reward was a polite, disinterested smile—the girls continued their conversation without the loss of a single word. So, if any of you fairfemmes who read this crave a flirtation with a screen great, come to Lone Pine—you'll have the field to yourself here.

To give the Hollywoodites their due, they seem to get a great kick out of going unnoticed. After the day's grind, they congregate in Lone Pine's two soda parlors and five beer bars, let down their hair and forget all about their "art." Today, every man jack in the company is flaunting one of the local styles—a bright silk neckerchief held in place by a gaudy ring. Vic McLaughlin, the corner drug store and the rush was on. The outfit costs two-bits and the druggist sold out in fifteen minutes. Youngdoug looks a bit disgusted. He got there late and had to be content with a sickly purple scarf and an inconspicuous emerald clasp.

The most interesting player in the "Gunga Din" troupe is Anna May, two tons of elephantine personality. Joe McCall, her trainer, insists that she has human intelligence and, judging from some of her stunts today, I think it's an understatement. Anna May, like all great actresses, has "temperament." What she wants, she wants right now—and if it isn't forthcoming, she wraps her trunk around Mr. McCall's midriff, holds him there until he says "Okay. Old Girl." Occasionally, Joe celebrates not wisely but too well, much to Anna May's disapproval. She weaves from side to side, stomping and tramping until he returns. Then, as long as she can smell liquor on his breath, she calmly but firmly refuses to work. Since she's Joe's bread and butter, he makes it a point to be a teetotaler while the picture assignment lasts.

Today, however, Anna May is in disgrace. The mountain snow storm was preceded by a few thunder claps. On hearing the first crash, she broke her chains, ran amok and collided with Doug Fairbanks' car, crumpling a fender and almost throwing her. Crying Grant and Doug out of the machine. Now here cars are stopped with cotton, just in case, Messrs. Grant and Fairbanks are yelling for liniment to rub on their bruises.

The one night spot in Lone Pine is Tex Cafe, so typically western that it looks phony. Last night Vic McLaughlin and I dropped in for a five minutes," he said. "Yuh see, highball and Tex. who looks like a character from a Remington 'If I lasted any longer' it'd be a floor show. Vic looted at his

Part-Time Farm Classes Planned

Sessions to be Held at Seymour High During Fall and Winter

Seymour—A part-time school in agriculture is being conducted this fall and winter. The classes will be held in the agriculture room of the Seymour High school and will meet one or two evenings a week. The first meeting is scheduled 8 o'clock next Thursday evening.

About sixty young men were enrolled in the course last year and it is much interest is shown this year. The classes will be divided into two sections. Smaller classes will allow for more discussions of and attention to definite farm problems of the different members.

The Ladies Aid society of the Evangelical church met Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was conducted by the Rev. H. A. Bernhard. The scripture was read and a talk was given by the Rev. E. D. Paulin of Neenah. A short business meeting followed. Twenty-four members and three visitors were present. Lunch was served by the Mrs. John Reim, Mrs. E. Mory, Mrs. I. Thiel, Mrs. W. Schmidt, and Mrs. F. Kuehn.

COMMITTEE TO MEET

Members of the county sheriff and radio committee will meet at the courthouse next Monday morning. Usual business will be considered.

Councilmen Study Commission Plan For Tree Planting

Proposed Ordinance Will Be Presented at Next Meeting

Kaukauna—Councilmen are studying an ordinance, suggested by the city planning commission, that is intended to beautify the city by regulating tree planting and removal. The measure will come before the council at its next meeting for approval.

An officer to be known as the city forester would be appointed, probably by the planning board, to enforce the ordinance, which gives him exclusive jurisdiction over all trees, plants and shrubs planted "in or upon the public highways and public places of the city of Kaukauna." The ground between the sidewalk and the curb is public property.

It is provided that trees growing in such public places that have branches projecting may be trimmed under the supervision of the city forester. Trees on private land that project over a public highway may also be trimmed, so that the lowest branches are at least 10 feet from the ground. Newly planted trees may be allowed untrimmed provided they do not interfere with the persons using the sidewalk or obstruct the light of any street lamp. If an owner neglects to trim his trees the forester may cause it to be done and collect the cost from the owner.

Must Have Permit

It will be unlawful, if the ordinance is passed, to plant or set out any tree or shrub without a written permit, for trees without a permit may be obtained from the forester. The permit describes the work to be done and the variety, size and precise location of each tree. It is laid down that trees must not be less than one inch in diameter of the trunk a foot above the ground, all trees from one to three inches in diameter a foot above the ground must be protected by tree guards, and that in cutting down trees the tree must be removed with the root stump grubbed out.

The city forester may order the removal of any tree, on public or private property, on ten days' notice, on account of injurious insects, plant diseases or other public health reasons, and damages will be paid to property owners. It is provided that "the entire cost of protecting, trimming, spraying, planting and removing of trees and shrubs in front of or on any lot or parcel of land abutting on a street, avenue or boulevard shall be chargeable to and assessed upon such lot or parcel of land."

A. R. Mill, planning commission secretary, in describing the measure to the council said it was not meant to forcibly cause the planting or cutting of trees, but was a measure for the good of the city presupposing the cooperation of the property owners.

Homecoming Will Open Tonight With Parade, Bonfire

High School Cheerleaders Will Lead Rally at Park

Kaukauna—Kaukauna High school's annual homecoming celebration will get under way tonight with a parade, pep session and dance at the high school gymnasium. The parade will start at 7:15 sharp from in front of the school on Oak street. All floats were requested this morning by Clifford H. Kemp, general homecoming chairman, to be in their assigned places at 7 o'clock. The parade will go through north and south side business districts before breaking up near the ball park.

At the park a huge bonfire will be touched off, and high school cheerleaders will lead in a pregame rally. Across from the park a letter S will be burned, to denote the downfall of Shawano, tomorrow afternoon's opponent.

Dance at 8 O'Clock

The dance will begin at 8 o'clock and will last until 11. Music will be furnished by the high school party orchestra. Prize winners in the parade will be announced at the dance.

The Kaws had another hard scrimmage yesterday and today will taper off with a light signal drill. The scrubs have had good success with Shawano plays all week, and the regulars will have to be at top form to stand a chance with the Indians, out after their second consecutive conference championship. The kickoff is slated for 2 o'clock.

General admission prices have been reduced to twenty-five cents for the rest of the season. Principal Olin G. Dryer announced this morning.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

The Proposed Visit of the British King

The idea that King George VI and his Queen might visit the United States been to be talked about during the summer, and almost certainly the idea was first promoted by unofficial Americans connected with the coming World's Fair in New York. Apparently, the matter has now reached the stage where the two governments must decide whether such a visit is to be arranged. But before deciding, they have resorted to the diplomatic device of sending up a trial balloon to see how the winds of opinion are blowing. "The Daily Herald," the organ of the Labor opposition in Great Britain, has been allowed to publish an article which raises the question without committing the British government. The official decision will not be made, we may assume, until the significance and the probable consequences of such a visit have been thoroughly examined.

For it goes without saying that a royal visit is an altogether different thing from a private visit, and the ordinary rules of private hospitality do not apply. At any time the visit of a king to another country is an affair of state; at this time in the history of the two English-speaking peoples a visit of this kind would have such world-wide consequences that it cannot be undertaken without the most thorough-going consideration.

Debate On Armaments

From October to May is a long time, a very long time measured by the rapidity with which events are happening in the world. But in so far as any one on this side of the Atlantic can foresee what is going to happen, it is not probable that the coming spring will be a good moment for the King to come to Washington. For unless all the signs are misleading, the American Congress will then be debating a vast project of American armaments, and the mere presence of the King at that time will embarrass him and confuse the debate.

The sponsors of the visit are unquestionably well meaning individuals but they have not yet, I fear, begun to realize how profound and far-reaching has been the change in world politics since the first amiable suggestion last summer that it would be pleasant to have the King and Queen visit the World's Fair in New York. But they will begin to realize how epoch-making is the change when they see the outlines of the armament program which this country is now compelled to consider. And when they see that program, and begin to measure the sacrifices which it will impose upon the American people, they will understand that such sacrifices cannot be asked of the people nor accepted by the people. If there is the slightest suspicion that the sacrifices have any other purpose than to protect the vital interests of the American nation. The arrival of the British King in the midst of this momentous debate would infallibly revive the suspicion of foreign interference, and would disunite and distract American public opinion.

Important May Be More Important Than Realities

The British Foreign Office and the American Department of State must know out of their long experience that in matters of this kind, the appearances may be even more important than the realities. No responsible person really supposes that President Roosevelt is acting on anything but his own entirely American judgment of what is now required to defend the American position in this hemisphere; and no responsible person imagines that the King and Queen could influence him or that they would even try. But the unprecedented fact of a royal visit in the midst of an unprecedented revision of American policy would infallibly cause popular suspicion that the world, and not official disclaimer could allay it entirely.

Don't Marry The Man

By Jeanne Bowman

hidden by liquid powder, she looked more like a Gregory. The "goodbye" she gave her was the exact shade of her hair, the tie, belt and boots the brown of her blouse relieved the duo-tone.

Mayne stood rapt with wonder when she first saw her, then sprang into action. "Over here, I saved you a table," she proclaimed, leading the way through the big room. "Don't sit there, Miss Cleo, sit on this side so the sun'll shine on your hair."

"There can we find a cottage to rent?" asked Bridget.

"No," said pronounced Mayne, flatly. "Young Donald tore down all his old places and only rebuilt as folks would need them. The Gregorays have got a lot of old dumps but you couldn't live a winter in them. It's bad enough trying to live in the ones the miners is housed in."

"But if we were to pay for repairs on one of the Gregory dumps," Kathleen nearly choked on the words, "don't you think we could rent it?"

"Repairs, say listen, you'd have to start in at the foundations and build up. Them Gregorays don't care about anything but the ore they get out of the mine. They let everything else go hang. They're so stingy they won't even let the miners use the lumber from the old cots for firewood and it ain't good for nothing else."

Who Is He?

Mayne retreated to the kitchen for hot coffee and Kathleen retreated into silence. After a lifetime of Gregory adulation, it wasn't easy to accept blanket insults graciously. But had she been able to admit her identity and retaliaite, what could she offer in defense?

There was a stir at the door; voices. Kathleen looked up. A young man had entered, a man with a resting looking young man. He was tall, he had dark hair, a heavily tanned face and small black moustache. Perhaps it was this that made his smile so dazzling.

About him was an air of alertness. There was such ease in his carriage, the quick trim step of leather boots, the trim squarely carried shoulders under the leather coat, the narrow waist, all contributed to the effect of smooth energy.

"Is he good looking," murmured Kathleen. "Wonder who he is?"

Bridget looked at the man, then at Kathleen, bewilderment in her eyes. "You must have been angry," she commented. "Now what is Mayne up to?"

"She seems to be serving the man to us along with the coffee," answered Kathleen, as the two approached.

Mayne's cheeks were pink, her bright blue eyes were shining. "I tell you, he's a beauty. This is Mister MacDonald. Mister MacDonald, meet Miss Riley, first name's Cleo, ain't she got the sweetest hair?"

Dark blue eyes, narrowed in laughter, met Kathleen's. Kathleen's eyes narrowed, but not in laughter, at least, not for a moment. Then she succumbed. "How do you do, Mr. MacDonald," she continued. "Miss Donahue," continued Mayne. "She's the book writer. I been telling Young Donald about you-all wanting a house. He says '... oh, darn.' She broke off as a man hailed her from a nearby table. "I got to get his three-minute egg."

"May 17" Donald MacDonald drew out a chair at Bridget's quick assent.

That is why armaments on a scale never previously considered are being projected so suddenly, and, for most men, so unexpectedly. But though these armaments are forced upon America by the weakness of Great Britain, they cannot and must not under any circumstances be regarded as an effort on our part to remedy the weakness of Great Britain. They are, on the contrary, based upon the recognition that for the time being, perhaps forever, the United States can no longer depend upon British power.

As long as this is the position, a British royal visit could only cause misunderstanding here and abroad. Here it would falsify the reasons for American armament, and make it appear, though it would be entirely untrue, that this is another 1917, and that we are arming to save the British Empire. Though we must most sincerely hope that from the mortal dangers which confront it, the fact is that the empire can be saved only by the exertions of the British people. Even the announcement of a royal visit while the British are still hesitating as to what they are prepared to do would only serve to give British public opinion a false sense of security.

Conferees Failed To Deceive Hitler

Outside the English-speaking world the effect would be equally ambiguous and misleading. It would be like the effect produced in Europe last August by the reports of the spectacular and excessive intimacy with which Ambassador Kennedy and Mr. Chamberlain were consulting. Those reports had a most unfortunate effect upon Czech and upon French opinion. For they suggested that America and Britain were cooperating in a kind of understanding which in fact did not exist, and so these advertised consultations contributed

Will Be Given Approval

We have passed through a season of amateur diplomacy during which the advice of experienced diplomats has been disregarded at every crucial point. Since the world has reverted openly to power politics, the democracies will need men who are educated in the history of power politics.

Now, in an educated diplomacy a state visit by royalty is not something undertaken to promote vague popular good will. The visit of a king has only one meaning in the international world of great powers—to confirm publicly an alliance which has already been formed. If there is no alliance, and there is none between Britain and America, then the visit of the King would be a mistake. It would be an advertisement of weakness rather than a demonstration of solidarity and strength, and so it would be interpreted in the quarters that matter most. It would mislead the innocent without impressing the mighty.

For all these reasons it seems unlikely that the unofficial proposals for a visit will be adopted officially when the two governments have fully considered the matter. They are much more likely to wait before committing themselves, to wait until the British people and the American people, each in its own way, have drawn its own independent conclusions from the Munich peace.

Councilmen Study Commission Plan For Tree Planting

Proposed Ordinance Will Be Presented at Next Meeting

Kaukauna — Councilmen are studying an ordinance, suggested by the city planning commission, that is intended to beautify the city by regulating tree planting and removal. The measure will come before the council at its next meeting for approval.

An officer to be known as the city forester will be appointed, probably by the planning board, to enforce the ordinance, which gives him exclusive jurisdiction over all trees, plants and shrubs planted "in or upon the public highways and public places of the city of Kaukauna." The ground between the sidewalk and the curb is public property.

It is provided that trees growing in such public places that have branches projecting may be trimmed under the supervision of the city forester. Trees on private land that project over a public highway may also be trimmed, so that the lowest branches are at least 10 feet from the ground. Newly planted trees may be allowed untrimmed provided they do not interfere with the persons using the sidewalk or obstruct the light of any street lamp. If an owner neglects to trim his trees the forester may cause it to be done and collect the cost from the owner.

Must Have Permit
It will be unlawful, if the ordinance is passed, to plant or set out any tree or trees without a written permit, for which application blanks may be obtained from the forester. The permit describes the work to be done and the variety, size and precise location of each tree. It is laid down that trees must not be less than one inch in diameter of the trunk a foot above the ground, all trees from one to three inches in diameter a foot above the ground must be protected by tree guards, and that in cutting down trees the tree must be removed with the root stumps grubbed out.

The city forester may order the removal of any tree, or public or private property, on ten days' notice, on account of injurious insects, plant diseases or for endangering sewer work and other public improvements. No damages will be paid to property owners.

It is provided that "the entire cost of protecting, trimming, spraying, planting and removing of trees and shrubs in front of or on any lot or parcel of land abutting on a street, avenue or boulevard shall be chargeable to and assessed upon such lot or parcel of land."

A. B. Mill, planning commission secretary, in describing the measure to the council said it was not meant to forcibly cause the planting or cutting of trees, but was a measure for the good of the city presupposing the cooperation of the property owners.

Homecoming Will Be Open Tonight With Parade, Bonfire

High School Cheerleaders Will Lead Rally at Park
Kaukauna — Kaukauna High school's annual homecoming celebration will get under way tonight with a parade, pep session and dance at the high school gymnasium. The parade will start at 7:15 sharp from in front of the school on Oak street. All floats were requested this morning by Clifford H. Kemp, general homecoming chairman, to be in their assigned places at 7 o'clock. The parade will go through north and south side business districts before breaking up near the ball park.

At the park a huge bonfire will be touched off, and high school cheerleaders will lead in a pregame rally. Across from the park a letter S will be burned, to denote the downfall of Shawano, tomorrow afternoon's opponent.

The dance will begin at 8 o'clock and will last until 11. Music will be furnished by the high school party orchestra. Prize winners in the parade will be announced at the dance.

The Kaws had another hard scrimmage yesterday and today will taper off with a light signal drill. The scrubs have had good success with Shawano plays all week, and the regulars will have to be at top form to stand a chance with the Indians, out after their second consecutive conference championship. The kickoff is slated for 2 o'clock.

General admission prices have been reduced to twenty-five cents for the rest of the season. Principal Olin G. Dryer announced this morning.

Ekern, Dammann Will Campaign at Kaukauna
Kaukauna — Herman L. Ekern, Progressive candidate for the United States senate, and Theodore Dammann, present secretary of state up for reelection on the same ticket, will speak in Kaukauna next Tuesday evening at the civic auditorium. Anton Miller, candidate for the assembly, will be chairman. Congressman George Schneider of Appleton, candidate for reelection also will be present.

Fraternal Pin League Teams Clash Tonight
Kaukauna — Fraternal league kickers will bowl again tonight with the Moose opposing the Elks and Masons vs. the Kaukauna Knights of Columbus on the 7 o'clock shift. At 9 o'clock Perseus plays Greenwicks and Hollandtown Knights of Columbus roll against the American Legion.

48 High School Students on Honor Roll for 6-Week Period
Kaukauna — Forty-eight Kaukauna High school students were placed on the honor roll for the first six-week period ended this morning by Principal Olin G. Dryer. Twenty-one of these received special merit for having a mark of 90 or more in all of their subjects, while the other twenty-seven had averages of 90 or more. LaVerne Schiedermayer, a sophomore, led individually with an average of 96, followed by two freshmen, Lois Segeclink and Marie Vandeburg, both with averages of 95.

The sophomores had 29 on the list, freshmen and seniors each had 11 and the juniors only seven. Seven freshmen and a like number of sophomores received special merit; six seniors were so honored and only one junior, Lucille Faust.

Freshmen with special merits were Kathleen Coppes 94, Jean Doris 94, Magdalene Otte 94, Lois Segeclink 95, Patricia Tesun 91, Marie Vandeburg 95, Jane Verduin 94, with averages of 90 were Florence Brewster 91, Elizabeth Burns 92, Nathalie Dekarske 90, and Loren Krueger 90.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN
The Proposed Visit of the British King
The idea that King George VI and his Queen might visit the United States began to be talked about during the summer, and almost certainly the idea was first promoted by unofficial Americans connected with the coming World's Fair in New York. Apparently, the matter has now reached the stage where the two governments must decide whether such a visit is to be arranged. But before deciding, they have resorted to the diplomatic device of sending up a trial balloon to see how the winds of opinion are blowing.

The Daily Herald, the organ of the Labor opposition in Great Britain, has been allowed to publish an article which raises the question without committing the British government. The official decision will not be made, we may assume, until the significance and the probable consequences of such a move have been thoroughly examined.

For it goes without saying that a royal visit is an altogether different thing from a private visit, and the ordinary rules of private hospitality do not apply. At any time the visit of a king to another country is an affair of state; at this time in the history of the two English-speaking peoples a visit of this kind would have such world-wide consequences that it cannot be undertaken without the most thorough-going consideration.

Debate On Armaments Might Be Confused
From October to May is a long time, a very long time measured by the rapidly with which events are happening in the world. But in so far as any one on this side of the Atlantic can foresee what is going to happen, it is not probable that the coming spring will be a good moment for the King to come to Washington. For unless all the signs are misleading, the American Congress will then be debating a vast project of American armaments, and the mere presence of the King at that time will embarrass him and confuse the debate.

The sponsors of the visit are unquestionably well meaning individuals but they have not yet, I fear, begun to realize how profound and far-reaching has been the change in world politics since the first amiable suggestion last summer that it would be pleasant to have the King and Queen come to the World's Fair in New York. But they will begin to realize how epoch-making is the change when they see the outlines of the armament program which this country is now compelled to consider. And when they see that program, and begin to measure the sacrifices which it will impose upon the American people, they will understand that such sacrifices cannot be asked of the people nor accepted by the people if there is the slightest suspicion that the sacrifices have any other purpose than to protect the vital interests of the American nation. The arrival of the British King in the midst of this momentous debate would infallibly revive the suspicion of foreign interference, and would disunite and distract American public opinion.

Appearances May Be Misleading
The British Foreign Office and the American Department of State must know out of their long experience that in matters of this kind, the appearances may be even more important than the realities. No responsible person really supposes that President Roosevelt is acting on anything but his own entirely American judgment of what is now required to defend the American position in this hemisphere; and no responsible person imagines that the King and Queen could influence him or that they would even try. But the unprejudiced fact of a royal visit in the midst of an unprecedented revision of American policy would inevitably excite popular suspicion throughout the world, and no official disclaimer could allay it entirely.

The suspicion would have much to feed upon. For it is the undeniable fact that the necessity for these new American armaments is the direct consequence of the sudden revelation of British weakness in Europe and in the Far East. The security which the United States has enjoyed since Trafalgar and Waterloo has been shaken, if not lost, at Munich. The British sea power which has hitherto stood as the first line of defense for the Monroe Doctrine is, for the time being, paralyzed by the fact that London, the heart of the Empire, is so vulnerable to attack from the air. Though the British navy is still afloat, it is from an American point of view no longer the navy that it was. And for that reason, unless and until the British recover their power and their independence, Munich must be regarded by Americans as one of the decisive, though huddled, battles that shape the history of the world.

Must Maintain Doctrine Without Aid of British
We are compelled not only to restate the Monroe Doctrine, but for the first time in our whole experience to maintain the principles of that doctrine without even the indirect help of the British navy. The British sea power which has hitherto stood as the first line of defense for the Monroe Doctrine is, for the time being, paralyzed by the fact that London, the heart of the Empire, is so vulnerable to attack from the air. Though the British navy is still afloat, it is from an American point of view no longer the navy that it was. And for that reason, unless and until the British recover their power and their independence, Munich must be regarded by Americans as one of the decisive, though huddled, battles that shape the history of the world.

That is why armaments on a scale never previously considered are being projected so suddenly, and, for most men, so unexpectedly. But though these armaments are forced upon America by the weakness of Great Britain, they cannot and must not under any circumstances be regarded as an effort on our part to remedy the weakness of Great Britain. They are, on the contrary, based upon the recognition that for the time being, perhaps forever, the United States can no longer depend upon British power.

As long as this is the position, a British royal visit could only cause misunderstanding here and abroad. Here it would falsify the reasons for American armament, and make it appear, though it would be entirely untrue, that this is another 1917, and that we are arming to save the British Empire. Though we must most sincerely hope that from the mortal dangers which confront it, the fact is that the empire can be saved only by the exertions of the British people. Even the announcement of a royal visit while the British are still hesitating as to what they are prepared to do would only serve to give British public opinion a false sense of security.

Conferees Failed To Deceive Hitler
Outside the English-speaking world the effect would be equally ambiguous and misleading. It would be like the effect produced in Europe by the reports of the spectacular and excessive intimacy with which Ambassador Kennedy and Mr. Chamberlain were consulting. Those reports had a most unfortunate effect upon Czech and upon French opinion. For they suggested that America and Britain were cooperating in a kind of understanding which in fact did not exist, and so these advertised consultations contributed to stiffening Czech resistance when there was still time for a compromise. They were, whether or not that was the intention, a kind of bluff which misled every one but Hitler himself.

A royal visit to the White House in the present crisis of Europe would be the continuation on a grander scale of this very diplomacy that has failed so disastrously.

Unlikely That Plans Will Be Given Approval
We have passed through a season of amateur diplomacy during which the advice of experienced diplomats has been disregarded at every crucial point. Since the world has reverted openly to power politics, the democracies will need men who are educated in the history of power politics.

Now, in an educated diplomacy a state visit by royalty is not something undertaken to promote vague popular good will. The visit of a king has only one meaning in the international world of great powers — to confirm publicly an alliance which has already been formed. If there is no alliance, and there is none between Britain and America, then the visit of the King would be a mistake. It would be an advertisement of weakness rather than a demonstration of solidarity and strength, and so it would be interpreted in the quarters that matter most. It would mislead the innocent without impressing the mighty.

For all these reasons it seems unlikely that the unofficial proposals for a visit will be adopted officially when the two governments have fully considered the matter. They are much more likely to wait before committing themselves, to wait until the British people and the American people, each in its own way, has drawn its own independent conclusions from the Munich peace.

Young People's Group Plans Play Production
Kaukauna — The Young People's society of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church will produce a play, called "Things Do Happen," by G. L. Wind, the early part next month. Edward Kaphing, director, said yesterday rehearsals will begin as soon as books arrive.

Council to Set Widths Of South Side Streets
Kaukauna — An ordinance fixing the width of south side streets will be presented for approval at the Nov. 1 meeting of the common council. All streets will have a 36 foot width with the exception of Sixth street, 30 feet. Sullivan avenue and Seventh street 40 feet, and Island street from Oak street to the bridge, 46 feet. The council will inspect Island street from the bridge to Dodge street with a view to arranging for the greatest possible width in that section, instead of the 3 foot roadway suggested at this week's council meeting.

Union Meets Tonight
Kaukauna — Electrical Workers union, local No. 232, will meet at 7:30 tonight at Odd Fellows hall. A regular business meeting will be held.

Firemen Summoned to Edward Broehm Home
Kaukauna — The fire department was called to the home of Edward W. Broehm, 218 W. Fifth street, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A small blaze was put out in the attic, with slight damage from smoke resulting. Cause of the fire is unknown.

Committee to Confer With Athletic Council
Kaukauna — A committee from the American Legion will meet with the city athletic council Thursday evening to make plans for an Armistice day celebration. The meeting is being held ahead of schedule because of the state teachers' convention next month. It will begin at 7 o'clock at the high school.

Neenan Man Fined $5 For Reckless Driving
Kaukauna — Clifford Danke, Neenan, was fined $5 and costs yesterday in justice B. J. Mitchell's court on a charge of reckless driving. He was arrested Thursday morning at the intersection of Wisconsin avenue and Lane street by Kaukauna police.

Quill and Scroll Will Visit Newspaper Plant
Kaukauna — A tour of the Appleton Post-Crescent building for Oct. 27 is being arranged by Robert Nielsen, October program chairman for Quill and Scroll, high school journal society. Faculty advisers will accompany the students.

Defeat Goldins in Two Games to Break Tie for Top
Kaukauna — The Franks took two of three games from the Goldins last night to go into first place in the Ladies' bowling league, breaking a tie which had existed between the two fives. Three teams, Goldins, Renns and Schells, are now tied for second. Ev Hildebrandt's 374 led the Franks, and Frances Kline bowled a 329 series, on games of 145, 123 and 111, to lead Goldins.

Alma Renn hit the evening's highest mark, bowling lines of 367, 368 and 176 for 511, to lead the Renns to two over Tittmans. Alyce Tittman's 476 led the losers. The Schells swept three from Simons and Gertz took two from Van Denzens. Individual leaders were Alyce Schell, 245; Marie Van Able, 335; Eleanor Dietzler, 479, and Elsie Van Denzen 738.

Standings:
Franks 10
Goldins 9
Renns 9
Schells 9
Gertz 7
Tittmans 6
Simons 5
Van Denzens 5

Buildings for such organizations as boy and girl scouts and 4-H clubs might be constructed under N.Y.A. direction. These projects are limited to a cost of $500, unless special permission is received from Washington.

The board will study Grebe's suggestions and may recommend action at the Nov. 1 council meeting.

Sixteen guests were present yesterday afternoon at a birthday party for Dolores Vander Loop, 225 Maria street. Songs were sung and games played. Present were Joan and Jean Bayorgone, Janet Kille, Joan Van Dyke, Patsy Armstrong, Patsy Brandt, Thelma Hendricks, Bonny Milbach, Betty Milbach, Patsy Martzahn, Babs Oudenhoven, Carol Luckie, Sharon Goldin, Marilyn Harris, Esther Clevenger and Gladys Ball.

Mrs. Christina Hoffman entertained the Loyal Star Five High school club at her home Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. John Leick, Mrs. J. Vancynhoven won prizes, with Mrs. Leick also receiving the traveling award. The club will meet in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Henry Verbeten at Little Chute.

Mrs. George Dogot, Mrs. Ray McCarty and Mrs. Lester J. Brenzel received prizes at the Contract Bridge club met Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Ed Thelen, 301 W. Eleventh street. Mrs. Elmer Wahlers will be hostess in two weeks.

Mayme stood rapt with wonder when she first saw her, then sprang into action. "Over here, I saw you a table," she proclaimed, leading the way through the big room. "Don't sit there, Miss Cleo, sit on this side so the sun'll shine on your hair."

"Where can we find a cottage to rent?" asked Bridget.

"You can't, pronounced Mayme, flatly. Young Donald tore down all the old places and only rebuilt as folks would need them. The Gregorys have got a lot of old dumps but you couldn't live a winter in them. It's bad enough trying to live in the ones the miners is housed in."

"But if we were to pay for repairs on one of the Gregory dumps," Kathleen nearly choked on the words, "don't you think we could rent it?"

"Repairs, say listen, you'd have to start in at the foundations and build up. Them Gregorys don't care about anything but the ore they get out of the mine. They let everything else go hang. They're so stingy they won't even let the miners use the lumber from the old cuts for firewood and it ain't good for nothing else."

"Who is he?"

Mayme retreated to the kitchen for hot coffee and Kathleen retreated into silence. After a lifetime of Gregory adulation, it wasn't easy to accept blanket insults graciously. But had she been able to admit her identity and retaliate, what could she offer in defense?

There was a stir at the door; voices. Kathleen looked up. A young man had entered; a particularly arresting looking young man. He was tall, he had dark hair, a heavily tanned face and small black moustache. Perhaps it was this that made his smile so dazzling.

About him was an air of airiness. The way he carried his carriage, the quick trim step of leather boots, the trim squarely carried shoulders under the leather coat, the narrow waist, all contributed to the effect of smooth energy.

"Is he good looking," murmured Kathleen. "Wonder who he is?"

Bridget looked at the man, then at Kathleen, bewildered in her eyes. "You must have been angry," she commented. "Now what is Mayme up to?"

"She seems to be serving the man to us along with the coffee," answered Kathleen, as the two approached.

Mayme's cheeks were pink, her blue eyes bright. "See? What did I tell you?" she began. "This is Miss MacDonald, Miss McDonauld, meet Miss Riley, first name's Cleo, ain't she got the sweetest hair?"

Dark blue eyes, narrowed in laughter, met Kathleen's. Kathleen's eyes narrowed, but not in laughter, at least not for a moment. Then she succumbed. "How do you do, Mr. MacDonald?"

"Meet Miss Donahue," continued Mayme, "she's the book writer. I been telling Young Donald about you-all wanting a house. He says... oh, darn," she broke off as a man hailed her from a nearby table. "I got to get his three-minute egg."

"May it be," Donald MacDonald drew out a chair at Bridget's quick assent.

Welcome Alumni

Glad to see you back in a good town for a few days — hope you have a good time, — and — let us suggest that you take "time out" — for just a few minutes to select that winter overcoat. It won't take longer than a minute, — for — when you see these beautiful by Kuppenheimer you'll say "I'll take that one" — just like that, — you can't resist them, — the fabrics are soft and rich, — but durable as iron, — they'll give you that million-dollar appearance and make you feel that way too.

FERRON'S 3 CHAMPIONS

Frankly, we know a lot more about style, proper fit, extra quality and how to keep prices in bounds than we do about blocking, tackling and the single wingback system. We leave the coaching to Bernie Heselson and the Sunday quarterbacking to the alumni. Nevertheless, we have THREE CHAMPIONS in the men's clothing field to show you.

Speaking of alumni reminds us that we're headquarters for the alumni of Lawrence and several other good schools (including the college of hard knocks where we went) — and we get the nod from the undergraduates. Ask 'em — THEY know about our THREE CHAMPIONS.

Those champions — as if you didn't know — are YEARCRAFT, VARSITY TOWN and SOCIETY BRAND. They go through EVERY season undefeated. Each one is a champion in its field and gives you the utmost for your money whether you pay $22.50, $35.00 or $50.

"Be Sure It's Kinney's!"

WOULD YOU endanger a CHAMPION'S EYES?

That boy of yours may be heading for an All-American rating. Or he may be a champion student ... or just a champion son!

You wouldn't knowingly handicap him with poor vision. No siree! But if you permit him to read, study, work or play under insufficient light or improper lighting of any kind, you may unwittingly contribute to handicapping a potential champion!

Protect your champion's eyes with good lighting at home. What is good lighting? Diffused light, free from glare, sharp shadows or strong contrasts—and PLENTY OF LIGHT for reading or study ...

... Light From Genuine

TOWN"

"Whadd'ya
Think This Is?"

he shouts, "This is no tea party! We gotta play ball today and win!" He's here, there and everywhere using vast amounts of energy. But it won't bother him.
A year ago this same kid was just the opposite of what he is now. He was irritable, thin and inclined towards lounging rather than sport.

The vast change was made by his diet. Schaefer's Milk played an important part in this. After his mother switched to Schaefer's, she noticed a quick improvement. It naturally built the boy up physically and just as naturally he wanted to play again.

You can bet that Schaefer's has a regular place on this family's dairy list.

B.V.D. Matched Ensembles

Shorts, 50c Pajamas, $1.95 Robes, $2.50

The new B. V. D. Matched Ensembles make it a pleasure to choose new robes, pajamas and shorts. Just drop in and look over the handsome patterns by B. V. D. — the new authentic Scotch plaids, the superb stripes, the rich paisley patterns — and decide which pattern you like best. Then choose your own pajamas, robe and short ensemble in that particular pattern. It's as easy as that! Pajamas are $1.95. Robe $2.50 and Shorts, 50c.

Men's B. V. D. Briefs 35c and 50c

Speaking of short, short stories — we give you the new B. V. D. briefs. These trim, knitted shorts are growing more and more popular. And you'll understand why when you see them. The up-and-down stretch spells comfort. At two prices, 35c and 50c.

Men's B. V. D. Union Suits, 98c to $3.95
For winter comfort, wear B. V. D. union suits. In several styles at 98c to $3.95 each.

Kimberly-Clark Corporation Conducts Extensive Program For Education of Its Employees

BY TOM MASTERSON

Neeenah—Kimberly-Clark corporation, the Fox River valley's leading paper industry, serves that it might be served, as its axiom, "Kimberly-Clark's success is proportional to the skill, craftsmanship and ability of all its employees." It is given literal translation in an extensive training and educational curriculum for its employees—from highly trained technical men, to college students and the rank and file of the common laborer.

Although the corporation encourages its employees to improve themselves in their work, increasing their value to the firm through formal courses and other means, Kimberly-Clark does not stop there in order to increase its investment in man power.

Working under the assumption that its investment in man power is its greatest investment, Kimberly-Clark conducts an endless and inclusive training program within its own walls, for as Charles Eubank, director of the industrial relations department, points out, "In the last analysis, the most important investment of any concern is in the quality of its employees. Concerned always can purchase the best equipment."

"Understudy" Plan

One of the projects in the Kimberly-Clark educational program is the "understudy" plan for students from colleges. Nearly 100 students from colleges throughout the country have been included in this plan.

In another plan which involves students, more than 20 young men and women from Antioch college have taken part in the cooperative plan, and now there are 10 young men and women who are filling five jobs. The students attend school for 10 weeks and then work in the corporation's mills for 10 weeks. They work on production jobs, such as operating machines, and receive regular wages.

As Mr. Eubank says, "We learn about the students and they learn about us." When the students have been graduated, they and the corporation decide as to permanent employment. Several of these graduates have permanent employment with the company.

Unlike many prominent corporations, Kimberly-Clark doesn't conduct a formal apprenticeship program.

Vocational Training

All employees, there being no partiality, have opportunities to take advantage of the educational program, but of course, the corporation through its superintendents, managers, and its industrial relations department, directs the program.

Employees are urged to attend vocational schools; in fact, the corporation will even suggest to the vocational schools, courses which would be of assistance to the employees. In many cases, the firm has helped in organizing courses and selecting teachers. Kimberly-Clark men have attended and are attending vocational schools in Neeenah, Menasha, Appleton, Kimberly and Niagara.

Kimberly-Clark also cooperates with the extension division of the University of Wisconsin and other schools in obtaining formal education for its employees.

Forty-five per cent of the Kimberly-Clark employees who have taken correspondence courses satisfactorily completed them, while the national average of completion is about 5 per cent.

Help With Tuition

The management even goes further than that. It has a standing order to the effect that when an employee satisfactorily completes an educational course, the corporation will reimburse him for one-half the tuition.

The course, however must be approved, and approval is given only upon evidence that the course directly is related to and will increase the employee's proficiency in present occupation or an occupation in his own or another department for which he actually is in line.

Approval also must be obtained from the mill superintendent of personnel, the employees' superintendents, the mill manager and the industrial relations department at Neeenah. In case the employee is preparing himself for an occupation in another department, the superintendent of that department also must approve the course.

Training By Bosses

"The best kind of training an employee can get is from his boss," is another of Eubank's axioms, and that is, in itself, the important part of the corporation's program, and the biggest responsibility every supervisor or has in being a good teacher, according to the industrial relations department director.

The supervisors who give special and individual attention to the employees, developing their strong points and correcting their weak points, play the important part in the movement, for he guides the employees from one series of occupations to another, laying out a course so that if the employee is to be promoted, he will have certain experience.

The purpose, of course, is evident—improving the men, developing latent ability and steering them in the right direction. Machine operators given technical training and technical men, such as engineers, sent into the mills to operate the machines are good examples. Considering that Kimberly-Clark employs approximately 4,500 men in its several mills, it is quite an extensive program.

This educational and training program probably has been in existence since the corporation was founded years ago, but each year, it is changed to coincide with the rapid progress of the machine age and speed and quality of production.

Dr. Covert Will Begin Series of Neeenah Meetings

Former Presbyterian Moderator Will Arrive Saturday

Neeenah—Dr. William Chalmers Covert, former moderator of the Presbyterian church of the United States, will arrive in Neeenah Saturday evening to be a guest of the Rev. Walter R. Courtney, pastor of First Presbyterian church, and on Sunday he will begin a series of meetings for emphasis of religion.

Dr. Covert will be guest speaker at the 10:30 worship service Sunday morning at First Presbyterian church, speaking on "The Work of the Church." At 7:30 Sunday evening, he will speak on "The Evangel of the Church."

Beginning with Monday evening, and continuing through Thursday evening, the topics will be "The Old Home in a New Setting," "The Moral Obligation of Educated People," "Where Can We Find Peace?" and "The Him that Hearest Say Come."

Dr. Covert will be guest speaker at the Twin City Ministerial association's noon luncheon meeting Monday at the Valley Inn and during the afternoon will speak to the women at an afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. W. R. Courtney.

Church officers of First Presbyterian church will hold a luncheon meeting Tuesday at the home of the Rev. Mr. Courtney at which Dr. Covert will be guest speaker.

Dr. Covert will speak to the Neeenah High school students at 9:30 Tuesday morning and to the Young People's Federation at First Presbyterian church at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening.

Form New Classes In Art. Speech at Menasha High School

Menasha—Two new classes have been organized at Menasha High school. They are an art class which is supervised by Miss Sigrid Paulson and a speech course which is taught by Miss Frances Fredrickson, substitute teacher on the faculty.

The art class meets each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon after school to learn perspective and to do charcoal and pastel chalk drawing. Officers of the class have been elected. They are Edward Hill, president; Mary Louise Johnson, vice president; and Shirley Page, secretary and treasurer.

The speech class is the first in several years to be introduced as a full credit subject. Fundamentals in speech, correct use of gestures, effectiveness in argumentation, facial expression and tact will be emphasized. If possible, skills will be applied in social programs will be held.

Offer to direct the year's activities are Richard Steffens, president; Julianne Peterson, vice president; Katherine Dexter, secretary-treasurer.

Marathon Club Will Hold Special Meeting

Neeenah—Marathon Club of the Twin City W. C. A. will hold a special meeting Tuesday evening, Oct. 23, to discuss the general election, candidates, party platforms and county office holders.

R. E. Sanders, Mrs. Clarence Bredeck and Robert Oszanne were named as an executive committee to plan the programs for the year. Mrs. Bryce Oszanne is the secretary-treasurer.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street and the telephone number is 4109. News items, copy or orders for advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or may be telephoned. This number may be called before 7 o'clock in the evening.

Vocational School Receives $4,000 in Federal, State Aid

Neeenah—C. F. Hedges, superintendent of schools, today received a check from the federal and state government amounting to $4,642.48 for aid for the Neeenah Vocational school.

State aid given to the local school amounted to $2,834.91, while the federal aid was from the Smith Hughes plan amounting to $427.55 and from the George Deane plan amounting to $1,380.02.

The state legislature this year allocated $255,000 to be used for vocational education. That amount was prorated to the various schools.

Schick Clinic to Be Conducted for Neeenah Children

Tests Will Begin in Grade Schools Throughout Next Week

Neeenah—A Schick clinic will be conducted for Neeenah grade school pupils starting Monday, Miss L. Evelyn Scholl, school and city nurse, announced today.

Miss Scholl urged that all children who have been inoculated for diphtheria should receive the Schick test if they already haven't received it.

The tests will start at 9 o'clock Monday morning with Lincoln and McKinley school students being tested at Lincoln. At the same time Tuesday morning, Washington school and Trinity Lutheran school children will be tested at Washington, and at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, Roosevelt school and St. Patrick's school children will be tested at Roosevelt.

Readings Necessary

Readings for the tests also will be held next week. Miss Scholl pointed out that it is necessary that the readings be done within two days after the test.

At 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, Lincoln school children will receive readings at their school, while McKinley school pupils will be at 10:30 in the morning at their school. Washington school pupils will receive readings at 9 o'clock Thursday morning at their school. Trinity Lutheran school children will receive readings at 9:30 at their school, and Kimberly school children will receive readings at 9:45 at their school.

Readings for Roosevelt and St. Patrick's school children will be given at 9 o'clock Friday morning at Roosevelt school.

Each child who receives the test is required to pay a fee of 15 cents.

Twin City Club Names Directors

Organization Outlines Plans for Benefit Card Party

Neeenah—Mrs. A. Gross, Mrs. F. A. Robinson and Mrs. T. C. Epps were named as directors of the Twin City club of the Neeenah Menasha Y. W. C. A. Thursday afternoon at the Y during a business meeting at which the club voted to accept the constitution presented by the committee which included Lorraine Abendshein, chairman, Mrs. Harvey Leaman, Mrs. Forrest Werling, Mrs. H. C. Brien and Mrs. Irving Stilt.

Plans for the Nov. 3 benefit card party were discussed. The funds from the card party will be used to buy something for the Y. W. C. A. The committee for the party includes Mrs. Harvey Leaman, chairman, Mrs. Victor Zuehl, Mrs. M. L. Ridgeway, Mrs. S. Bylow, Mrs. J. Cowling, Mrs. H. Christofferson, Mrs. R. Eiss, Mrs. D. Severson and Mrs. G. Coudres.

The constitution as accepted by the club provides for the name, "Who's New Club," and the purpose: to promote the spirit of friendliness, provide social intercourse and to stimulate general culture among members.

Active members may become associate members after they have been members four years by expressing such desire at or just before the annual meeting. In connection with this section of the constitution, it also was planned, by the by-laws, to raise dues of associate members to $2.50. Other articles of the constitution provided for meetings, officers, and amendments. The by-laws provided regulations for duties of officers, the executive board, membership, dues, committees.

William A. Eckstein, route 5, Oshkosh, has been admitted to Theda Clark hospital for treatment.

14 Students Try For Debate Posts

Miss Sigrid Paulson Will Have Charge of Activity at Menasha High

Menasha—Fourteen candidates for places on the debate squad have answered the call of Miss Sigrid Paulson, debate coach, at Menasha High school. Miss Paulson succeeds Mrs. Lawrence Osterhouse, the former Mrs. Lucille Schwartz, as debate coach.

Only four experienced debaters from last year's squad are included in the group. They are Richard Steffens, a member of the A team; Joyce Scanlon, a member of the B team; and William Spengler and George Verhoeven, both of whom have had one year of experience.

Candidates for the A team are Jack Crockett, Roy Deo Jarlax, Katherine Dexter, Joyce Drenth, Jack Gummerson, Elizabeth Heckrodt, Edward Latendresse, Julianne Peterson, Edith Redmeyer, Ruth Scanlon, William Spengler, Richard Steffens and George Verhoeven.

Member of the A and B teams will be selected shortly by Miss Paulson. All freshmen and sophomores who do not make either of the first two teams this year will remain as alternates.

The question to be debated by all Wisconsin high school students this year is: "Resolved: That the United States Should Establish an Alliance with Great Britain."

William Machie, J. Crockett Named Nicolet Editors

Others Receive Tentative Posts on Menasha High Yearbook

Neeenah—Jack Crockett has been named editor and William Machie has been selected as business manager of the tentative staff for the 1939 Nicolet yearbook of Menasha High school, according to Miss Isabel Riddle and H. O. Griffith, faculty advisers.

The rest of the staff, also tentatively appointed, includes George Verhoeven, circulation manager; Frank Poplinsky, staff photographer; Kenneth DuCharme and Ray Tenk, sports editors; Carol Osborne and Shirley Page, literary editors; Twyla Bae Moon and Julia Peterson, features, and Marion Pennington, organizations.

Nine members of the staff will handle the advertising this year under the direction of William Machie. They are George Clark, Jack Crockett, Willard Galau, Bruce Griffith, John Levandowski, Twyla Bae Moon, Carl Oedermann, Maribeth Sennsennbrenner, and George Verhoeven. The literary committee also will include those seniors who do not have the sixth period free but who wish to write for the Nicolet.

Work in Underway

Work on the 1939 Nicolet already has started and plans for the book have been laid. The advertising staff is busy securing advertising and the editorial staff is preparing dummies of the various pages. Pictures of the various classes have been taken as well as some of the activities. For the first time since the old school was destroyed by fire, the yearbook will be a product of Menasha High school entirely for even the printing will be done by the students.

Thirteen boys, under the supervision of Mr. Griffith, will print the Nicolet in the newly-equipped high school print shop. They are Willard Galau, George Goesser, Pat Juneau, John Levandowski, Karl Loescher, Carl Oedermann, William Resch, William Thomas, Alvin Wisniewski, Harry Zelinski and Ronald Ziegler.

Brigade Leaders Map Program at Dinner Meeting

Shattuck Is Named Chair- man of Dedication Committee

Neeenah—Plans for the year were formulated at a dinner meeting of 40 leaders of the Neeenah Boys' Brigade last night at the Valley Inn. Reports were given by the Rev. W. B. Courtney, chaplain, Captain Lyall Stilt, Karl Oberreich, chairman of the group program committee, Dr. John Jern, chairman of the sports program committee and S. F. Shattuck.

Mr. Shattuck was named chairman of the dedication committee for the new second floor addition and gymnasium. The dedication, it was reported, will be held in mid-November, the precise date to be determined when the building is completed. Before the dedication, however, an "open house" for parents and friends will be held.

In the chaplain's report, the religious program which will be stressed this year, "boys' affiliation with their own church." He pointed out that members of the Brigade should regularly attend their own church, and then he submitted a report showing the various denominations represented in the Brigade last year.

Shows Denominations

The churches, pastors and the number of boys are as follows: First Presbyterian, W. R. Courtney, 54; Whiting Memorial Baptist, W. L. Harms, 8; First Evangelical, Carl F. Ziellow, 3; Trinity Lutheran, E. C. Reim, 11; Immanuel Lutheran, E. C. Kollath, 22; St. Paul's English Lutheran, Samuel H. Roth, 23; First Methodist, Henry Johnson, 12; Our Savior's Lutheran, Arnold H. Anderson, 10; First Church of Christ, Scientist, 4; First Fundamental, W. G. Wittenborn, 1; St. Margaret Mary, Joseph Gluckstein, 12; Congregational, Menasha, William A. Jacobs, 1; St. Thomas Episcopal, Menasha, A. A. Chambers, 2; St. Patrick's, Menasha, W. P. Mortell, 14; St. Mary's, Menasha, John Hummel, 2; and Greek Orthodox, 1.

Captain Stilt discussed the changes to be made in the scoring for the year. Athletic and other activities will be conducted this year on a competitive plan, similar to the one carried out at Camp Onaway last summer. The Brigade will be divided into four groups.

Oberreich outlined the group program for the year and plans were made for a series of individual group leaders meetings.

Will Wear Sweaters

The Brigade this year will have a uniform, it was decided at the meeting. Navy blue sweaters with the Brigade insignia attached to the sleeves will be worn. The sweaters may be purchased for a nominal fee, but the members must earn the money rather than obtain it from their parents. As soon as enlistment closes, the boys will be measured for the uniforms which will be available the first part of January.

Following the dinner, the leaders toured the new buildings. The $30,000 gymnasium and second floor addition is being repainted and redecorated now.

The deadline for recruiting new members will be Monday evening, Oct. 23, 12 o'clock or in the sixth grade. Boys eligible to join. No new members will be admitted after Monday. Old members will reenlist Oct. 31 and Nov. 7.

Release First Issue of Nicolet News, Menasha Student Paper

New County Garage to Be Dedicated Nov. 9

Neeenah—Dedication of the new Winnebago county garage will be held at 3:30 Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 9. The program will consist of 4-H club entertainment, music, speeches, refreshments and a dance in the evening.

Speakers will be Frank B. Keefe, Republican candidate for congress, and Lewis C. Magnussen, district attorney. Lunch will be served by the Oshkosh Band Mothers association.

St. Mary Gridders To Meet Kimberly Eleven Saturday

Non-Conference Game Will End Home Season for Zephyrs

Menasha—The St. Mary High school football team will close its season at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at Butte des Morts field when the Zephyrs oppose Kimberly High school in a non-conference game. Thirteen St. Mary High school graders will don their uniforms for the last time for a home game. All are expected to get into the game, if only for one play.

They are Fred Picard, Robert Schwarzbauer, Daniel Tuchscherer, Reuben Prunskis, William Coenen, Eugene Kraft, Antone Bevers, Don Niles, John Brehm, Frank Schipferling, Ernie Koerner, Eugene Laux and James Eckrich.

The Zephyrs, who have already clinched a share of the Fox Valley Catholic conference title, will be out to finish their season with an enviable record. They have a nothing to nothing game of last year with Kimberly to settle for. The five previous meetings of the two schools have resulted in victories for the Zephyrs.

Show Well in Practice

The Zephyrs have shown well in practice this week after a lethargic game against St. John High school at Little Chute last week. Bill Coenen has come along rapidly at a guard post after being shifted from end and Farnam Johnson, also a former end, has been shifted to tackle.

Kimberly High school will come here Saturday with a strong team coached by Ray Hammen, former University of Wisconsin basketball star. The Papermakers have lost only two games this season and with clinching the Tri-County league championship. One of the defeats was by one point while the other was by one touchdown when St. John High school returned an intercepted pass for a touchdown to score a 6 to 0 victory.

Coaches, players and managers of the Menasha High school football squad have been invited to attend the game Saturday afternoon as guests of St. Mary High school.

Sanford Tells of 3 Mental Phases

Child's Emotional Periods Described at Wash- ington PTA Meeting

Neeenah—More than 125 members of the Washington school Parent Teachers association heard Chester Sanford, vocational guidance director, talk on "That Boy" at a meeting last night at the Washington school.

Miss Ruth Chaimson, Neeenah High school teacher, gave a reading. At the business meeting, the parents and teachers voted to table the matter of joining the state and national organization until spring.

In his talk, Mr. Sanford pointed out the three phases of emotions through which a child goes through and he urged the parents to try to understand the children during these periods. During the imaginative period, parents shouldn't think that the child is lying when they concoct stories, for they actually believe what they say, the guidance director warned. During the second period, the memory phase, it is easy for the child to memorize things, and he advised the parents to encourage worthwhile reading, especially the Bible. In connection with the third period, the adolescent age, Mr. Sanford warned, "Moody parent can't discipline moody children."

Outline Programs For Fall Meetings Of Congo Men's Club

Menasha—The program for meetings of the Congo Men's club for the fall months was outlined at the opening meeting held Tuesday evening in the club rooms at the First Congregational church.

Dr. John B. Hanna, pastor of the First Congregational church of Appleton, will be the guest speaker at the meeting Tuesday, Nov. 1. He will discuss "Deep Sea Fishing." Francis Langlais will be the chairman of the meeting. Officers for the fall term also will be elected at the Nov. 1 meeting.

A social party has been planned for either Dec. 3 or 6. Curt Smith has been named chairman of the committee which will make party arrangements. Other members of the committee are Wesley Craig, Herbert Heller, Emmett Belong, Arthur Peterson, Herbert Hartung and Norman Michie.

A recreational program, featured by a volleyball contest, will be held at the meeting next Tuesday night. Open meetings have been planned for Nov. 7 and Nov. 22 while at the Nov. 15 meeting pictures will be shown.

Harold Smith is the present president of the club. Other directors are Emmett Belong, Allan Adams, Milton Schmeiren, Alfred Voelker, Herbert Heller and Charles Grinner.

Pour Concrete Bases For New Radio Tower

Menasha—Relocation of police radio station WAKE has started at the county farm at Winnebago. The five concrete bases which will support the 199-foot steel tower, were poured this week under the supervision of Marshall Searle, chief operator of the station. Each base is 3-feet square and is 6-feet deep. A small, one-story structure of fire-proof construction to house the equipment also will be built at the farm. The equipment is being transferred from the old jail in order to improve the broadcasting facilities.

WIN HORSESHOE MATCHES

Menasha—Two more second round games in the intramural horseshoe tournament which is being conducted by Leslie Anzorge, physical education instructor, have been completed. Royalle Stree scored a 15 to 9 victory over Norman Drexler and Frederick Belling defeated John Martell. The two winners will enter the third round.

DuCharme Named Bluejay Captain Against Bulldogs

Menasha Line Weakened By Injuries for New London Tilt

Menasha — Kenneth DuCharme, senior halfback, has been named acting captain of the Menasha High school football team by Coach N. A. Calder for the game against New London tonight. The game will start at 8 o'clock under the lights at Butte des Morts field. The officials will be A. C. Denney and William Pickett of Appleton and Ole Jorgensen of Neenah.

The varsity game will be preceded by a six-man football game at 7 o'clock under the lights. The Badgers, champions of the intramural league conducted by Leslie Ansoorge, physical education instructor, will play an All-Star team. The starting lineup for the Bluejays tonight will be in doubt until game time because Henry Landskron, tackle, received a leg injury in practice this week and may not be able to play. John Levandowski will fill one tackle post while Soudner or Martell may fill the other. On the other hand, Coach Calder may shift Ray Henk to a tackle spot but they would have to call on Funk to play guard. Funk received a broken nose in practice this week. Gene Grode will play the other guard.

Backfield Unchanged

At the ends Coach Calder will start Edward Hill and George Shaw while Wolff will play center. The backfield combination will be the same as usual with the starting call going to Donald Drucks, fullback; Roland O'Brien, quarterback; Jack Grode, right halfback; and Kenneth DuCharme, left halfback.

The Bluejays have drilled on defense this week to stop the hard-running Ike Poeple, New London's star player, both offensively and defensively. They also have drilled against the short-passing game used by New London and have looked effective on pass defense. On pass offense the team has failed to click.

Although the Bluejays may rate as slight favorites because of the records of the two teams, the New London group will be dangerous. Poeple is a back who can break loose at any time on a punt return or a run and is a hard man to bring down. Opponents have scored only five touchdowns against New London in three games. Although the New London attack has scored only one touchdown, their running attack will be more effective with the Menasha line in a weakened condition.

100 Lady Eagles and Their Husbands Take Part in Social Event

Menasha — More than 100 Lady Eagles and their husbands were entertained at a covered dish party last night at the Eagles hall. Cards were played following a short business meeting. Mrs. Rose Engels won the honors in whist, and Mrs. Hattie Torched and Mrs. Emma Campo won honors in bridge. Honors in schafskopf went to Henry Blohm, Mrs. Ruth Drews, Mr. and Mrs. William Erwin, Mrs. Pauline Hand, Mrs. Sadie Sherer, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Doone, Leonard Mead, Walter Swann, Robert Martens, George Beisenstein and A. J. Strohmeyer.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Judd, 203 Nicolet boulevard, entertained for John Dowling, Lawrence college, at a dinner Thursday evening at their home.

Mrs. George Lansing, Mrs. E. C. Jape, Mrs. John Schultz and Mrs. E. C. Klesow won honors in bridge at the meeting of the I.D.K. club Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Lansing, Fairview avenue. The club will meet next Thursday at the home of Mrs. Klesow.

St. Margaret Mary social guild, Group 5, will hold a card party Wednesday, Oct. 26, in the church hall. Mrs. Ben Derby is chairman.

Fourteen tables of cards were in play at a party of the Lady Eagles Thursday afternoon at the Eagles hall. Honors in bridge went to Evelyn Reusch, while honors in whist were won by Mrs. Hattie Williams and Mrs. Peter Minton. Honors in schafskopf went to Mrs. Ella Mead, Mrs. Frank Ulrich, Mrs. Emma Henebry, Mrs. Inez Schieber, Mrs. Louis Fahrenkrug and Mrs. Sadie Scherer. A special prize was won by Mrs. George McGuire. The next meeting will be Nov. 3.

Loescher Named Head Of Community Group

Menasha — C. A. Loescher has been elected president of the Menasha Community association to succeed E. F. Saecker, retiring president. Other officers are A. Voelker, vice president, and R. J. Fieweger, treasurer. Plans for a uniform system of street lighting during the Christmas holidays are being formed by the association.

Truck, Automobile are Involved in Collision

Neenah — A truck driven by Henry Gayeski, 731 Third street, Menasha, and a car driven by Abe Burstein, 104 Center street, Neenah, were damaged in a collision at 3:30 Thursday afternoon on E. Canal street at N. Commercial street. The rear bumper of the truck was damaged and the front of the car was dented. Both cars were going west on E. Canal street.

Contract for Building Awarded to C. R. Meyer

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh — The contract for the construction of the building in which the re-located Winnebago county police radio station, WAKE, is to be housed today was awarded to the C. R. Meyer Construction company, Oshkosh, the low bidder. Meyer's bid was $963 to complete the building in 40 days. The new building will house the transmitting equipment and will be of concrete construction and electrically heated.

Neenah Juniors Will Sponsor School Dance

Neenah — The junior class at Neenah High school will sponsor an all-school dance Saturday evening in the gymnasium. A popular orchestra will furnish the music. The class commission will be in charge. Guest and alumni tickets may be secured from John H. Holzman, principal.

Equipment and will be of concrete construction and electrically heated.

Counties to Study State Plan To Increase Pensions at Meet

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The added costs to counties which result from the state pension board's recent action liberalizing budgets for the three types of social security aids paid in Wisconsin will be studied by county officials at two meetings next week, the Wisconsin County Boards association announced here today.

The meetings will be held at Antigo and Chippewa Falls on Oct. 26 and 27, respectively, and were fit of northern counties, all county officials have been notified and invited to attend.

Reveals Cost Estimates

A. J. Thelen, secretary of the association, today made public complete estimates of cost schedules under the new schedules for old age, blind, and aid to dependent children. He said they were obtained from the statistical department of the state pension board.

Estimated costs for the counties in the Appleton area under the new plan were reported as follows:

County	Old Age Children Blind
Brown	$14,000 $31,000 $2,000
Outagamie	50,000 75,500 4,000
Calumet	11,500 10,000 3,000
Manitowoc	45,000 38,000 4,500
Waupaca	50,000 36,000 1,300
Shawano	36,000 32,500 2,000
Winnebago	87,000 90,000 3,000

Without the liberalization of budgets counties would have had to appropriate the following sums to carry their share of the cost of Hilbert—Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Pruess of St. Ann, who have been married 15 years and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nillies of Kiel who have been married 5 years, entertained Sunday at a joint wedding anniversary celebration at the Pruess home at St. Ann. The following guests were present; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Deschler and family, Appleton; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Nilles and family, Green Bay; Mr. and Mrs. Carl and family, Plymouth; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Nilles and family, Chilton; Matt J. Nilles, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Matt Nilles, Jr., Hilbert and Ed Nilles, St. Ann.

The West Side Meat Market

Outagamie	35,000	42,000	4,000
Calumet	8,000	5,500	500
Manitowoc	30,000	20,000	4,500
Waupaca	35,000	20,000	1,300
Shawano	25,000	18,000	2,000
Winnebago	60,000	60,000	3,500

These figures do not take into account the cost of administration to the counties, which is now estimated to be increased as the result of the budget liberalization, but which requires more than 10 per cent of the total aid paid by the counties.

Methodist Church District Conclave Is Held at Marion

Next Year's Convention To Be Held at Oneida Indian Mission

Marion—The annual convention of the Appleton district of the Wisconsin Methodist conference was held Wednesday at the Community Methodist church.

The convention was opened by the district superintendent, the Rev. T. E. Schlagenhauf of Appleton. He presented the Rev. Victor Nearhoof of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, Manitowish, who conducted the opening devotional service.

The Rev. H. Feldt of Merrill and the Rev. Milton C. Feldt of Seymour, were also present. The Rev. Merrill Abbey of Marinette spoke on "Personal Habits for Spiritual Growth."

In the afternoon the principal speaker was the Rev. C. W. Heywood of Wauwatosa who chose for his subject, "The Other Seventy," which represent the forgotten men and women in the church.

Next year the convention will be held at the Oneida Indian Mission, near Green Bay.

Joseph Fournier, farmer living five miles west of Marion, lost five cows Thursday, presumably from eating some sort of poison in the pasture. Several more of the cows are sick. A veterinarian was called and diagnosed the ailment as a poisoning but as yet has not determined its exact nature.

The auction put on by the Men's Club of St. John's Lutheran church Tuesday evening was well attended. Art Schoenicke was auctioneer and also acted as master of ceremonies. A lunch of wieners, sauerkraut, rye bread and coffee was served. The Men's club has 51 members.

Ziegert Funeral Is Conducted at Leeman

Leeman—Funeral services for Mrs. William Ziegert, 86, who died at her home here Sunday evening after a long illness, were conducted at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the residence by the Rev. Milton C. Feldt, pastor of the St. Paul Methodist Episcopal church, of Seymour. Burial was made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Bearers were Guy Daniels, Herman Runnec, Ernest Laehn, Frank Scott, John Jarchow and Gus Schmoll.

Mrs. Ziegert, pioneer resident of the town of Marion, was born in Germany on May 2, 1852, coming to the United States with her husband the year following their marriage which took place in Germany in 1872. In 1882 they purchased the farm in the Marion township where they had resided since.

Survivors are the widow, who is 91 years of age; two daughters, Mrs. Charles Theide, New London, and Mrs. Jesse Wilson, Benton Harbor, Mich.; three sons, John and Charles, Eldorado, and William H. Ziegert, Jr., who lives on the old Ziegert homestead; 20 grandchildren and 32 great grandchildren.

Among relatives and friends from away who attended the funeral were Mrs. Otto Henschel and daughter Carol Fay, Miss Bernice and Donald Schoenicker, and Mrs. Lester Dews, New London; Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Theide, Chicago; Mrs. Charles Theide, New London; Mrs. William Heise and children, Mrs. Lloyd Muivy and children, Mrs. Nathan Rogers, Mrs. Martin Leuders and daughters, Joyce and June, Oshkosh.

3 Political Meetings Will Be Held Tonight

Political meetings will be held by the Republican, Democratic and Progressive parties in the county tonight. The Republicans will sponsor a meeting at Kimberly, Democrats at Greenville and the Progressives at Appleton.

Solomon Leeman, Progressive candidate for reelection as state treasurer, will speak at the Progressive meeting which will be held in the circuit courtroom at the courthouse.

Verifines Win 2, Hold League Lead

Millers Outscore Leaders In Total Pins but Win Only One

Refreshment League
Standings: W. L.
Verifines 12 6
Eggers Tavern 10 8
Orange Kists 7 11
Miller High Lites 6 9

New London — The High Lites out-rolled the Verifines 2,455 to 2,372 but couldn't overtake them in league matches at Pahl's alleys last night. A 3-pin margin in one game gave the Verifines two wins, 734, 784 and 854 to 864, 781 and 810.

Jimmy Graham pounded tops for the High Lites with a 523 series and 200 game. Frank Miller hit a 228 line in the opener and Gerhardt Ladwig cracked a 520 total. Russell Berzill paced the Verifines with a 515 count.
Eggers Tavern took three from the Orange Kists, the first by only two pins, 756 to 758. Top keggers were William Eggers 504, Leonard Dernbach 503, with Harold Buss hitting 508 for the losers.

Borden League
Standings: W. L.
Bordens 11 4
Royalton 10 5
Lebanon 9 6
Maple Creek 8 7
Bear Creek 6 9
Ostrander 6 9
Black Creek 5 10
Hortonia 5 10

Black Creek made a clean sweep of three victories over Hortonia with Maple Creek holding down Bear Creek, 2 to 1. Jess Lathrop's 432 total paced the Hortonia matches while Reinhardt Wolfe's 397 and 165 were high for Black Creek.

Rolling under a 28-pin handicap Bear Creek lost two to the Maple Creekers but beat them at the total, 230 pins. Francis Dempsey cracked a 515 series for Bear Creek in games of 163, 181 and 171. Louis Thomas smashed a 203 game.

Honor Roll Published At Shiocton High School

Shiocton — The honor roll for the first six weeks of the fall term at Shiocton High school is as follows:
Seniors: George Bruchel and Milton May.

Juniors: Lucille Jarchow, David Broeker and Glen Parks.
Sophomores — Melvin Jarchow, Sylvia Hall and Stanley Schrott.
Freshmen — Ruel Falk, Lola MacNacks, Nettie Low Broeker and Lorraine Maede.

Eugene Feuerpeil and family, who have been occupying rooms in the Santukyl building, have moved into rooms upstairs in the Withuhn residence.

Miss Rosemary Kuether, who is attending Actual Business college at Appleton, spent the weekend at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kuether.

Harold Booth of Green Bay spent the forepart of the week at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Booth.

M'KINLEY SCHOOL PUPILS TO STAGE OPERETTA TONIGHT

New London—Amid the royal splendor of the king's court, the palace guards in full military dress entertain for the princess in the McKinley school pupils' annual operetta, "The Princess Has a Birthday," which will be presented at the Washington High school auditorium at 8 o'clock this evening. This scene, taken at dress rehearsal yesterday afternoon, is only one of many colorful numbers in which all of the 145 pupils have a chance to entertain. Pixies, fairies, gypsies and members of the rhythm band await their turn in the above picture. Gordon Rusch is king; Lois Linberg, queen; Ruth Laughlin, the princess. At left and right are the court jesters, Sharr and Flat, Barbara Meinhardt and Sally Estlund, respectively. In full regalia is Robin Lyon as Major Scale with Lloyd Conat, the court cut-up as Master Melody. Palace guards are Billy Irving, Bobby Hammerberg, Delores Koplen, Marion Rice, Dona Behm and Kenneth Dent. Cordell Schimke and Charlotte Jensen are hidden from the camera. (Post-Crescent Photo)

High School Thespians Stage Farewell Party for Instructor

New London—Washington High school Troupe 119 of the National Thespians, honorary dramatic society for high schools, honored its organizer and director, H. H. Brockhaus, at a surprise farewell party at the high school last evening.

Mr. Brockhaus, English instructor at New London the last nine years and promoter of dramatics in the high school, will leave with Mrs. Brockhaus next Wednesday for Forest Grove, Ore., where he will begin Nov. 1 as professor of speech. His duties at Washington High school will terminate Tuesday.

The surprise followed a regular meeting of the Thespians last evening. Members of the faculty and their wives were guests of the 23 Thespians for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Brockhaus were presented with corsages and Harry Herres, voted the Best Thespian last year, presented the director with a desk set as a departing gift. Teachers took the opportunity to express their regrets at the loss of their fellow instructor.

A program of entertainment was presented and refreshments were served and eaten by candlelight. Patricia Chegwinn and Patricia Egan offered vocal solos, Mary Dawson performed a toe dance and Helen Schoenrock delivered a declamation. Maurice Levine and Marilyn Monroe enacted a comedy skit, "Baby Snooks."

On the committees in charge of the party were Mary Dawson, Ethel Knapstein, Kathleen Smith, Ruth Sawall, Polley Hartquist and Maurice Levine.

Night School Offers Commercial Classes

New London—Commercial night classes for adults will be organized at Washington High school next week in response to requests for such work.

Typewriting and bookkeeping will be taught for a period of 16 weeks with typing classes each Monday and Wednesday evening under Norman Pronold and bookkeeping each Thursday evening under E. N. Calef. Classes will be held from 7:30 to 9 o'clock.

Classes will be organized at the first meeting of each group next week provided there are sufficient persons enrolled. A small fee will be asked to defray expenses. The study will be particularly for beginners or those desiring review work, according to the instructors, though special work may be given.

Bank Receiver Is Arrested on Old Arterial Warrant

New London — Bernard Mulvaney, receiver for the First National bank of Clintonville, found his visit to New London doubly disagreeable yesterday afternoon. Working all day at the city hall at a supplement hearing before Court Commissioner Giles H. Farnham on judgments against a dozen or more farmers in behalf of the defunct bank, Mulvaney found himself faced with a warrant issued April 4, 1933, charging him with failure to stop at an arterial at the corner of Beacon avenue and S. Pearl street in this city on March 29.

Attempts by police to serve the warrant had been futile until Mr. Mulvaney appeared yesterday. Arraigned before Police Justice Fred J. Rogers, he pleaded not guilty. His preliminary hearing was set for Nov. 3 when he will be in New London again to resume the judgment hearings.

Lyman Branch, Stevens Point, paid $1 and costs in police court yesterday afternoon for failure to stop at the arterial at Highways 45 and 54. He was arrested by County Patrolman Earl Polzin.
